MAJOR BUILDUP ON VIET BORDER

Peking Massing Forces

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — China has moved major military forces toward its border with Vietnam during the past several days, according to intelligence reports reaching Washington. The troop movements are believed to be a reaction to Vietnam's drive inside Cambodia, raising concern among officials here that the Indochinese conflict could spread to major powers.

The Chinese buildup is reported to involve large numbers of troops, supplies of ammunition and redeployment of fighter planes and bombers to positions close to the Vietnam border. The movements were described as rapid as well as highly unusual.

U.S. officials said they do not know what China intends to do with the forces. There was some speculation that the movements may be intended as a warning to Vietnam rather than positioning for an actual strike against the Hanoi regime.

Meanwhile, Cambodia said today that heavy fighting was still raging in the northeastern and eastern third of the country which Vietnamese-backed rebels already claim they control.

In related developments:

— The United States called on Vietnam today to withdraw its troops from occupied areas of war-torn Cambodia.

"Although we don't like the Pol Pot regime, we are not sure any new regime would be better for the Cambodian people." Robert Oakley, deputy assistant secretary of state for east Asian affairs told a news conference in Bangkok.

LANCTOT LANDS IN ARMS OF LAW

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Jacques Lanctot, a key suspect in the 1970s terrorist kidnapping of British diplomat James Cross, returned home from eight years of exile Saturday and was arrested on charges of conspiracy to commit kidnapping, extortion, forcible detention and kidnapping.

Three Montreal Urban Commmunity police officers boarded the Air Canada jumbo jet from Paris.

The local police have jurisdiction in the case because the Cross kidnapping took place here.

Lanctot, 33, was travelling with his wife Suzanne and their three children aged 10 years to 11 months.

Mrs. Lanctot and their three children were met by Robert Lemieux, a lawyer who figured in negotiations to gain Cross' release from his Front de Liberation du Quebec captors.

Two other suspects in the Cross kidnapping, Marc Carbonneau and Yves Langlois remain in Paris, where all five suspects moved after going into exile in Cuba eight years ago.

VICTIMS ALIVE, SAYS PSYCHIC

EDMONTON (CP) — An Edmonton psychic says he knows the location of a light plane that went missing Christmas Eve.

Edmond Benz, the second psychic to help in the search, said Friday that the four persons aboard are alive but that two are seriously injured.

"No one could find the plane so I decided to help out," said Benz, a retired hydrotherapist.

Benz said the plane is on a small peninsula jutting into the southern portion of the Lyell Glacier in Banff National Park, west of Calgary.

Both Benz and an unidentified Toronto woman, who also purports to have psychic abilities, singled out the park as the location of the downed plane.

But Maj. Vic Keating of Canadian Forces search and rescue and co-ordination centre said Friday that the area singled out by the Toronto woman was thoroughly checked and nothing was found.

Benz said that pilot Art Underwood is seriously injured and has three broken ribs, a broken right arm and a fractured left thigh bone.

He said passenger Chet Talbott, 60, was also seriously injured and that Betty Talbott, Chet's wife, had an injured left arm. Their son, Sheldon, was in good condition, Benz said.

Searchmaster Capt. Gordon Speirs said the park area would be searched again.

"The area will be covered again because it is in the prime search area, not because the psychics say they're there," Speirs said Friday.

Union Leaders Sizzling Over Section 11

Trade union leaders angrily denounced Friday the Socred government's proclamation of sections of a bill that would limit the right to strike.

Section 11 of Bill 46 was proclaimed by an order in council and published without comment Friday.

It brings more than 100,000 workers in 20 different unions under the Essential Services Disputes Act and limits the right of unions to strike by allowing the government to enforce a 104-day cooling off period.

"It is a concerted attack and a vindictive one. I think we're into the whole confrontation scene right now," B.C. Federation of Labor president Jim Kinnaird said.

John Shields, president of the Victoria Labor Council, said he is not surprised by the move.

He said the proclamation of section 11 is no doubt tied in with Finance Minister Evan Wolfe's announcement earlier this week that municipalities will be limited to a five-per-cent increase in their budgets.

Shields said municipal officials obviously put it to the government that they couldn't slap such a restriction on their employees' wage increases without some clout.

If municipal employees wages are to be restricted the government and the municipalities "have to have access to all the guns in the arsenal," he said.

But Shields warned the government is only buying trouble with the move and he added he doesn't expect this to be the last anti-labor shot from the Socred administration.

NDP spokesmen described the government move as deceitful and proof that the Socreds lack both scruples and morals.

Former NDP labor minister Bill King said it is clear the government's motives all along were ulterior.

"It goes hand in glove with the imposition of the five per cent restrictions on municipal and regional budgets," King said.

NDP labor critic Karen Sanford said Labor Minister Allan Williams should be fired.

"The minister has obviously knuckled under to the hard-liners in cabinet and has shown again he is a weak minister," Sanford said.

When the bill was passed last month, Williams said section 11 might never be proclaimed.

"It was a surprise because Williams had stated quite clearly there would be an exhaustive study. And then out of the blue they proclaim it," Kinnaird said.

Organized labor had reacted angrily when the bill was introduced last month.

The labor federation has promised a series of demonstrations throughout the province to fight the legislation.

The bill was introduced last month during an emergency session of the legislature to put an end to a West Kootenay school strike-lockout.

John Fryer, general secretary of the B.C. Government Employees Union, said he is disturbed that the Socred government appears "hell bent on confrontation" with the labor movement.

He said he is particularly distressed by Williams because, Fryer said, the minister went contrary to his word.

Fryer said Williams took great pains to reassure the opposition that section 11 would only be proclaimed if it was needed.

Fryer said he doesn't know why the government went back on its word and decided to proclaim the section now.

Angela Sheremeta says she'll defy next census, too

Census Challenger Off on Technicality

MAPLE RIDGE (CP) — A 38-year-old Maple Ridge woman was found not guilty Friday in provincial court of failing to complete her 1976 federal census form but the judge said he was not ruling on the government's invasion into her privacy.

Judge Lorne Clare ruled that Statistics Canada did not prove Angela Sheremeta had failed to complete the long census form "to the best of her knowledge and belief."

Court was told that Mrs. Sheremeta had provided only her name, address and the number of occupants in her home to a census taker and refused to answer other questions.

She argued that the census was a serious attempt by the federal government to threaten her personal freedom and privacy.

Judge Clare said he was ruling only on the evidence in the case and not on the constitutionality of the Statistics Act, the invasion of Mrs. Sheremeta's privacy or the supremacy of individual rights over government actions.

Mrs. Sheremeta said in an interview after the ruling that although she was found not guilty on a technicality, her case has been made. She added that she was prepared to go to court again over the issue during the next census.

M-B Shares Take Off After Takeover Rumor

MacMillan-Bloedel shares were among the hottest issues on the Vancouver Stock Exchange Friday after Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber said the provincial government plans to buy 20 per cent of the company's common shares for $30 each.

Premier Bill Bennett has protested Barber's remarks but has not denied them.

Barber said he got the 20 per cent figure from two diferent sources.

"One said the government was planning on it and the other said it was going ahead," Barber said.

About 68,000 shares of MacMillan Bloedel were traded Friday at between $25.25 and $25.50.

Previous take-over offers have valued it at about $30 per share.

"Until he (Bennett) issues a flat no, I'm sticking," Barber said.

A spokesmen for the premier's office said Bennett will not comment further.

Barber said the government will buy MacBlo stock through middlemen and then turn the shares over to a provincial Crown corporation, which would publicly issue its own shares.

The plan would be aimed at stopping a bid by Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd. (CPI) to take over the B.C. forest giant and maintaining ownership of the company in the province.

Forestry expert Dr. Peter Pearse, who authored a weighty report on the Royal Commission on Forest Resources in B.C. two years ago, said he is reluctant to

USC DRIVE AT $28,000

Last-minute contributions to this year's Unitarian Services Committee fund drive have pushed the total just over the $28,000 mark and with some donations still coming in, and others hopefully in the works, fund reach the $30,000 mark.

Contributions still are needed but the Times, which again this year helped support the drive, asks donors now to mail their cheques or money orders to the Unitarian Services Committee, 51 Sparks Street, Ottawa.

On page 51 of today's Times, there is a list of donors. A final list will be published next week.

Air Inspectors Strike Illegal

OTTAWA (CP) — A strike by federal aircraft inspectors has been declared illegal by the Public Service Staff Relations Board.

Union leader Ed Jensen said he was unhappy with the decision, announced today. But he had earlier indicated the 400 members of the aircraft operations group would abide by the board's ruling.

The strike started Friday morning and the government moved quickly to have it declared illegal.

"It seems to be the attitude of the employer to . . . take advantage of all legislation to put down the public service as much as possible," said Jensen.

At the outset of the board hearing Friday, Jensen said the employees, members of the new Canadian Union of Professional and Technical Employees, "are law-abiding citizens."

Government lawyer Robert Cousineau had argued that the employees were not in a legal strike position because they had switched unions.

He told the board the group was in a legal position to strike under its old union, the Professional Institute of the Public Service of Canada. But there was nothing in the Public Service Staff Relations Act which allowed the new union to pick up the strike right gained in negotiations by the previous union.

Jensen said his union, certified as the bargaining agent for the employees last summer, will continue with negotiations "to achieve a favorable resolution."

Chinese Pill for Men Studied in U.S.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — American fertility experts are evaluating a Chinese claim that they have put into use the first safe and effective birth control pill for men.

The U.S. researchers warned, however, that it might be premature to consider the development a birth control breakthrough.

The Chinese method described Friday reportedly is 99.8 per cent effective, does not interfere with sex and has no serious side effects.

The pill, called gossypol, is derived from seeds and other parts of the cotton plant, the report said, and works by preventing the formation of sperm.

Men take it daily for three months, and then take a maintenance doseage if they wish to remain infertile. Fertility can be restored within a year after a man stops taking the pills, the report said.

The pill has been available in clinics and health centres in China for more than six months, but Chinese doctors have said it is too soon to estimate the rate of acceptance.

One doctor, Pan Jun Din of the Hsin Hua commune, told U.S. family planning experts who toured China for three weeks in November: "The men are not very enthusiastic yet."

The family planning experts reported on the Chinese work in Friday's Ann Arbor News.

"There are many unknowns about gossypol," said Dr. Sheldon Segal, director of population sciences for the Rockefeller Foundation in New York.

"Animal studies have shown a cumulative toxicity. However, the Chinese may have been successful in purifying the substance to eliminate that."

Dr. Stanley Kaplan, a pharmacologist with the drug firm Hoffmann-La Roche Inc. of Nutley, N.J., said he discussed the drug with Chinese researchers who extracted it and with urologists who tested it.

"It sounded scientifically solid and the Chinese appear optimistic," he said.

Dr. Judith Tyson, medical director of Vermont Planned Parenthood, said she was told the Chinese developed the pill from ancient herbal folk medicine.

"From what we heard, it sounds safe, simple and highly effective," she said, "but so did the pill (for women) at first, so I have a healthy skepticism."

Irked CUPW Chiefs Walk Out on Talks

OTTAWA (CP) —Angry postal union officials walked out of a meeting with Postmaster-General Gilles Lamontagne Friday, accusing him of waging a campaign of "harassment and terror" against its members.

President Jean-Claude Parrot and other top officers of the Canadian of Postal Workers (CUPW) said they left to protest the firing of seven more postal workers this week for their participation in an illegal strike last fall.

The meeting is part of several sessions called to discuss government legislation to turn the post office into a Crown corporation.

Parrot said that the minister invited the union representatives to lunch with him as soon as the meeting ended, but they left instead.

"Does he seriously expect the CUPW executive to wine and dine with him while more than 7,500 postal workers are being dismissed, suspended, investigated or reprimanded?"

He accused the minister of double-talk for giving assurances at a news conference Dec. 16 that no further "harassment or intimidation of postal workers was to take place.

"There was a brief lull during the Christmas period, but now that the season of peace is over he is on the offensive again," Parrot said.

The latest firings — four in Toronto and three in Ottawa — bring to 10 the number of postal workers who lost their jobs as a result of disciplinary action for defying back-to-work legislation last October.

"How can we discuss ways of improving the postal service when the postmaster-general . . . is intent on creating a climate of terror?" Parrot said in a statement.

Lamontagne had started the new year on a note of war and unless cooler heads prevailed, "1979 will be anything but a year of peace in the post office.

REGION SOUNDS MEASLES ALERT

Capital Region medical health officer Dr. Allan Arneil warned Friday the disease causes malformation, deafness, blindness and even death in fetuses.

He disclosed that four or five confirmed cases of rubella have been turned up in B.C. through routine blood sampling.

"Although the disease is relatively harmless to young children and adults, it has a drastic effect on the unborn child," he stated.

Arneil said because of potential harmful side effects, the vaccine is not administered to women already pregnant and women should be vaccinated before conception occurs.

China Jockeying

— The UN Security Council agreed informally Friday to take up Cambodia's complaint of Vietnamese aggression despite opposition by the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia, council sources said.

The agreement set the scene for a direct council confrontation between the Soviet Union, which backs Vietnam, and China, which supports Cambodia.

In a news conference with foreign correspondents, Chinese Vice-premier Teng Hsiao-ping said that "flagrant large-scale aggression . . . by the Vietnamese is not an isolated event but part of the global strategy of great power hegemonism." Hegemonism is the Chinese code word for Soviet maneuvering.

The Chinese have been supplying aircraft, armor, artillery and other materiel to Cambodia. The Soviets have been sending military aid to the Vietnamese, who are also equipped with captured U.S. equipment as well as their arms accumulated during the war that ended in 1975.

Twice in recent weeks the United States has expressed official concern about Vietnam's drive in Cambodia, which is ostensibly an armed revolution by a Hanoi-backed "salvation front." However, there appears little that the United States can do to affect the fighting in Cambodia.

Moreover, the United States appears powerless to head off a possible Chinese-Vietnamese clash, which might in turn touch off direct involvement by the Soviet Union, with major international implications.

The United States' assessment has been that China was not likely to move precipitously against Hanoi, officials said. However, they added that this was based on the expectation that Vietnam would limit its drive in Cambaodia. With Hanoi "apparently engaged in a pincers movement toward Phnom Penh," an official said, earlier assumptions about Chinese counteraction may no longer be valid.

O.C. Soccer

LONDON (Reuter) — On a day when virtually the entire British soccer program was wiped out by wintry weather, Leicester City came up big in the third round of the English Football Association Cup.

The English League Second Division club chalked up a decisive 3-0 victory over Norwich City of the First Division.

A kickoff was possible in only five other matches in England — one of them was abandoned at half time — and no games were played in Scotland or Northern Ireland because of icy field conditions.

But at Leicester the pitch had been protected by a plastic sheet inflated with warm air and the match was never in danger.

"However, I am always amazed that the government has adopted the short-sighted attitude that by kicking the public sector there are some votes to be garnered."

Fryer said organized labor will be antagonized by the government's latest move but he hoped the labor federation will not overreact. He said the federation and its affiliates have adopted an education and advertising campaign to counter the Socred's actions and that campaign should go ahead in an orderly fashion.

The government's surprise move came the same day as organized labor was mapping out its campaign strategy in Burnaby.

Fryer chaired a morning meeting of a special public sector co-ordinating committee during which dates were set for protest rallies in nine communities, including Victoria, and a budget was set for the whole campaign.

The rally in Victoria will take place on the day of the opening of the spring session of the legislature, expected sometime in February.

The places and dates for the other rallies are: Nelson, Jan. 23; Cranbrook, Jan. 25; Kamloops, Jan. 30; Kelowna, Feb. 1; Nanaimo, Feb. 6; Prince George, Feb. 15; Terrace, Feb. 22, and Vancouver, March 8.

The campaign is expected to cost about $80,000.

comment on the situatuion until the government's position becomes clear.

Bennett has bluntly stated the government will not allow MacBlo to fall into the ownership of any company outside B.C.

"I don't want to criticize the government now," said Pearse.

"This is apparently a new position that the government's taking and it will be very interesting to see how it evolves."

He said in his 1976 report he recommended, among other things, that smaller companies be encouraged in B.C.'s foresty industry and any sale of MacBlo to CPI would work in the other direction.

"The concentration of control into fewer and larger companies is something the government should be concerned about and this present case would certainly concentrate the industry."

He added, however, that the ownership of MacBlo by a Canadian company outside the province would not make any obvious difference to B.C.'s forest industry.

"There's no reason to expect a shift in location of its head office . . . and I don't think it would make any obvious difference if CPI increased its present holdings to a majority position."

Last month Domtar Inc. made a bid for controlling interest in MB, and CPI soon got into the act with its own offer.

Signed Poster Urges Rights

By JOHN FRASER
The Globe and Mail

PEKING — A unique and important poster went up on Hsi Tan Democracy Wall today.

It announced the formation of a new human rights group (the Alliance for Human Rights), set forth demands on 19 points and, for the first time in the recent democracy movement, it was signed openly by its authors.

Not only that, but the group announced that some of its members would be at Hsi Tan and Tien An Men Square Sunday to answer questions, solicit criticisms and "debate the issue of human rights in China."

On six photocopy pages, the human rights poster is quite uncompromising and it has moved the Hsi Tan Democracy symposium up another notch.

In addition to demanding specific rights, it attacks "feudal idolatry" symbolized by Chairman Mao Tse-tung's body in the mausoleum in Tien An Men square. It suggests the body be removed and the building simply declared a memorial hall in his honor.

Democracy Wall in Peking continues to reflect ferment

— The release of all prisoners of conscience is demanded.

— An end to the discrepancy between the right to individual thought guaranteed in the constitution and orders for the exact opposite within the ranks of the Chinese Communist party.

— An end to feudal superstition and the removal of Chairman Mao's body from the mausoleum.

— In order for the next generation to avoid the suffering of the past 10 years and "those comedies and tragedies in Chinese life during this period," the people demand the right to elect all their state and party leaders.

— China presently allows only nominal representation of other political parties in some organizations but never in the National People's Congress (or parliament). Other parties must be allowed a greater voice as well as the right to have members serve in the Congress.

— The National People's Congress must end all secret meetings and the people should be given the right to attend its deliberations.

— Chinese people should have the right to enter freely foreign embassies in Peking and receive foreign correspondents. They also must have the right to publish abroad and obtain books and magazines from abroad.

— Abolish the system whereby citizens are forced to stay in one work unit all their lives.

— There should be freedom of movement, employment, dress and the right to use personal decisions in family planning.

—Unemployed citizens deserve the right of state aid and youths should not be forced to work in the countryside if they do not choose to.

— There must be an immediate end to the secret police apparatus.

IT'S TOTS VS. GIANTS

LONDON (AFP) — The giant British Petroleum and Shell Oil companies and the Ford Motor Company are preparing to do battle with three tiny children who on Friday won the legal right to proceed with legal action over the amount of lead in gasoline.

The three children, two aged two and the third aged one, live near a London motorway and have abnormally high levels of lead in their hair and blood, their parents say.

The parents are seeking damages on their behalf against the oil companies and Ford and against Associated Octel which processes lead for BP and Shell.

The Mayors and City of London court rejected the companies' argument that the case was frivolous.

Court registrar Andrew Myers said "there is an arguable case which could go forward on the grounds of public nuisance and negligence."

The four companies have not yet decided whether to appeal the ruling.

Shah Endorses Bakhtiar Gov't, Plans 'Vacation'

TEHRAN (AP) — Prime Minister-designate Shahpour Bakhtiar's new civilian government was endorsed by Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi today, and Bakhtiar told reporters afterward that "the shah will maintain his position as a constitutional monarch."

However, leaders of the opposition National Front from which Bakhtiar was expelled insist the shah must go and called a general strike Sunday to protest the Bakhtiar government and mourn the 1,500 or more Iranians slain in the year-long anti-shah rebellion.

The shah gave his endorsement to Bakhtiar's cabinet at a ceremony at the Nlavaran Palace.

The shah appeared composed and looked more confident than during his last appearance for photographers last week. The shah had returned Friday night from a two-day skiing holiday, his first venture out of Tehran in several months of bloody rioting against him.

The shah later announced he would take another vacation because "obviously after all these troubles I feel tired and I need a rest."

He said a regency council would be set up if he decided to spent his vacation abroad.

Meeting after the ceremony with Iranian reporters, Bakhtiar said, "The shah will reign constitutionally"—a reference to Bakhtiar's demand that the shah strictly limit himself to the powers spelled out for the monarch in the 1906 constitution.

None of the members of Bakhtiar's Cabinet announced so far has served as a minister in any previous Iranian government. Bakhtiar was a deputy minister during the reign of Mohammad Mossadeq from 1950 to 1953, and has promised that his new government will break with the corruption of past regimes.

Tehran was reported generally calm for a third straight day Friday as opposition forces waited to see how effective the Bakhtiar government would be.

FRANCE FACES MORE SNOW

LONDON (UPI) — Weathermen today predicted France would be hit with more of the snow and freezing temperatures that already have killed 132 persons from Scandinavia to the Mediterranean since New Year's Eve.

There were heavy snowfalls Friday in most of France, where the government ordered army helicopters, trucks and tanks to rescue snowbound families, sick persons and pregnant women and pull thousands of vehicles from snowdrifts.

At least 25 people were reported to have died in weather-related accidents in France.

Some 132 Europeans have died in cold-snap accidents since Dec. 31, the latest casualty a Frenchman swept overboard his 28-foot yacht as it tried to cross the English Channel from Dartmouth to St. Malo.

Two Killed As Storms Lash Calif.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Pacific storm that blew into Southern California early Friday killed two persons in traffic mishaps, caused mudslides and snarled traffic while dumping 12 inches of snow on the mountains and two inches of rain on the lowlands.

Roads were closed in many mountain areas and residents of coastal regions ravaged by last fall's brush fires feared tons of mud could slide from barren hills into their homes.

"How much rain we could get out of it is hard to say right now," said Jim Hammond of the National Weather Service Friday night. "Its movement is slower and a little weaker, but it could develop."

Slides closed portions of the Pacific Coast Highway in the Malibu area.

Blowing snow in higher elevations forced officials to issue travellers' advisories as 10 inches of snow and three- and four-foot drifts made driving impossible in some areas above 3,000 feet.

Interstate 5, the major link between Northern and Southern California, was closed through the Grapevine section, 75 miles north of Los Angeles, with blowing and drifting snow.

Red Cross disaster services were set up in Castaic to care for stranded motorists stuck in the storm.

Winds gusting to 40 mph caused officials to issue a small-craft advisory as five-foot waves churned over the Pacific into Mexico.

Smuggled Money Linked to Drugs

BLAINE, Wash. (AP) — Several Canadians were caught smuggling money across the United States-Canada border last month, and customs officers say it was to be used to buy narcotics.

"In general terms, almost all of the money that we seize here is involved with narcotic trafficking," said Leslie Kinney, U. S. Customs director here.

Kinney said it was difficult, however, specifically to tie the money and drugs together, and most of those arrested for currency violations are only charged with minor violations. The crime is a misdemeanor.

Kinney said that in the past year, $1 million to $1.5 million has been seized at the crossing, and estimated that represents only five to 10 per cent of the total actually smuggled.

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION 1979

The schedule below shows you what courses are being offered through the University of Victoria's DIVISION OF UNIVERSITY EXTENSION beginning in January 1979.

The term 'University Extension' will be new to many of you. It results from a reorganization within the University which has amalgamated the responsibilities for continuing education, summer session and interior programs into one administrative unit — the Division of University Extension. This will permit more effective coordination of the wide range of credit and non-credit courses and programs offered for part-time students throughout the province and within the Greater Victoria area.

This change in organizational structure reflects the fact that participation in educational activities throughout the life span is increasing at a remarkable rate. The demands on educational institutions to provide the programs, at the appropriate times and places, requires special planning and administrative procedures.

Our philosophy however, remains unchanged. It is simply to provide access to the knowledge resources of the University and to do that through programs that are appropriate to the needs and learning styles of adult students.

Most of our courses are planned to accommodate people who are working. People who want to explore their alternatives, expand their knowledge, add new dimensions to their leisure time. Interested people.

For a complete description of the courses listed below, consult your "Directory of Winter Courses 1979". Extra copies are available from us, or from the Public Libraries.

Why Did They Do It?

"There are irresponsible employers, and there are irresponsible unions," said Labor Minister Allan Williams last month when the legislature debated special legislation to end the six-week West Kootenay schools strike.

And irresponsible governments, one might add, after watching the provincial cabinet proclaim without warning the section of that bill that brings tens of thousands of public employees under the Essential Services Disputes Act.

Labor thinks it has been betrayed by Williams. Union leaders were wary when they saw the clause (section 11) affecting all employees of municipalities, regional districts, universities, community colleges, school boards and water improvement districts tacked onto the schools dispute bill. But the minister reassured them.

He left the distinct impression with the labor leaders watching from the legislature's public galleries that the government would not proclaim section 11 unless a serious crisis arose, and certainly not until labor department officials completed a careful study of the question of labor disputes in the various services that may be considered essential.

"If our research indicates that it is appropriate, we'll proclaim the bill; if it indicates that it's not, then it won't be proclaimed," he said then. Since no supporting evidence or research or even an explanatory statement accompanied the section's proclamation, it strongly suggests that the careful reassurances of a month ago weren't worth the breath used to make them. No wonder labor feels stung — in the absence of any serious public employee labor dispute anywhere in the province, when things are quiet everywhere, the government chooses to drop the hammer.

Why needlessly provoke the province's labor unions? Labor is sometimes suspicious of government, often with good reason, but if the government had determined on a course of action deliberately designed to whip up its latent feelings of paranoia and alienation, it would start with something like section 11.

Where are the Socreds today who in opposition a few years ago defended our civil liberties with stirring arguments against "blank cheque legislation" and "sweeping powers?" A bigger blank cheque with more sweeping powers than section 11 hasn't been passed in B.C. in some time.

Treat Them the Same

According to Victoria Mayor Mike Young, it's impossible for the relationship between city council and the chamber of commerce to be too close. Young intends to prove this during 1979 by sending his aldermen, on a rotating basis, to all the closed meetings of the chamber directors.

The mayor's intentions are undoubtedly good. Both he and the chamber have felt the need for closer communication between the city administration and the business community, and have seen areas in which the two groups could work together for the benefit of the city.

Nonetheless, it seems Young's method of improving communication will lead only to trouble for all concerned. If Young now thinks that he can't develop too close a relationship with the chamber, he will soon learn otherwise.

The difficulty with his approach is that the chamber is, essentially, a pressure group, a political pressure group. Outgoing chamber president John Ansell admitted as much last week when he urged the chamber to become more involved in political activity in favor of development. As a pressure group, it wants city council to take certain pro-development steps and to adopt certain pro-business attitudes.

In that role the chamber is — should be and must be — in conflict with many other groups that want council to take different steps and adopt different attitudes. Neighborhood associations, for instance, tend to be pressure groups against new apartment developments in their areas; park preservation associations might become pressure groups against a business move in favor of development along the waterfront.

These conflicts in priorities are in many ways central to a democratic community. The city is best served when council members listen carefully, in public, to the arguments of all pressure groups, then decide on the basis of their own logic and attitudes what position to take on each issue.

The city is not well served when the council adopts a bias towards any one of those groups or gives it treatment that could be seen as special by the rest of the community. The impression is created — justified or not — that council is more attuned to the special interests of one group than to the general interests of the whole community.

Mayor Young wouldn't dream of having his aldermen attend, on an official and regular basis, the closed-door directors' meetings of the Fairfield Community Association or the Beacon Hill Park Association. He should treat the Chamber of Commerce in the same way as any other pressure group.

France Giving Us a Hint?

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau says he isn't going to let his exclusion from this week's western summit conference in Guadeloupe bother him. It's hard to believe, however, that the Canadian government can be as unconcerned as it is letting on about being frozen out.

There was something strangely sumbolic about Trudeau's presence at the Jamaica summit last week, held in the foreshadow of the Guadeloupe meeting, and 800 miles westward across the sunny Caribbean.

The first was a well-intended though innocuous effort to put new life into the lagging effort for improved economic co-operation between the have nations and the have-nots. In addition to Trudeau, it attracted the leader of one major economic power, West Germany, and the leaders of a handful of middle and lesser-than-middle powers.

Japan, Italy Absent

The second is where the big boys — those representing nations with economic power and influence — were heading. Foregathered in Guadeloupe will be President Carter of the United States; French President Valery Giscard D'Estaing, the host; British Prime Minister James Callaghan, and German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

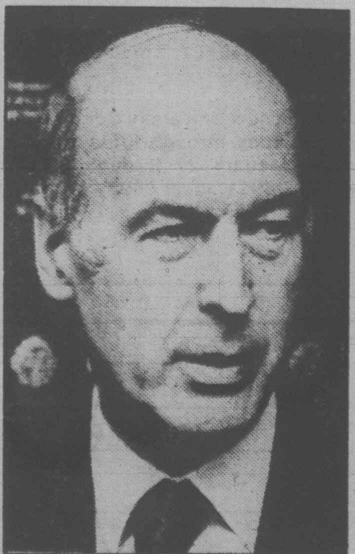
A news report from London the other day said these three had "privately expressed annoyance" at being excluded. The report could not be confirmed here. An external affairs department spokesman said he had checked and could find no record on anyone anywhere making a complaint on behalf of Canada. He said it would be a "complete contradication" of the stand taken by Trudeau himself if some Canadian diplomat had made a complaint.

Indeed it would. The prime minister at his most recent Ottawa press conference went to some lengths to dispel the notion that Canada deserves a place at western summit conferences. There was no reason for this country to feel either slighted or offended at not receiving an invitation to Guadeloupe.

It was "fortunate" that Canada had been invited to the three western economic summits held in Puerto Rico, London and Bonn, after being excluded be President Giscard from the initial one at Rambouillet, France. The implication seemed to be that Canada should be thankful for small favors.

The prime minister protested his lack of bitterness too much; he was altogether too sporting about the whole affair. He could have expressed at least a twinge of annoyance, if for no other reason that to let other governments know that Canada doesn't appreciate being left out of such meetings, and would rather that it didn't become a habit.



GISCARD D'ESTAING
: you snub us, and vice versa

It is not a question of whether Canada should feel slighted or offended. It is a matter of protecting our interests. It is good for Canada to be represented when the heavies get together to talk about the momentous issues of war and peace and economic growth. The point is almost beyond argument.

Various explanations have been offered for the restrictive guest list at Guadeloupe. Trudeau himself has said the meeting was designed to enable Carter to get to know his European counterparts a little better; he had been told by "at least one of the participants" that the conference was actually Carter's idea. This doesn't make an awful lot of sense, since the president was already quite familiar with the European participants.

Another explanation advanced is that Carter wanted to discuss the U.S.-Soviet talks on strategic arms limitation with the U.S.'s leading nuclear partners.

But Germany is not a nuclear weapons power. And France is not even a member of NATO's integrated defence structure. Besides, the scope of the conference has now been widened to include economic issues.

The lesson that comes through quite clearly is that when France organizes one of these major western summits, as at Guadeloupe, Canada does not get invited whereas when one of the other powers is in charge, Canada does get invited.

Compulsive Need

Could it be that France is trying to tell Canada something? Canada has long adamantly opposed separate participation by Quebec in a proposed international francophone commonwealth. France maintains that Quebec should have a place at the table. Because of the disagreement, the whole plan is now in limbo. Perhaps Giscard d'Estaing is trying to tell the Canadian government that blackballing techniques can be turned against the blackballers.

It is much more instructive however to look at the Guadeloupe affair in an historical perspective, relating it back to President Charles de Gaulle's persistent efforts — snubbed by the U.S. and Britain — to establish an inner directorate of NATO to order the affairs of the non-communist world. The French seem to have a compulsive need to try to assert themselves in this way.

Canada opposed this plan when it was first advanced in the early 1960s, and it should be doing everything in its power now to oppose its latter-day variations.

Reid Site Development: Another Way to Go?

In recent weeks talk has begun again about the future of the Reid site on the Inner Harbor. Plans are apparently under way for a convention centre to be built privately plus some other development, still not made public. This is the last in a long series of proposals for the coveted waterfront property, considered to be one of the most valuable sites in Victoria. From the time that the provincial government bought the land to save it from the massive highrise development proposed by John Reid, there have been suggestions that it be used for greenspace, for a maritime museum, for an arts centre, for a trade and exhibition centre, for a food market.

As provincial and city officials ponder further on its fate, they could do worse than to examine a waterfront redevelopment that has taken place in London. Both the administrative process employed and the final results achieved might be of interest to Victorians.

The redevelopment has taken place at St. Katharine's docks, one of the oldest of London's docks on the Thames, right next to the Tower of London — undoubtedly a prime site for a tourist attraction. The docks were closed in the 1950s when more and more shipping moved further down the Thames to new container ports. By the late 1960s, little remained on the site except the piers themselves and vacant, rundown, 19th century warehouses.

When the decision was made that the docks should be redeveloped for other uses, the Port of London Authority sold them to the Greater London council. The council consolidated a 25-acre parcel of land on the site.

It then held a competition among private developers, asking them to submit plans for redevelopment. This is a process quite similar to the one used by Victoria MLA Sam Bawlf in calling for bids on the Reid site property. The difference, however, is that Bawlf insisted the bids be for his food-market proposal with the result that no entries were received; the Greater London council opened the competition to all bids, agreeing to award development rights to the company that produced the most imaginative, suitable plan for the area — as well as one that would make money for the council, for local business and for the developer himself.

In 1969, the competition ended with the winner being one of Britain's biggest development companies. The company, Taylor Woodrow, received a 125-year lease on the land and began to implement its 20-year plan for redevelopment.

Now, 10 years later, work is more than half done. The cluster of derelict warehouses that remain in one corner of the property form a stark contrast to the lively, busy shops and walkways around the piers. They are valuable to show what progress has already been made.

The first phase of the development was the building of a hotel on one corner of the property. It is, unfortunately, in the award-winning style of the early 1970s — gray concrete from foundations to roof — but it manages to remain relatively unobtrusive for all that.

The piers themselves have been redeveloped. On one side is a private boat basin, one of the most popular places for mooring in London. On the other side is one of the key tourist attractions — a collection of old boats and ships, all beautifully restored. The showpiece of the museum is a sailing ship, the Kathleen and May, the last trading ship to run between London and England's west country. The collection also includes other old sailing ships and an old lighthouse ship. The museum has been developed by the British Maritime Trust in conjunction with the developer.

Already a number of shops and restaurants have been developed in some of the old warehouses, all restored to their original, very attractive, interiors. A pub which had had a warehouse built right around it has been patiently excavated and restored to its original use.

Now under restoration is another of the old warehouses which will become a world trade centre, essentially a larger version of the trade and exhibition centre once proposed for the Reid site. Luxury service apartments are being built in another warehouse for businessmen who will come to use the centre, now operating out of a nearby office building.

Yet another part of the development, on the waterfront but farthest from the hotel and busy tourist area, is the construction of 300 units of public housing. It is entirely apartment and townhouse development, but includes much green space and will be managed by the private developer to ensure that standards are maintained.

Many Londoners believe it was this part of the development which gave Taylor Woodrow the final edge in the competition. The company notes that its existence on the site will mean that the development is a 24-hour community instead of only a daytime development. It is also enthusiastic about the mix that will exist between the residents of public housing, the businessmen in the luxury suites, and the tourists in the hotel.

Since no commitments have yet been made on the Reid site, it's not too late for Bawlf to try the London process. A development as imaginative, well-designed and financially successful as St. Katharine's docks would be nothing but a long-term benefit to Victoria. — B.McL.

Marina Opposed

Many months ago, 1,500 people signed a petition opposing Victoria Ald. Bob Wright's plan to develop North Saanich (Bosun's) marina. Since then a planning committee has been studying his plans and has now come up with its recommendations (two members opposed), and this is to be debated by council on Monday.

The committee recommends some cluster housing and marina developement, including dredging up the Inlet, thus ruining the waterfowl feeding grounds.

Why should Mr. Wright be allowed to do any of this? It would only ruthlessly lay waste an area of natural beauty and interest which is irreplaceable.

In view of the very probable new marina, to go in at the bottom of Beacon Avenue, any more boat moorage on Tsehum Harbor is now not needed. The present facilities for hauling out and repairing boats are quite inadequate now for the number of boats already here (a wait of six weeks to two months to get hauled out is usual).

If any of you who are opposed to this development, would be willing to say so to the North Saanich councillors, while there is still time, please write or phone the members of the council and show your concern. I will gladly give you names and phone numbers. Call 656-1988. — Hilary Swinburne, 2175 Curteis Road.

Esperanto

In your Dec. 28 issue there was an article on Esperanto originally published in the London Observer (Esperanto: The Bionic Language?). How it escaped the hawk eye of the Observer editor and the eagle eye of the Times editor remains a mystery.

The article has so many errors that it would be impossible to deal with all of them in the space you are likely to allow me. Therefore I'll be content with mentioning the two most obvious:

☐ The writer — in two places — laments the fact that the centennial of Esperanto has passed unnoticed. Fact: It has not occurred; it will take place in 1987. (Somewhere in his article the writer says, "The first grammar . . . was published in 1887.") Faulty arithmetic!

☐ The writer says that the international headquarters are in London, "perhaps as a hopeful relic of an almost universal empire." Fact: They are in Rotterdam. Faulty geography!

Compared with his logic, the writer's arithmetic and geography are first rate! However, to deal with these issues would take too much space. If any reader wishes to know more about Esperanto, he should write to "Esperanto," Box 2067, Sidney, B.C., V8L 3S3, or he may phone me at 642-3963. — Maurice Tozer, Box 820, Sooke.

While not wishing to be identified with those zealots who leap to the defence of the monarchy at the slightest provocation, I cannot but express surprise at Environment Minister Rafe Mair's objection to Lieutenant-Governor Henry Bell-Irving's statement on national unity (Heat's On Lt.-Gov. Again; Times, Dec. 28). If the monarchy is not to be identified with the preservation of the state as the sovereign representative of all of the people, then I cannot think what its role might be. Based upon your report of Bell-Irving's speech, the petition he has urged us to sign would appear sufficiently non-political to justify a lieutenant-governor's backing. It doesn't, after all, state the terms by which we expect to retain Quebec within Confederation but only that we would like Quebec to stay.

Why the minister would feel compelled to comment on such an innocuous statement is difficult to understand. Is it possible that he seized upon the lieutenant-governor's speech as an opportunity to obtain cheap publicity? If this is the case then the public would be justified if not in doubting the man's sincerity, then at least his sense of judgment. — H. A. Porteous, 1764A Tudor Avenue.

$1.49 Christmas

My New Year Resolution for 1979: To put Christ back in Christmas! No Christmas gift should cost more than $1.49.

All the expensive gifts could be given at birthdays — graduation — anniversaries, etc.

This way everybody could enjoy Christmas without going into debt. Happy New Year everyone! — E. Johansen, 913 Wollaston Street.

You Can Find Scraps in Cans

By Mohammed Halif (15) of Bombay

I'm Mohammed Halif. I'm maybe fifteen. I live here (Bombay) on my own.

I look after myself now. When I first came I was just a kid. I came on the train. I was frightened when I got off the train on my own. Bombay is big.

I just wandered around for a while. Then I met Barbat. He was on his own too. He was older than me, and he showed me a few things. I watched him beg and I copied what he did. Sometimes we beg for money. Other times we begged for scraps of food from the cafes.

He was a good friend. If I didn't get enough to buy food Barbat gave me some of his. Once I got very sick and Barbat took me to St. George's near Victoria Street Station. It's a free hospital by the government and I got well again. Barbat always knew what to do.

Barbat made one mistake though. He had a good business. He had a shoeshine box on VT Station. But then he threw it in. He said it was better to do bootlegging. He sold me his shoeshine box for half the price. I paid him as much as I could each day until it was mine. I earn 3 rupees a day with it. Sometimes 6. Barbat wanted more. He said he could get twice as much bootlegging, being a lookout, running messages and booze delivering. He got booze free as well. The cops caught him. Took him away. I never saw him again.

I once had a dog. I loved that dog. It came everywhere with me. It really liked me. It's always followed me around, everywhere with me. One day it ran across the road and a car went over it. I cried. I was only a kid then.

I had something else. I once bought a toy train from a man selling things on the pavement. The next day some bigger boys beat me and took it. I had some money left and they took that too. That's the trouble when you are too small to look after yourself. They wouldn't try it now.

I'm still shoeshining. There are eight of us with spots at VGT Station. We sit banging our box and shouting 'p'leece, p'leece.' I get 15 paise (20 cents) for an ordinary polish, 30 paise if cream. When there's no business we mess around, have a good joke, smoke bidies. If the cops come we scarper quick. The cops don't need anything to take you. If they have had a bad day, if they have not had enough people in their book, they pick up a few street boys to fill it up.

One time I got picked up. I went to Dongri. That's the worst place you can ever go. All the boys will tell you that. (Dongri is the children's jail in Bombay. Originally built for 80 prisoners, it now houses 400 children.) It happened soon after I came. I got picked up. I hate Dongri. The monitors are bastards. They beat me with bars. All we did was marching and school work. From Dongri you go to court. The magistrate sent me to a home. I hated that so I ran away. They never found me. They never will. There are too many boys for them to find one. So they don't bother to look.

They'll never get me again. I know too much now. One way to stay out of Dongri is to wear good clothes if you can. An Arab gave me a shirt and trousers, they are good cloth. They got dirty so I took them to the laundry. I need 4 rupees (50 cents) to get them back. When I have saved 5 rupees I will go and get the good clothes back and go to the public baths and spend 1 rupee on a proper bath with soap and towels. Then I'll look good and cops won't bother me. Other people treat you better if you are well dressed. My clothes are not so good at the moment.

If I get any extra I go to the cinema. The guy at the desk treats you better if your clothes are good. Sometimes I pretend to be one of the stars I see in the film. It's good fun.

I come from Nagpur. My mother lives there with my two little sisters and my older brother. I send home money when I can. She does not live with my father because he used to beat her. She does washing which is quite good work. She lives in a hut with two rooms with my sisters and brother. A couple of times I have been home. I get the train at VT Station about ten o'clock at night and I get to Nagpur at eight o'clock in the morning. I never pay on the train. It's easy to dodge the ticket man. The first time I went, my mother was thrilled, but my sisters didn't know who I was. I stayed two or three days. My mother didn't mind when I left. There isn't room for me at home and she can't feed me. Besides, she knows I can look after myself.

I did go to school for a while when I was a kid. But my mother didn't get enough money to buy food every day so I left to do washing dishes in the cafe to help get money. That was before I left home. I left because of my brother. He used to beat me a lot. I didn't mind too much. But one time I did. In the cafe I collected the dishes to wash them. I dropped the whole tray and they all broke. The man wouldn't pay me for three months. I had to tell my brother. He burnt my back with red hot irons. I've still got the marks. Look. That finished me. I ran to the train.

I remember I beat up my little sister once. She cried. I remember that sometimes. But I know I can't do anything about it now.

It's hard, especially when it's cold. Boys have a good time together. I will be happy when the monsoon over. Then I go back to shoeshining. Now I am cleaning taxis. Mud gets all over you. You get filthy. I get washed at the street taps. Shoeshining is better. Sometimes no one wants shoes shining and I can't buy anything to eat. But you can always find scraps in garbage cans and drink tea that people leave over at cafes on the road. Just now I am sleeping on landing of the building at the VT Station.

I sleep anywhere sheltered, under a bridge or a bus stand. In the monsoons I sleep on this landing. An empty garage is good.

If I get extra money I give it to the paan-wallah. He keeps money for boys. I can get it back when I need it. I am saving. I am saving up with him at the moment to get my good clothes back from laundry. When I'm older I'm going into business. I'll sell fruit and vegetables. You buy fruit for 20 rupees. It's good business. I'll be a good business man because I have learnt to look after myself.

Life in Rubbish

By Keshar (9) of Nagpur, India

I am looking through all this rubbish every day. It is my work. I am 9 years old. I look for glass, paper, old iron things, plastic sandals. My brothers showed me how. They have done it for long time. They know what is good for selling. I sell to man who comes. I give money to my father and keep 3 paise (4 cents) for myself.

I don't like this work. You work in sun all day. You get dirty. You get sick easy. There is no other work to get money for family. I have four brothers, all sorting through this rubbish.

I eat twice. Chapatis and potatoes in morning. Chapatis and cereal at night.

My mother died two months ago. She was sick. She had TB. She had no sisters. My father was with her. She had no doctor. No medicine at all. She died at home.

We sleep outside. If it rains we sleep inside hut. Roof leaks onto sacking. We put tins to collect water.

I would like to go to school. I like to see small girls going to school with books and slate. I don't know why I want to go with them.

We get water from tap. There is queue every morning. We have to wait one hour. We get one pitcher of water. We carry it home and we bathe. When I finish working at night there is only water left for hands and face. So we stay dirty from rubbish at night. These are only clothes I wear.

Life will be better when I am older. I will work on building site and earn money. I would like to have a house and two sets of clothes.

'I Would Rather Be at School'

By Alvaro Paez (14) of Ubate Valley, Colombia

I work on this farm. I think I'm about 14. I like doing most of the jobs, well all of the jobs that I'm asked to do. I prefer to be at school to working here, but the family needs the money so I have to work. I work from 7 o'clock in the morning here until 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

When I grow up I really wouldn't like to carry on working here, I'd much prefer to work in the town, it is much more interesting in the town.

When I left the school it was obvious I had to leave because I couldn't afford the money for the books. There were lots of other children in much the same position, they had to leave school too. But now that I'm working, that means that my other brothers and sisters can stay at school because I can earn money to help them. Now my other brothers and sisters will be able to stay at school much longer than I did, and I am pleased about that.

As for me, it just wasn't possible for me to stay. The only money that comes into our house is what I earn here at the vegetable garden and what my mother earns milking the cows at the hacienda. I earn here 300 pesos ($10) in a week, my mother earns about 150 pesos a week ($5). There is also some kind of subsidy which the hacienda owner gives, which also helps us to buy food and to buy books for the other children who are at school.

I have to work here every day of the week because somebody has to feed the rabbits and milk the cows. The time I get off to play is after 4 o'clock when I go up to the school and play football with all the other kids who have just come out of the school. I would have liked to still have been at school with them. I much prefer to have gone on studying. Mathematics was my favorite subject.

Usually, first thing in the morning I milk the cows. It usually takes me about 2 hours, so I am milking the cows from 7 o'clock in the morning till 9 o'clock. Then it takes usually about 15 minutes to fill up the water tanks, for the cows to drink. I have to go down into the drainage channel with the bucket and fill up the oil drums. After that it takes about 5 minutes to put the cows out to pasture. Then we come and give milk to the calves, which maybe takes another 5 minutes or so. Then I wash out the bucket I'd been using to feed the calves with, and then load up the donkey with the milk cans and take them as far as the bridge for the truck to collect. The next thing would be to feed the rabbits. After that I do things around the vegetable garden here, tidying up and weeding and doing the little jobs that need to be done until it was time to milk the cows again. That's 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Milking the cows again is the last job of the day, and after I have done that and sent the milk away, then I am more or less finished and some days I go over to the school to play, some days I just go straight home.

My father has gone so my mother is in charge and she has most of the responsibility, but I try to help her as much as is possible.

Chasing Gulls For the 'List'

After several years of successfully fighting off the inroads of the Life List bug, 1978 saw me succumb to its insidious grasp.

Not that I haven't always kept a Life List — a list of all the different kinds of birds I've seen since I started the birding game — it's just that twice last year I went out to see a bird with no other object in mind than adding its name to my list.

The first time was back in October when a couple of Sharp-tailed Sandpipers — wanderers from Siberia — visited a reservoir in Central Saanich. Getting them for my list was like shooting fish in a barrel; I was told where they were, went out, looked in the right direction, and my Life List moved up a notch. Not much sense of achievement in that.

Something the same should have applied when I went after number 110 on my Life List — Thayer's Gull. Finding one of these should have been a cinch, just a matter of sitting on Clover Point until one came along — or so I thought.

Thus it was that December 9 found me looking over the offerings of Clover Point, with Thayer's Gull foremost in my thoughts.

Why December 9? Only because I'd seen a Herring Gull at Esquimalt Lagoon that morning and, flushed with success — Herring Gulls aren't that easy to identify either — I felt I was ready for Thayer's.

According to the record, Victoria's waters — on most days — will produce half-a-dozen kinds of gulls. On a good day that number can be doubled. Not the least of these is a largish chap that could be a cross between a Glaucous-winged Gull — our commonest gull — and a Herring Gull — one of the lesser lights in our gull world. We know this chap as Thayer's Gull.

For years, Thayer's Gull was figured to be little more than a kind of Herring Gull. Then, a couple of years ago, the powers that be — in this case the American Ornithologists Union (A.O.U.) — decreed that, henceforth and forthwith, Thayer's Gull would be elevated to a full species.

Their reasons for the change, as far as the average birder is concerned, were rather academic. But the result of the A.O.U. action was to up the Life Lists of thousands of birders. Mine was not among them; I'd never been able to pick out what I thought was a Thayer's Gull despite the fact that local birders had been turning them up by the dozens for years.

So, with this in mind, I was taking on the gulls of Clover Point — a place, I was assured, that abounded in Thayer's Gulls.

The task should have been easy. I was looking for a gull with black wing tips (Glaucous-wings have grey wing tips) and brown eyes (Herring Gulls' are yellow). Otherwise, the bird of my quest would look a lot like either a Glaucous-winged or a Herring Gull.

Well, after an hour of peering unashamedly into the eyes of what seemed like more than a hundred gulls with black wing tips, and finding that they all had brown eyes, I began to suspect a deep and sinister plot. I might have picked out one or two Thayer's Gulls at the Point on most days, but every one I looked at seemed to fill the bill. There had to be something wrong.

It seemed like time to turn to an expert — or two.

Putting my problem to Mike Shepard and Wayne Campbell — both of the Provincial Museum here in Victoria, and both with a more than passing acquaintance with the subject of gulls and their identification — I came away more confused than before.

So, to similarities with Glaucous-winged Gulls and Herring Gulls I can now add others that make a Thayer's Gull a little like a Mew Gull, but none of them gets me any closer to number 110 on my Life List.

U.S. Moves to Stop Franchise Falsehoods

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has taken steps to remove some of the risks from franchise investments.

New rules to take effect July 21 stipulate that persons selling franchises may not lie about or otherwise misrepresent how much money the investor is likely to make.

Franchisors and franchise brokers will be required to give their customers a detailed disclosure statement 10 days before a deal becomes final.

The statement will have to outline the firm's legal and bankruptcy history, its business experience, its financial record and the number of franchises and company-owned outlets involved in the business.

Car Sales In Canada Near Magic Million

Canadian Press

Canadians bought 991,414 cars in calendar year 1978, narrowly missing the magic one million mark for the second year in a row.

In 1977, industry car sales were 987,935.

Year-end figures by the Big Four auto makers show that the industry leader, General Motors of Canada Ltd., and Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. had their best-ever calendar year sales for cars and trucks in 1978.

The figures also showed that only GM reported an increase in car sales in December compared with the same month a year ago with Chrysler Canada Ltd. car sales down nearly 12 per cent for that month.

At the close of 1978, GM held 45 per cent of the market, Ford 21.4 per cent, Chrysler 18 per cent and American Motors (Canada) Ltd. 2.1 per cent. Foreign-sponsored imports such as the Ford Fiesta and Chrysler Colt shared the rest of the market on an equal basis.

Both GM and Ford officials were delighted with their 1978 performance.

"We are both pleased with and proud of the many records achieved by General Motors dealers during the exciting year just ended," said Richard W. Colcomb, GM vice-president and general sales manager.

Kenneth W. Harrigan, Ford vice-president and general manager, said he "could not think of a more appropriate time to achieve that remarkable performance than the present when we are celebrating our 75th year in Canada."

With its 1978 performance, Ford increased its share of both the car and truck market for the second consecutive year.

For 1978, GM dealers delivered a record 585,282 cars and trucks, surpassing last year's sales record of 537,398 by 47,884 or 8.9 per cent.

"Total vehicle deliveries in 1978 extended GM's string of record-breaking calendar years to six," said Colcomb.

Car sales of 418,980 were 8.3 per cent higher than the record of 387,002 set last year. Truck sales of 166,302 exceeded the former calendar year record of 150,396 in 1977.

For December, GM sold 34,356 cars and trucks, 7.4 per cent higher than a year ago. Car sales in December came to 24,629, or 12.3 per cent higher than the same month a year ago. Truck deliveries of 9,727 were off by 318 for the month.

Ford's combined car and trucks sales in 1978 totalled 335,797, up five per cent from 319,770 sold in 1977 and 1.3 per cent above the record of 331,497, set in 1974. In 1978, Ford sold 212,342 cars and 123,455 trucks.

Most of Ford's surge came from sales of the redesigned Ford LTD and Mercury Marquis, its top sellers.

In December, Ford sold 10,872 cars, 10.5 per cent below the year-ago total of 12,148 while truck sales of 7,396 were one per cent off the December, 1977 total of 7,476.

Chrysler's 1978 car sales totalled 178,609, off 10.8 per cent from the 200,284 sold in 1977. It sold 47,476 trucks last year, off two per cent from the 48,454 sold in 1977.

In December, Chrysler dealers delivered 8,933 cars, off 11.6 per cent from the 10,101 sold the previous year. Truck sales in December came to 2,645, up 5.5 per cent from 2,508 in 1977.

AMC dealers came up with 20,416 cars sold in 1978 compared with 21,346 the previous year. Jeep vehicle sales established a record of 7,512 compared with the previous record of 6,961, set in 1977.

In December, AMC sold only 1,001 cars compared with 1,336 sold the same month a year ago. Jeep sales for the month came to 515, a record.

In the U.S. although car sales began to slow as 1978 ended, the biggest auto firm, General Motors, said it believes the overall strong sales trend last year will continue in 1979.

And one foreign car firm, Volkswagen, said its sales for the first time ever exceeded those of American Motors Corp., the fourth largest U.S. auto-maker.

Export Subsidy On Way Out?

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States and its major trading partners are ready to sign agreements which would remove many export subsidies and allow foreign contractors to compete for national government contracts, documents obtained by Reuters news agency show.

One document is a letter by President Carter to be delivered to congressional leaders in which he says the so-called Tokyo Round trade liberalization negotiations in Geneva are rapidly approaching a successful conclusion.

Carter said in the letter he intends to enter into several international agreements involving indirect barriers to freer world trade.

The second document, dealing with draft codes to implement the president's decision, would ban agricultural export subsidies which displace exports of other countries and artificially cut established world prices.

Westinghouse Seeks Price-Fix Damages

PITTSBURGH (Reuter) — Westinghouse Electric Corp. said Friday it will seek damages against Rio Algom Ltd. of Toronto and eight other companies it accused of price-fixing after winning a default judgment Thursday.

The corporation has filed suit against 12 foreign and 17 U.S. producers charging them with violating U.S. anti-trust laws by conspiring to fix the price and supply of uranium and force middlemen like Westinghouse out of the market.

Default judgments were awarded by U.S. District Court Judge Prentic Marshall against Rio Algom and eight other companies based in South Africa, Australia and Britain which failed to answer the charges.

Westinghouse official Ronald Field said lawyers were still studying the judgment to decide how best to follow it through.

He said the judgment, which Westinghouse called a major victory, entitled the company to seek damages, which meant it could move to seize assets of the nine foreign uranium producers in the U.S.

"At this stage we don't even know what assets any of them might have in the U.S.," Field said.

The anti-trust case against the U.S. producers is not expected to come to trial for two more years, officials said.

Westinghouse has been sued for failing to fulfil contracts to supply nuclear fuel to customers in the U.S. The company blamed a cartel for causing a shortage of the uranium it needs to make nuclear fuel.

Besides Rio Algom, the foreign producers held in default were Anglo-American Corp. and Nuclear Fuels Corp. of South Africa, Conzinc RioTinto, Mary Kathleen Uranium, Pancontinental Mining and Queensland Mines of Australia and Rio-Tinto Zinc and RTZ Services of Britain.

Credit Figures Indicate Spurt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer credit expanded by $4.10 billion in November, the largest increase since June, the Federal Reserve Board reported Friday.

The November figure was up $733 million from the revised October level of $3.37 billion, the nation's central bank said.

The November credit expansion was the largest since June's $4.21 billion, but fell short of the record $4.28 billion set in May.

The average annual rate of growth during November was 19 percent, higher than the combined October and November levels of 17 percent, the Fed said.

Consumers took out a record $26.21 billion in new loans during November, an increase $456 million from the previous month. They paid off $22.12 billion in old debts, a decrease of $269 million from October.

During the six-month period from May to November, credit increased by 9 percent and debt repayment rose by 12 percent at an annual rate.

CP Air Eyes Run To China

VANCOUVER (CP) — CP Air wants to renew discussions with Chinese airline officials to establish a scheduled air service between Canada and China, a CP Air official said Friday.

H. D. Cameron, vice-president of administration and public affairs, said in an interview that CP Air has asked for discussions with China's civil aviation administration (CAAC) to establish a scheduled service.

In the meantime, two CP Air sales officials are travelling to Peking next week to discuss possible tours in China with Luxingshe, the Chinese government tourist agency. The sales officials also will inquire about the timing for meetings between CP Air and CAAC.

The start of a scheduled service will depend largely on the priority China gives to tourism—particularly from Canada—and the rate at which it can develop its tourist facilities, Cameron said.

He added that the CAAC director-general reacted favorably to scheduled-service proposals raised by Ian Sinclair, CP Air chairman, during a tour of China last October.

"He (the director-general) said he thought it was time for discussions of such a service to begin," Cameron said.

China Trade Race Seen

RICHMOND (CP) — The new diplomatic relations between China and the United States will mean "keener competition" for Canadian exporters with Americans, Jack Horner, federal industry, trade and commerce minister, said Friday.

Horner added, however, that if the Chinese want to modernize quickly, "its going to cost them a lot of money" and they could use Canadian expertise to develop their infant oil and gas industry, the source of important foreign revenues.

"We believe we can sell them a great deal of technical know-how and the machinery to go with it," he told a news conference.

Horner and about 40 senior business executives, government officials and reporters leave today aboard a Canadian Forces Boeing 707 for a two-week trip to Asia to promote Canadian technology and goods. They will spend one week in China, where Horner will meet with Chinese trade minister Li Chiang and another week in Indonesia and the Philippines.

Canada sold $369 million worth of goods to China in 1977 — mainly wheat — while importing $82 million worth of goods that included food and clothing. Horner said earlier that Canadian exports could grow to $1 billion.

Exports in 1977 to Indonesia were $66 million and to the Philippines $76 million. Imports were $24 million and $39 million, respectively.

Horner was doubtful that the wide trade imbalance between Canada and China could be rectified. Canada, however, has the expertise and equipment to help the Chinese develop their natural resourses, increasing their exports and foreign trade, he said.

Petro-Canada and Ranger Oil (Canada) Ltd. of Calgary, for example, hoped to sign an oil development agreement with the Chinese in the near future.

He added that Canada's Export Development Corporation is prepared to give the Chinese long-term credit to help them get established.

The Chinese had six or seven recent trade missions to Canada and delegates studied everything from the food industry to aircraft production.

The Canadians hope that this mission will show the Chinese the importance Canada attaches to strengthening trade with Peking.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 21-year-old man charged with attempted murder in connection with an attack on a four-year-old girl last month in her Esquimalt apartment home was denied bail Friday in provincial court by Judge Blake Allan.

Kenneth Andrew Burgess, of 1180 Colville, also is charged with being unlawfully at large in a dwelling house other than his own.

The preliminary hearing into the charges is to start March 5.

Three men were ordered to stand trial on charges of second degree murder laid in connection with the July 21 death of George Preston Gus, 37, of Port Alberni whose body was found about a block from the Victoria city police station.

Judge Harold Alder made the ruling Friday morning after 12 days of testimony which began Nov. 14.

Outside the court crown prosecutor Richard Law said he expected the three accused — George Alexander, Charlie, 24, Alfred Eugene Johnny, 32, both of 639 Constance, and William Charles August of no fixed address — would appear before the March assizes.

A Saanich mother of four was fined $150 after she pleaded guilty to a charge of theft under $200 laid in connection with an Oct. 4 investigation at a suburban department store where she was employed.

The court was told that Emma Calvori, 43, of 1819 San Juan, while working as a cashier at K-Mart was observed pocketing $2.36 which a security company employee posing as a customer in too much of a hurry to wait for a receipt had given her for a purchase.

Three teenagers who helped themselves to gas at a Saanich construction site were told they got lighter sentences because a fourth teenager who pleaded guilty along with them was appearing in court for the first time.

"Three of you have criminal records and you might expect a more severe sentence but I'm going to treat you all the same," said Judge Allan before fining Thomas Beck, 17, of 35 Lurline, Richard Maddocks, 18, of 671 Camelia, David Nightingale, 18, of 543 Carnation, and Dale McDermid, 19, of 3085 Albany, each $50.

Leslie Tonge, 58, of 7984 Lochside, was given a suspended sentence and six months probation to include alcohol counselling after he pleaded guilty to a charge of theft under $200 laid in connection with a Sept. 22 incident at a grocery store.

The court was told that Tonge was observed leaving the store at 1860 Island Highway with two packets of meat valued at $5.72 for which he did not pay.

The following were fined for drinking and driving related charges:

Simon LeBel, 33 of Cap Rouge Quebec, $600 plus six months probation; Allan Taylor, 18, of 206-1314 Esquimalt, $350 plus six months probation to include impaired drivers course; Brian Young, 26, of 1738 Haultain $600 plus six months probation to include impaired drivers course.

Camosun neighbors rally against parking lot proposal

Jan. 15 Meeting to Hear Camosun Parking Protest

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

Residents protesting Camosun College's proposal to turn a wooded area behind Lansdowne campus into a parking lot will meet Jan. 15 with college principal Lloyd Morin.

Morin, who replaced Dr. Grant Fisher as Camosun principal this month, said Thursday the meeting was called to explain to upset residents the college's plans to put parking facilities on four wooded acres along Foul Bay Road.

Camosun was recently granted use of the four acres by the B.C. Buildings Corporation, which holds a 20-acre parcel behind the campus.

Morin said most of the opposition is due to lack of information and incorrect assumptions on the part of the residents.

Some of the residents saw surveyors marking trees and thought they were going to be cut down, when in fact they were being marked for preservation, Morin said.

The meeting will also be attended by architect Terry Williams and project manager Peter Rinfret who will talk about the entire $6 million building project Camosun hopes to start this month.

College council chairman Janet Baird said Friday she also plans to attend the meeting.

Baird said it's urgent the college get underway as soon as possible with the building project, which includes a 97,000-square-foot multipurpose building and renovations to existing structures.

A master plan drawn up by the project manager sets mid-January as the start-up date with completion of the entire project scheduled for the end of 1980.

Nothing can begin until the parking site is settled. Council discarded an earlier plan to put the lot at the corner of Foul Bay and Lansdowne Roads when residents objected.

"People are bound to object no matter where we put it," Baird said.

She said the four acres is the only feasible location for parking and forms an integral part of the master plan.

College officials met Thursday with the public works committee of Oak Bay council to discuss the parking lot proposal.

The four acres lie inside municipal boundaries and Camosun needs Oak Bay's approval before it can go ahead with construction.

Baird and Morin said the college is satisfied with its presentation and that it received "no negative feedback" from the committee.

The meeting will take place at 8 p.m. at Lansdowne campus. Morin said a room for the meeting has not yet been selected by signs will be posted on campus to direct the public.

New Bid To Settle Press Row

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Newspaper Guild has invited an international union troubleshooting team here in a move to break a deadlock in the two-month Pacific Press strike-lockout.

The guild said Thursday that Chuck Dale, an international guild representative, and Allan Heritage, a Canadian vice-president of the International Typographers Union, are expected to arrive here later this month.

Jim Young, guild executive secretary, said the team, with members from both unions and formed to explore a proposed merger of the two unions, was involved in settling the recent newspaper strike in New York.

Pacific Press Ltd., which prints the morning Province and evening Sun, has been shut down since Nov. 1, when two of six unions went on strike.

A press manning clause, which determines how many pressmen are on a given shift, has been a stumbling block in negotiations.

Construction 'Strangled'

VANCOUVER (UPC) — Red tape is strangling the construction industry and causing five—year delays in major projects, a construction association official told the provincial government Friday.

"Unless something is done by the provincial bureaucracy to change the situation, the industry will be damaged to such an extent that it will take years to recover," said British Columbia Construction Association president Frank Reder.

"In this province, it can take a major developer from three to five years to work his way through the stranglehold of red tape and regulations before he can get his project off the ground," he said.

"But in the U.S., the same thing takes only three to five months."

He said capital investment suffers as a result, contractual work stays at a low level and large numbers of men in the industry cannot find work.

"This is one of the reasons for the massive recession in the industry right now," Reder said. "There are approximately 18,000 construction workers, out of a workforce of 64,000, out of work at the moment and even with the seasonal slowdown this is abnormally high."

Reder said he had warned Labor Minister Allan Williams about the gravity of the situation and urged him to initiate new building projects, compile a list of contruction priorities and make an attempt to cut red tape as much as possible.

"We are aware of the association's concerns and of the problem and the minister is considering possible courses of action," Williams' office said.

Reder called the statement "a light at the end of the tunnel — a glimmer, but it is light."

Interim Chairman

Retired civil servant Axel Kinnear has been appointed interim chairman of the B.C. Land Commission, the provincial government announced Friday.

Kinnear will serve as chairman for a three-month period or until a permanent chairman is appointed.

Gangland Execution

SQUAMISH (CP) — A man charged with the gangland-style killing of a known gambler was executed by criminals involved in the drug trade, an RCMP spokesman said Friday.

The spokesman said that human remains found last July near here have been positively identified as those of Keith David Agnew, 34, of New Westminster, who was reported missing Feb. 8, 1978.

Agnew had been charged with the murder of Christos Chinis, 49, who was found slumped over the steering wheel of his car in New Westminster in January, 1978, with seven shots to the head and neck.

The body of Agnew, who had been shot in the head, was buried and the badly decomposed remains were apparently unearthed by animals at a site 55 kilometres north of Vancouver. Identification was made through X-rays of the teeth and skull and from jewelry found on the scene.

Shutdown Looms

WHITEHORSE, Yukon (CP) — White Pass and Yukon Corp.'s railway operations could be shut down unless federal subsidies are guaranteed by April 1, corporation president Jack Fraser said Friday..

Fraser said he would hate to see the railway shut down because of its economic importance to Yukon mining and tourism.

He said, however, that he can't let the railway's losses pull down the entire company. Fraser said the company needs money to cover both the operating deficit and capital expenditures.

Meanwhile, Fraser said White Pass freight rates for goods shipped to the Yukon will rise by more than 10 per cent.

'Political Game'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for the Greenpeace Foundation says that a decision by the International Whaling Commission to reduce the 1979 quota on sperm whales and limit the catch to males only is a political game.

Rod Marining said sexing sperm whales by size is far from foolproof.

"I'm sure the Russians will be out there killing whales and they won't be turning them over to check their genitals," he said.

The 17-member whaling commission has reduced the North Pacific quota on sperm whales to 3,800 from 6,444 and also made sperm whaling illegal on the open seas south and west of Australia.

Greenpeace wants a moratorium on whaling.

School Van, Bus Crash

MARKDALE, Ont. (CP) — The driver of a school bus-van taking children to school was in critical condition in a Toronto hospital late Friday after her vehicle collided head-on with a school bus.

Twenty school children were treated for minor injuries and released from a local hospital after the buses collided on a snow-covered county road just west of this community 40 kilometres south of Owen Sound.

Doreen Hotchkiss, 46, of Durham was taken to an Owen Sound hospital, then transferred to Toronto General Hospital where she was being treated for multiple injuries.

The driver of the other bus, Jack Taylor, 71, of Markdale was not seriously injured.

Provincial police said weather was clear and sunny at the time.

It was not known how many children were on the buses.

In Toronto the Ministry of Transportation and Communications said it hasn't yet compiled a list of statistics for such accidents in Ontario in the 1977-78 school year.

However, for the 1976-77 school year there were 793 accidents involving school vehicles with 247 children hurt. There were no fatalities.

The classification includes school vehicles other than buses, such as vans and station wagons.

"According to statistics it is the safest way to travel by vehicle in North America," a ministry spokesman said.

He said 600,000 youngsters a day are transported to and from school and the injury rate is 0.2 per 100,000.

SKATERS' HELPER in London, Ont. rink is a plain old kitchen chair. Three-year-old David Gilmore wears a look of determination as he pushes the contraption around the arena. Even more imaginative is the family scene in which Robyn Smith gives a free ride to Chlorodaugh, three, and Taffy, one.

Sniper Fires at Que. Buses

MONTREAL (CP) — Two Voyageur buses, shot at by a lone gunman on a remote stretch of highway in northwestern Quebec, arrived here under police escort Friday evening, their passengers shaken by the experience.

"You'd better believe we were scared," one passenger said as she leaped from one of the buses after it pulled up beside the east-end terminal, two hours late.

Police said earlier that the buses were coming from the Abitibi region and were passing through La Verendrye provincial park when the incident occurred.

Voyageur bus service in most of Quebec has been halted since Dec. 23 by a strike of 375 drivers. Service from Montreal to points in northwestern Quebec and Ontario has continued because drivers on those routes belong to a different union.

Passengers said that when they first heard the shots, they thought it was just a suitcase falling or a snowball hitting a window. Voyageur officials later confirmed that both buses had been hit twice near the rear engine area.

Some did not know what had happened until the buses stopped at Grand Remous, 210 kilometres northwest of here.

None of the passengers were hit by the bullets, but eight-year-old Micheline Casey of Cap-de-la-Madeleine, Que., was slightly injured by a chip of metal dislodged by one of the shots.

Micheline, her two young sisters and their mother were returning from a trip to visit relatives in the northwestern Quebec community of Val d'Or.

Carmelle Casey, Micheline's mother, explained that her daughter was in the bathroom when they heard the shots.

"She came out crying," Mrs. Casey said. The metal fragments bruised Micheline's stomach. She did not require hospital care and walked off the bus with everyone else when it arrived in Montreal.

"She had been standing up in the bathroom," Mrs. Casey said before she and her family were whisked away by bus company officials. "If she had been sitting, she would have been finished."

Police were still looking for the gunman and the spokesman said there was no clue as to his identity.

The Casey family and the driver of their bus were questioned by company officials on their arrival in Montreal.

The striking drivers are affiliated with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and on Friday night they picketed the bus terminal as usual.

"I doubt it could have been one of the drivers (who fired the shots)," one of the pickets said.

"Anyone who does something like that has to be a little deranged, to shoot at a bus with people inside it."

Voyageur spokesman Roland Besner declined comment on the shooting incident. As for the strike, he said there are no new negotiations planned, although mediator Roland Doucet is meeting separately with both sides.

Union leaders say the strike could be a long one. They want drivers to be paid by the hour instead of the current per-mile system. The strikers are picketing major Voyageur terminals, forcing Voyageur and other bus companies to load passengers on the streets outside.

POLICE DOG ALSO DEMOTED

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Basko, a German shepherd dog that had been working in crowd control, has been demoted to tracking duties by the Waterloo regional police force, acting chief Clare Kunkle said Friday.

The dog joins his handler, Constable David Westwell, and three other policemen who were demoted by the Waterloo regional police commission following an Ontario police commission inquiry last summer into charges of brutality by members of the force.

The inquiry was told that Basko bit members of the Henchmen motorcycle club during a police raid last March 11 on their clubhouse.

Kunkle said the police commission is to decide later whether the dog is to continue to work with the force.

In the meantime, Constable Westwell still is in charge of Basko.

KENYA
OPERATIONS & MAINTENANCE ENGINEER
RURAL WATER SUPPLY

Applications are invited from civil engineers with extensive practical experience in the construction, operation, and maintenance of water supply systems servicing rural communities. Previous involvement in technical assistance and training in a developing country will be considered a strong advantage.

The successful candidate will fill a major role in a Canadian team assisting the Kenyan Government in Western and Nyanza Provinces over a 2-year period. He will have at least 5 years experience in the management of water systems and be familiar with administration procedures as well as the technical aspects of their operation.

Demonstrated competence for effective communication, both formally and informally, is required since the success of his efforts will depend to a large extent on his capability to provide useful advice which is followed by less experienced staff.

Basic salary is up to $30,000 plus a 25% overseas allowance, a substantial portion of which is tax-free. Benefits include free passages, generous leave, rent-free housing, educational allowance, and medical and insurance coverage.

'Everyone is a Pedophile'

TORONTO (CP) — A University of Toronto chaplain testified Friday that an article describing homosexual activity between men and boys would appall most Canadians because they cannot face such tendencies.

"Everyone in fact is a pedophile," said Rev. Eilert Frerichs of the United Church of Canada. "We all love children. The average Canadian is a pedophile, no question about it."

"That is not saying the average Canadian would go out and have sex with children."

He said the article was morally neutral and did not advocate pedophilia.

Frerichs was one of several clergymen, psychiatristsand sociologists called by lawyer Clayton Ruby for the defence of Pink Triangle Press and three of its officers charged with distributing immoral, indecent and scurrilous material through the mail. The company publishes Body Politic, a newspaper for homosexuals that carried a December, 1977, article entitled Men Loving Boys Loving Men.

Ruby's witnesses unanimously rejected opinions offered earlier this week by Crown witnesses, who said the article offends Canadian community standards and advocates sexual love of children.

Thelma McCormack, a York University psychologist, testified that she "started reading it as a sociologist and finished wishing I had had it when my children were young."

She described the article as clinical, rather than erotic and said it was useful for parents to understand pedophilia. By reading the article, parents can gain knowledge about how to deal with persons making sexual advances to children.

McCormack said the article in which a teacher and two other pedophiles describe love affairs with 7 to 14-year-old boys was "appropriate for use by home and school associations.

"It should be circulated to the parents before the meetings and then discussed in detail," she said.

"Every parent has to face the fact that their children will eventually be approached, whether on the street or on the school ground," she said.

Toronto journalist June Callwood, who has worked extensively on problems related to child abuse, said she "would not condone pedophilia for one minute," but that the article is benign and loving and addresses the matter responsibly.

"Sexual interference with children is appalling, but if you're going to examine it, I'm glad it's done in a loving way."

All But 6 Prisoners Returned

OTTAWA (CP) — All but six of the 732 federal prisoners given five-day Christmas or New Year's leaves returned on time, Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais said Friday.

Blais said the return rate of 99.18 per cent is unprecedented. Last year's rate was 99.04 per cent.

Two of 537 prisoners released at Christmas failed to return and are still at large.

Four of the 195 released for New Year's did not come back, one because he died while on leave. Two were detained by police and one is unlawfully at large.

Bay Bid Given Okay After All

TORONTO (CP) — G. Allan Burton, chairman of Simpsons Ltd., said Friday that his company will accept an offer by the Winnipeg-based Hudson's Bay Co.

The statement was a reversal of a previous announcement that Simpsons would not accept the offer.

Burton said senior officers of the company and certain of its directors would tender all or a substantial portion of their holdings of Simpsons shares and of the class B shares of Simpsons-Sears Ltd., also of Toronto.

Together with the profit-sharing retirement fund, directors and officers of Simpsons and their immediate families control more than 10 per cent of the 17 million shares.

Burton said that on advice of independent investment counsel, management would recommend acceptance of the Hudson's Bay offer to the trustees of the Simpsons profit-sharing retirement fund who are to meet Monday.

Burton said that the directors of Simpsons would not meet until Monday so that no formal recommendation of the board was being made. He said he made the announcement at this time because of the statement by Hudson's Bay that they would not extend their offer beyond next Wednesday.

Fire-Death Charges Laid

TORONTO (CP) — A warehouse employee at Kimberley-Clark of Canada Ltd. was remanded in custody until Tuesday when he appeared in provincial court Friday on three charges of criminal negligence causing death and one count of arson in connection with a fire in which three firemen died.

Anthony Attard, 27, was charged Thursday following a six-week investigation of the warehouse fire by the Ontario fire marshal's office and Metropolitan Toronto police.

The arrest was made just one day after a $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person who set the fire was posted by Lorne Campbell, a fire captain with the Metropolitan Toronto borough of York and editor of the Canadian Firefighter.

Siamese Twins Die

WINNIPEG (UPC) — Siamese twin girls born joined at the abdomen died late Friday after just over 36 hours of life, a spokesman at the Health Sciences Centre said..

The twins, under intensive care since their birth, died despite efforts of a team of doctors who were running tests to determine whether a severing operation was feasible.

New Problems Arise As Heroin Use Dips

The battle against heroin addiction in B.C. is far from over but there are indications of a sharp decline in the use of the drug even as the government's health entry plan for addicts gets under way.

And while that may seem good news, it is giving rise to a host of new problems as many former heroin addicts are apparently switching to other drugs.

The shift in drug-taking patterns is causing concern both to pharmacists — who fear an increase in breakins and robberies — and to doctors who are being cautioned to be wary of double doctoring — instances where persons get multiple perscriptions by fraudulent means.

The number of heroin users in Greater Victoria has dwindled to the lowest in nearly a decade.

The reason: the supply of the drug has dried up, the result of several major police drug busts in Vancouver and Victoria in recent years.

Dr. Mark Fisher, medical officer for the Victoria Methadone Clinic, estimates there are only about 50 current users in Victoria.

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Sgt. Bob Hawkes, head of the RCMP drug squad puts the number higher. About 100 is his guess.

Either way the decline is spectacular. Five years ago, Hawkes says, there were between 500 to 600 regular users on the streets here. In 1967 there were about a dozen.

The credit for the decline belongs mainly to the Greater Vancouver and Victoria police drug squads.

Recent police seizures and arrests have dealt a devastating blow to the illicit trade.

Trafficking on the Island, for instance, has been reduced to a trickle ever since a major heroin ring was broken in Nanaimo three years ago.

What gets through is of poor quality — three per cent heroin is not uncommon — and extremely expensive — as much as $45 to $50 a cap. Three years ago a cap sold for $20 on the street here and contained at least 20 per cent heroin.

"There are days now when there is no heroin in town, none," Hawkes says.

To get a measure of how tight the supply has become, drug officers failed to find a single cap on the streets anywhere in Vancouver over a three-week period last fall.

"It's become much tougher to be an addict in B.C.," says Fisher.

He notes addicts are reacting to the shortages and high costs by turning to other drugs, notably alcohol and perscription medications.

Says Fisher: "In Victoria now I'd say the primary problem in drugs is barbituates."

He says addicts have been able to make the switch largely because the quality of heroin has been so low. They haven't developed as strong a habit. As a consequence they are able to accept other psychoactive drug substitutes.

And that is causing concern to pharmacists.

"I think we can anticipate more breakins in the future," says Jim Swanson, pharmacist at the United Pharmacy in Colwood.

"It's well known 100 per cent of the heroin addicts can maintain themselves on other drugs. The question is where do they get the drugs? They got to get them from somewhere, either through illicit sources such as forgery, robbery or breakins, or through a doctor's perscription."

He says the B.C. Pharmacists Association is examining ways of increasing security in dispensaries.

"Unless we start taking extra precautions now we are going to have a real problem getting insurance," he says.

However, Swanson says pharmacists are faced with a strange dilemna. If they concentrate on bars and alarms to stave off breakins after hours, they run the risk of having addicts walk through the door during the daytime with a gun in their hands.

One alternative is to arm stores with hidden cameras and silent alarms, making security less obvious.

Another is to remove all drug-abuse medications from pharmacies and dispense them instead from a central repository. Such an approach is being tried in some parts of the U.S.

Ironically the changeover to other drugs is partly the drug trafficker's own making. Heroin has been diluted to the limit solely so bigger profits can be realized.

Fisher does not believe heroin addiction will ever return to its old level unless the quality is reinstated.

Hawkes, however, says it is not the case of a trader having to improve his product to attract back customers.

He says traffickers are interested in only one thing — profits.

Right now heroin isn't as big a profit-maker as, say, cocaine, and so traffickers aren't as keenly involved in building up the heroin trade as they are cocaine.

If heroin comes back, look out, he says. We'll see a whole new generation of addicts.

The government's treatment plan hopes to forestall that from happening.

While the move is generally welcomed by police and medical professionals, there are some who feel the treatment plan is doomed to failure because its scope is too restricted.

"To be really effective a plan like this should be based on a continental decision," a Victoria physician said.

There are some who feel also that the plan will fail because addicts will simply move to another province.

But so far there's no indication of this happening.

Leonard Blumenthal, assistant chairman of the Alberta Alcohol and Drug Commission in Edmonton says that out of the 70 to 75 addicts known to the Alberta ADC, only about 11 came from B.C., and of those, six arrived during the Commonwealth Games. None appear to have made the move to escape treatment in B.C.

Blumenthal also notes there has been no increase in the number of addicts on the voluntary methadone program. Indeed just the reverse is occurring. Five years ago there were about 170 addicts taking methadone treatment in Edmonton; now there are less than 30, about the same number as currently receiving treatment in Victoria.

"There is a clear indication heroin is on the decline everywhere in North America. It's a natural decrease, like a spontaneous remission," he says.

He says B.C.'s treatment plan is being watched with considerable interest in Alberta.

Rather than causing addicts to leave, he believes the opposite might occur.

Cold To Linger

There'll be ice on the roads and a chill in the air for the next five days — but snow is unlikely, the weather office said today.

"Present weather conditions should last until Wednesday," forecaster Dennis Gallagher said.

Driving will be hazardous early in the day and at night but otherwise conditions should be reasonably pleasant.

There will be sunny periods though strollers may find things a bit nippy.

A cold air mass in the central interior continues to dominate the weather pattern but it is being moderated by a moist air trough which came up from Washington State and has moved over Vancouver Island.

The result should be heavy frost for the next three or four days.

By Wednesday, a moist Pacific storm will arrive, creating wet, mild conditions but it is too early to predict whether it will create snow or rain.

On Sunday it will be a little milder, rising to 2 or 3 degrees Celsius with overnight lows in the range of -5 to -6.

The forecast for Monday is almost identical with skies mainly clear and some cloudy periods.

While no general snowfall is expected, there could be a few flakes near lakes or rivers due to a combination of the moisture and cold weather.

While Victorians are calling the weather here cold, it's about the warmest in Canada.

The prairies are locked into extreme cold, with clear skies and lows in all the major cities at about -22.

POLICE NAB BOY

Esquimalt police said a patrol officer tried to pull over the truck in the 800-block Craigflower about 11 p.m. for a routine check.

The vehicle sped off and at Styles the driver lost control, struck a fire hydrant, crashed through a fence, crossed a lawn and smashed into a cement wall.

The driver and two passengers, a girl age 14 and another 15-year-old boy, escaped injury.

Police said the boy had been driving around picking up friends and taking them for rides.

Lawyer Quits Board, Police May Drop Suit

Lawyer Robert Hutchinson resigned Friday from the Saanich police board.

The Saanich Police Association — which had launched a court challenge to his appointment — will decide Monday whether to drop their Supreme Court action now that Hutchison has quit.

Police union president Cpl. Phil Jamieson said today the decision rests with union members who agreed last week to seek a court writ declaring Hutchison's appointment illegal.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom appointed Hutchison even though his name was not among those recommended by council.

The affair created a storm of controversy with the police association charging Gardom had failed to consult with council or be guided by the advice of the B.C. Police Commission on appointments as required under the Police Act.

Labor Leaders Split On Industrial Parks

A sharp difference of opinion over industrial parks has surfaced at the top level of the Victoria Labor Council.

Council president John Shields says such parks — considered vital if more jobs are to be created — should only go where residents want them.

But council secretary-treasurer Larry Ryan said today jobs come first and too many people, while they support indistrial development in principle, oppose it in their own community.

The differences surfaced when Ryan and Shields commented in separate interviews on a statement by industry commissioner Barry Mayhew that labor should become more active in the campaign for more local industries in 1979.

Shields said the council favors industrial parks only if they match the aspirations of the people in the area affected for orderly development.

He said if residents of a municipality reject such development through the normal democratic process, that is the way it has to be.

Shields said labor obviously favors such development in order to create jobs but added trade unions must also be sensitive about the needs of the community.

"When the community expresses strong concern about the location of industrial parks we don't want to override that," he said.

He said the industrial area of Central Saanich could possibly be looked at as an area for expansion.

The area doesn't get as much political play as Saanich where all the attention has been focussed in terms of industrial park development but maybe it has the potential for exploitation, he added.

But Ryan today urged Saanich to reopen the proposal for an industrial park at Royal Oak.

"I know there is opposition to this proposal from ratepayer groups but the unemployed have rights, too," he said.

"I resent the attitude of people who are gainfully employed who are smug about questions like this. I wish they could understand what it is like to be without a job."

Ryan, who is also chairman of the industrial development commission, said: "Labor must become more active on this question. Possibly we can play a role of reconcilation between those who propose development and those who opposite it.

"We (in labor) have no motive other than the creation of jobs. We hope we can convince people that more industries are needed in this community."

Ryan said some group will have to change its views for the benefit of the whole community.

That group, he said, should be Royal Oak ratepayers opposing industrial development since the site is by far the best for an industrial park.

Ryan said industrial development should get a high priority from all sections of the community this year and a logical first step would be to re-open the question of the Royal Oak industrial park.

He said the community should protect its education investment by expanding its manufacturing base.

"I think the original Royal Oak proposal was defeated because of old-fashioned ideas about what industry is. There already is industry in the Royal Oak area. For example, the mail-sorting plant. It fits in well with the surroundings and there is no question of despoiling the environment.

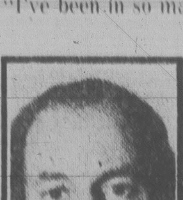
He's a Very Moving Man



max
low

Moving, as we all know, can be a traumatic experience.

But it can also be fascinating, funny and a fine chance to meet famous folk. Particularly if moving is your life.

Take that mover supreme, Augustine Steen, who in his day has taken people to locations all over the British Isles and beyond.

Gus, now 77 and retired in Victoria, was tickled recently when he read a little story in the Times about the celebrity ghosts said to haunt Sir Harry Verney's stately Claydon House in rural Buckinghamshire.

Sir Harry's ancestor, Sir Edmund Verney (standard bearer for King Charles I during the civil war) was killed in the Battle of Edgehill. All that was found of him was his severed hand, still clutching the royal standard. His ghost and the ghost of Florence Nightingale (Sir Harry married Florence's sister) have both been seen at Claydon House, the Verney's ancestral home.

"I've been there, to the great hall, and seen the severed hand in the gauntlet," Gus Steen recalls. "I've taken furniture there many times. The main staircase is wrought iron corn and as you walk up it sort of rustles and moves, giving the impression of being in a field of waving corn."

That was a weird place, he agrees, but he wasn't bothered by all the talk of ghosts.

"I've been in so many haunted houses in my time that I was used to it," Gus explains.

And, as a key figure in the household moving business for more than 40 years (the started with Pickfords, Britain's biggest movers, and later worked for John Lewis Partnership) Augustine Steen has not only had his share of ghostly experiences but has been in some of the finest homes in England and Scotland.

He has personally moved people like Herbert Asquith (before he became England's Prime Minister), Field Marshall Sir William Slim of Burma, Baron de Rothchild, Sir Julian Huxley (curator of the London Zoo), Sir Percy Silleto (retired head of the British intelligence agency MI5), and many other lords and ladies.

He moved or took furniture and supplies into the Russian Embassy in London, the Canadian and U.S. Embassies and countless other diplomatic and business headquarters. And he moved such household names as Mr. Crosse of Crosse and Blackwell, Mr. Marks of Marks and Spencers, the famed Guinness family and Heinz and all its 57 Varieties.

Stars of stage and screen, too, are among the famous folk Gus Steen has moved at one time or another. People like actor Peter Ustinov, comedian Bud Flanagan, singer Frankie Vaughan and actress Arlene Dahl.

"We went to move comedian Tommy Handley just before he was to be married. He produced a couple of bottles of Scotch, which we shared, and Tommy ended up clog dancing on the dining room table!"

"I've moved Tom, Dick and Harry," he says. "I'd rather move Mrs. Jones and Mr. Smith than the society people, really. Mind you, society people were a lot different in my day. Now they are just upstarts."

Extreme politeness sometimes wasn't enough with the society folk, Gus explains, recalling when he moved the household belongings of Lord Stanley (son of the Stanley Cup Stanley) from Manchester to London. Gus addressed him as M'Lord the first time and as Sir from then on. He was severely reprimanded and received no tip.

"You're a good man, Steen," his Lordship told him. "But my rank is Lord and don't you forget it."

"We had a really tough move, getting the Maharaja of Baroda from Haslemere in Surrey to India in 1939," Gus says with a grin.

"Everything in the kitchen was Crown Derby, the carpets were priceless and the chandeliers weighed over 200 pounds each. My packers had to wear white gloves and slippers.

"He got out in the Indian Ocean and the Germans sank the lot! But I wasn't sorry as he was miserable and I didn't even get any beer money out of that job."

In a long career, Gus Steen's worst moment came not long after the beginning.

"I was just a lad at the time and we had a job moving Lord and Lady Winney in Oxfordshire," he explains.

"His Lordship was away and Lady Winney gave us our orders and said she'd be gone for a couple of days.

"While packing the clothes, I put all the Lord's things on — top hat, tails, the lot — and there was me parading around in his togs and there was my mate killing himself laughing when in walked Lady Winney.

"'What's this?' she asked indignantly. 'What's going on?'

"I said 'Begging your pardon, M'Lady.' And she said:

"'Well I must say you look so smart . . . I just can't reprimand you!'"

Vikettes' Streak Ends

Some of basketball's winners Friday took a back seat to a pair of losers.

And no result was more shattering than the fall of the University of Victoria Vikettes.

After three years and 66 consecutive victories, Vikettes finally were beaten in a Canada West University Athletic Association women's conference game.

Not since the storied Edmonton Grads dominated senior women's basketball in the 1930s has there been a streak like the one Victoria began in 1975.

Ironically, the streak ended in the city that produced the Grads.

Alberta Pandas, cashing in on Victoria foul problems, defeated the Vikettes 64-54 in Edmonton.

Victoria coach Kathy Shields pinned defeat on foul troubles: "We had four staters with four fouls each early in the second half," she said, "and we really weren't in the game."

Pandas, 5-2 in conference play, led 31-24 at the half and pulled ahead by as many as 20 points before Victoria rallied late in the game.

Michel Belanger, with 18 points, Luanne Hebb (14) and Sue Shaw (13) carried Victoria's attack. Shaw also sparkled on the boards by pulling down 13 rebounds.

Fouls also figured prominently in a loss by UVic's men's team, coached by Kathy's husband, Ken. In a result carefully noted by national observers, the Vikings dropped a 102-96 overtime decision to Halifax St. Mary's in the semi-finals of the fourth annual Dinosaur collegiate tournament at Calgary.

St. Mary's was the nation's top-ranked collegiate team until losing to Victoria in Winnipeg last weekend.

Constantly harassed by many of the 2,000 fans, Vikings missed a glorious chance to win with two seconds left in regulation time. Fouled as he gathered in a rebound, Rene Dolcetti was awarded a free shot but missed.

Mickey Fox sparked St. Mary's with 32 points but success from the foul line also helped the Nova Scotia squad. Huskies converted 32 of 40 shots from the free-throw line while the Vikings hit on only 10 of the 16 foul shots they were awarded.

Robbie Parris (19), Ian Hyde-Lay (16), Dolcetti (14), Chris Hebb (14), Ted Anderson (14), Gerald Kazanowski (10), Kelly Dukeshire (5) and Mickey Welder (4) scored for Vikings.

Victoria led 46-40 at the half but teams were tied 88-88 at the end of regulation time.

Shields made no excuses but was obviously surprised by the fans' anti-Victoria sentiment.

"It was amazing," he said. "We were booed every time we went to the foul line. I can't understand how they could be so against a Western club."

The host Dinnies moved into the final against St. Mary's by dropping Alberta Golden Bears 87-76. In consolation games, Manitoba Bisons edged UBC Thunderbirds 80-78 and Whiteworth College of Spokane beat Wilfrid Laurier Golden Hawks 94-85.

In other CWUAA women's action Friday, Calgary beat Lethbridge 63-51 while in Vancouver, Saskatchewan Huskiettes trounced UBC Thunderettes 91-52.

Cougars Stung By Short Sputter

Victoria Cougars played well for 50 minutes and sputtered for only 10.

Unfortunately, it was shortest stretch that proved to be most damaging as the Cougars dropped a 6-3 Western Hockey League decision Friday to the Bighorns in Billings.

The Central Division leaders, Bighorns struck for five goals in a span of less than nine minutes in the second period to deal the travelling Cougars their second straight loss. The Cougars, beaten 5-2 by Portland on Wednesday, haven't suffered back-to-back losses since October.

As in Wednesday's game, crucial mistakes by defencemen opened the gates for the home club. Billings' outburst in the second prompted Victoria coach Jack Shupe to replace starter Steve Amiss with Kevin Eastman but it was obvious the damaging mistakes were the ones committed in front of the goaltenders.

The line of Mike Kouwenhoven, Cal Roadhouse and Gord Stafford sparked Billings by accounting for five goals. Kouwenhoven and Roadhouse each connected twice while Stafford added one, along with Harvie Pocza.

In other games Friday, Seattle Breakers came through with a pair of third-period goals to tie Portland 2-2, Edmonton Oil Kings clipped Regina Pats 5-2, Brandon Wheat Kings beat Saskatoon Blades 6-2 and Lethbridge Broncos outlasted Calgary 9-7.

Pssst! . . Want to Get Your Picture Taken?

Okay, so you want a piece of some of the thoroughbred action next time around. That's easy, if you've got the bread and are prepared to take the advice of the Vancouver Island Thoroughbred Horse Society.

Want more? Fine, because the plan is this: The VITHS plans to purchase a thoroughbred in California (maybe already have) in the $6,000 to $8,000 range and sell shares of $100-$200 to society members. The horse would have a Victoria-area trainer and would race at Exhibition Park this season. Chairman Mohan S. Jawl said the syndication would give interested people first-hand experience in horse ownership and, who knows, maybe a winner.

At any rate, you have to be a member of the VITHS (P.O. Box 850, Victoria, B.C. V8W 2R9) and the Sydicate will be limited to 60 shares.

Otherwise, Horsefeathers has reared his head again. That's Charles Mudrak to the uninformed. Chucklin' Charlie, it may be recalled, was once a handicapper of some repute, and prides himself on his ability to pick the winner of the Kentucky Derby. This, he says, he has done for the last four years, and always in the month of December, which makes it tougher. Most other handicappers wait until race week. So that's the pitch, but he also does it after consulting with local owner Neil DeMacedo.

Now for this year's selection. It is everybody's two-year-old of the year in 1978, Spectacular Bid. Thereby hangs a tale because it seems that at the fall yearling sale in Kentucky, the year before last, DeMacedo and his trainer, Dave Forster, liked the horse but were not prepared to spend what Spectacular Bid finally went for.

"Other contenders," Charles adds, "are Flying Pastor, General Assembly and Tim the Tiger." It may also be noted that Tim the Tiger is trained by John Veitch, who best will be remembered as the trainer of Alydar, which lost all three Triple Crown races — the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont — to Affirmed by diminishing margins as they ran one-two in all three races.

Well, it seems that Tim the Tiger had a similar rivalry going with General Assembly this past season and when it was suggested to Veitch that this might develop into another Affirmed-Alydar feud, he countered: "I hope not, I'd lose all the hair on my chest." And that's not Horsefeathers' story either.

He may or may not have the Derby winner, but I'll wait. I'm a bit of a Tiger that way.

Still on the horsey scene, the Jawls went shopping at the November Keeneland Sale and came away with a Speak John colt out of a Tom Fool mare; and the $27,000 is the most ever paid by the Jawls for a weanling. The new addition to the Jawls stable is wintering at Westwind Farm and if it doesn't yet bear watching on the track, it otherwise wants to be noticed. Because, when Ann McKennan left the colt behind recently while bringing two Bold Laddie offspring into the barn, the newcomer jumped a four-foot fence and made his way into the barn himself.

Incidentally, two area mares are going to be mated with Bold Laddie next year. They are George Harknett's Major Hike and Derek Green's Turn To The Mt.

Interesting, too, is that the Jawls have two Peruvian-breds running in California. Keep these names in mind. Tolita, a three-year-old filly, already has a win and place in three starts, while Trevolera, a five-year-old who won twice for her previous owners, has been narrowly beaten in her last three outs.

The Jawls also have a three-year-old named British Bob racing down south. The winner of a $25,000 claimer, British Bob now is running in allowance company and is being pointed toward the three-year-old program at Exhibition Park. And an old favorite, Victorian Image, has gone to his reward. Winner of about $100,000 over the past three years, Victorian Image won five time for the Jawls at Golden Gate this past season and now has been sold to a Californian who will use him as a quarter-horse stud.

But here's the big one. The Brothers Jawl also picked up two other weanlings in Kentucky. One is a Victoria Park filly named Victoria Charm and is training under Don Morrison in Vanouver. The other is training in California and is named after a winner of the Longacres Mile. The name: Gigantic. The reason: the horse stands 16 hands and is filling out well.

Or, as Horsefeathers would say: "Why not?"

And, sure, if some of the media types about town want to get involved with that Island Society thoroughbred purchase, the reply, from this corner at least, is also: "Why not?"

G'nite all, and you too, Horsefeathers.

HAS TIME COME FOR THOSE RAMS TO SWITCH ROLES?

By HAL BOCK
The Associated Press

There was a time, not so very many years ago, when Dallas Cowboys were viewed as perennial National Football League bridesmaids—a good football team never quite able to become a great one.

Now, of course, that phase of Cowboy lore is ancient history, buried under two Super Bowl championships. And the team that replaced Dallas as a postseason disappointment is Los Angeles Rams, who have washed out of the playoffs and pulled up short of the Super Bowl five times.

Are you ready for a little role reversal?

The Rams will be across the field from the Cowboys Sunday when the National Conference championship is decided and, for a change, Los Angeles won't fold. This team, which has had so much practice at going home early, believes its time has come and maybe, for a change, it's right.

In the American Conference, the aroused Houston Oilers play for the title at Pittsburgh against the very talented Steelers. Forced to choose between Oiler emotion and Steeler efficiency, we'll take efficiency.

So spell the Super Bowl Los Angeles vs. Pittsburgh.

The picks:

Rams 23 Cowboys 17

To win, the Rams must get another big game from Cullen Bryant, who has had two straight 100-yard performances. That would prevent the Cowboys from keying on Pat Haden and could shake the Rams' passing game loose. Roger Staubach may not be 100 per cent for the Cowboys after being kayoed by the Falcons and Tony Dorsett's fumbleitis reappeared against Atlanta, which could be a problem against the Rams.

Steelers 24 Oilers 14

It's bubble-bursting time for Cinderella Houston, which has gone farther than anyone could have expected. The Oilers are simply overmatched against Pittsburgh, especially with the Steelers playing at home.

Helen's Quartet Bows But Hubby, Son Click

Helen Mazzei is confronted with the difficult task but her husband and son both enjoyed successes in Vancouver Island curling playdown action Friday.

The former Helen Garraway and defending district eight champion, Mrs. Mazzei was beaten 9-6 by Esquimalt's Marg Brillinger in the opening round of the South Island women's playdowns.

Her husband, Carl, was a winner in the Island senior men's 'spiel at Powell River. Mazzei's Victoria rink beat Glen Phillips of Nanaimo 7-3 to move into the "A" semi-finals of the double-knockout showdown along with Ralph Fulford of Duncan, Dave Johnston and George Charles, both of Victoria.

Fulford edged Nori Nishio of Nanaimo 8-7, Charles tripped clubmate John Innes 6-5 and Johnston, a Pacific Coast finalist last year, squeezed by Gene Koster of Nanaimo 8-7.

Dale Garraway, Helen's son and skipping a Mt. Douglas rink, scored three successive 7-6 victories to win the "A" side of an eight-rink, modified double-knockout Island high school boys' playoff at Comox.

Garraway's first victory was at the expense of Powell River's Stacey Coomber, defending Coast champion. The Mt. Doug foursome also edged Dean Faithful of Belmont and Randy Thiessen of Nanaimo.

Joy Hoole 13 Bertha Robertson 8
Isobel Heller 8 Glenna Martin 12
Darlene Warburton 4 Fran Turner 9
Helen Mazzei 6 Marg Brillinger 9
Ruth Miller 5 vs Lee Jameson 11
Flora Martin 11 Diana Johnstone 2
Clare Duncan 7 Ellie Miller 8
Shelley Wilson 4 Ruby Niemeyer 10
Dorothy Moore 8 Diana Mercer 6
Nan Campbell 3 Mary Matheson 11

Philip, Wendy in Finals

A Victoria gymnast, a Nanaimo javelin-thrower and a Burnaby wrestler are the three finalists for the senior amateur athlete-of-the-year in British Columbia in 1978, Sport B.C. announced Friday at Vancouver.

The winner, along with winners in seven other categories, will be announced Saturday, Feb. 10, at Sport B.C.'s athlete-of-the-year awards banquet here.

Other categories are junior, university, high school, master, physically disabled and team-of-the-year.

B.C.'s over-all athlete of 1978 will be named from the winners of the individual categories.

Selection of finalists in all categories and the over-all athlete is done by members of the Vancouver-area media.

The senior gymnast finalist is Philip Delesalle of Victoria, who won an individual gold and a team gold at the Commonwealth Games in Edmonton last August.

Karen Kelsall of Surrey, the 1977 junior athlete of the year, is the gymnast and Denis Coi of North Vancouver is the skater.

The tennis star is Wendy Barlow of Victoria. She captured the national junior singles and with her partner the national under-18 doubles title in 1978. But her crowning achievement was in becoming the first Canadian junior tennis player to qualify for the senior event at Wimbledon.

HEELS OVER HEAD goes Ron Sedlbauer of Vancouver Canucks as he rolls across back of Dave Farrish while Ranger player attempts to control puck during National Hockey League game Friday in New York. Sedlbauer later fired 26th goal of season but Canucks dropped 6-4 decision to Rangers.

Even Ulf Nilsson Got into a Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — The best illustration of the comedy of errors came on New York Rangers' final goal against Vancouver Canucks. Goalie Dunc Wilson caught a shot by New York defenceman Dave Maloney, then watched it dribble out of his glove and fall into the cage.

That gave the Rangers a 6-2 lead with 1:52 remaining in their National Hockey League game Friday night. It gave Wilson a headache, and it ended up giving the Canucks a 6-4 loss.

"The referee had blown his whistle and already had pointed at the circle for the next faceoff," said Wilson. "When he allowed that goal to stand up, I wanted to pick up the puck and throw it at him."

He wasn't the first to feel that way about the curious job done by referee Bob Kilger.

The Rangers' Nick Fotiu, for example, was ejected from the game at 16:47 of the second period and automatically suspended for next Tuesday's contest at St. Louis after after being ruled the first man off the New York bench to enter a fight.

Television replays provided inconclusive evidence that Fotiu had led the charge.

Strangely, the fight involved mild-mannered right winger Anders Hedberg, who set up two of the three goals scored by Ulf Nilsson, his linemate and Swedish countryman, to lead the Rangers to victory.

Even stranger: Nilsson, who never fights, also got into one.

Indeed, the only normal thing that happened was Vancouver lost again on the road. But that's almost to be expected, since the Canucks have played 22 of their 40 games away from home this season.

Otherwise, the unusual was commonplace and the only consistency was inconsistency.

In World Hockey Association action, a sellout crowd of 15,590 at Edmonton saw the WHA All-Stars turn an early ead into a 4-3 triumph over Moscow Dynamo and sweep a three-game series with the Soviet squad.

The All-Stars chalked up 4-2 victories in each of the first two games, which attracted about 8,000 and 11,000 spectators.

Conflict in Bidding For Sandown Dates

The British Columbia Racing Commission heard and read applications for the 1979 dates at Sandown Park on Friday, but it may be several days before a decision on the Vancouver Island season will be made.

Commission secretary Bob Collis said "there is nothing to announce" after the supervising body accepted submissions from the Capital City Turf Club, which operates a fall thoroughbred meeting, and the Orangeville Raceways Limited, planning a summer-long harness meeting.

A minor conflict between the operating groups may be a reason for a delay in the normally-routine issuance of race dates.

Orangeville Raceways operated a 57-day meet last year, from June 3 to Sept. 9, but seeks to extend its second campaign on the Island to 69 days, from May 19 to Sept. 15. Capital City wants 14 days, from Oct. 16 to Nov. 12, but has objected to the harness meeting running through August and early September.

The CCTC objection is based on views that an extended season is a drain on the racing dollar and financially hurts the short thoroughbred meeting.

SUCCESS OF WESTERN EVENT KEY TO NATIONAL TOURNEY BID

From a standpoint of participation, the third annual Western Canada Oldtimers' hockey tournament, to be played in Victoria latter this month, is a guaranteed success.

But it will be the financial health that will decide if the sponsoring Vancouver Island committee can go after bigger game.

Frank Hegyi, president of the South Vancouver Island Minor Hockey Association, said Friday that his tournament committee has applied to host the 1980 Canadian Oldimters Hockey Association tournament.

There is, however, a provision attached to the SVIMHA bid.

"That's providing we can break even, financially, with this year's tournament," he said.

Vancouver is the only other city that, to date, has bid for the 1980 national tournament. Victoria, however, will be staging the Western Canada event for a second straight year and is considered a favorite to gain the 1980 tournament.

That's all in the future, of course, and Hegyi's group is concentrating on the Jan. 26-28 event that will be played at seven district arenas.

Last year, the LVIMHA realized a profit of $400, but only after getting a $1,000 grant from the COHA. This year, the district committee is not expecting a similar grant and is faced with an operating budget of $42,000.

"We're going to have to work hard, even to break even," said Heygi, "but we did learn a few things from last year that should help."

Last year's tournament attracted 52 teams to Victoria. This year, the demand has been overwhelming and the tournament will be restricted to 68 teams.

So far, entries have been received from 73 teams. Five have been relegated to a waiting list.

Among the entries, but still not confirmed, is one from a team in Holland. The Dutch squad happens to be No. 68 on the list.

In addition, other entries have been accepted from Washington, Alaska, Manitoba (4), Saskatchewan (8), Alberta (27) and British Columbia (26).

Teams will play preliminary games at the Racquet Club, Pearkes, Memorial Arena, Esquimalt Sports Centre, Oak Bay, Sidney and Juan de Fuca. Semi-final play will be confined to Memorial, Esquimalt and Juan de Fuca while all finals will be played at Memorial Arena.

ITALIAN TEAM LODGES PROTEST

Read Wins Cup Event

MORZINE, France (Reuter) — Ken Read of Calgary won today's men's World Cup downhill skiing race at Morzine-Avoriaz.

Read skimmed down the 2,906-metre course with its 880-metre drop in one minute 43.52, seconds ahead of young team-mate Steve Podborski in 1.43.97.

Third was Italian Herbert Plank followed by Ulrich Spiess of Austria and 20-year-old Jean-Marc Muffat of France.

It was the 23-year-old Read's second downhill victory of the season. At Schladming, Austria, last month he won ahead of another Canadian, Dave Murray.

The course was very fast today and skiers consistently recorded faster times than in practice.

Read's victory was later called into question when the Italian team lodged an official complaint over what they alleged to be Read's non-standard ski suit.

The organizers later confirmed the 15 leading placings but announced that Read's victory was subject to a laboratory examination of his suit, to be carried out at the International Ski Federation's headquarters in Berne.

Podborski's suit was of a different make and was no' challenged.

Amy Steals Show

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — Bobby Wadkins shot a three-under-par 68 at the Laguna Seca course Friday and jumped into a three-stroke lead after 54 holes of the $100,000 Monterey golf tournament.

But the show-stealing round of the day was a five-under-par 66 by Amy Alcott, one of four women's tour pros competing against the men in the unique, non-tour event. She played the Rancho Canada-East course and broke the women's course record by seven strokes, but she was 14 strokes off the lead.

Wadkins' 54-hole total was a nine-under-par 205 over the three Monterey Peninsula courses used in the tourney.

Three strokes back of Wadkins at 208 was rookie pro Mike Brannan. Amateur Bob Clampett and two-time PGA champion Dave Stockton were in a group tied at 209.

Stingers and Demons Take Exciting Battles

Dunsmuir Demons and Stelly's Stingers survived while Claremont Spartans and Spectrum fell during cliff-hangers in the Greater Victoria High School Boys' Basketball League on Friday.

Dunsmuir nipped the visiting Spartans 63-60 while the Stingers had to work through double overtime before beating Spectrum 73-68.

Dean St. Pierre topped Demons with 13 points but Claremont's Walt Phillips was the game's high man with 20.

Dan Barney's hot hand in overtime sparked Stelly's. Barney counted 12 of his 16 in extra time. Glen Pettinger added 15 while John Kristiansen, who forced overtime with a field goal just two seconds before the end of regulation time, and Derek Peters each pumped in 14.

In girls' action, Mona McIvor's 10 points helped Claremont edge Dunsmuir 38-21; Lisa McCulloch's 14 sparked Parkland to a 53-20 romp past Reynolds, and Spectrum defeated Stelly's 65-21.

Meanwhile, in Vancouver, Oak Bay had a faltering start in the prestigious Dr. Pepper Invitational boys' tournament. South Burnaby Rebels came through with a 64-51 victory.

Gulls Tie Legion

Since it may be better than none, Esquimalt Legion and Juan de Fuca Gulls settled for the half loaf Friday by playing to a 4-4 draw in South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League action at the Sports Centre.

It was the first point for both teams after qualifying for the Patterson (championship) Division.

Murray Allen scored two goals to pace Legion. Bruce Jeffries and Russ Kennedy each added one as Esquimalt enjoyed period leads of 2-1 and 3-2.

Neglected Prisoner Collects $518,000

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Henry Tucker, an ailing Virginia inmate left immobilized in a state prison clinic bed for nine months until his hip joints shrivelled and maggots fed on his bedsores, has won a $518,000 out-of-court settlement.

Stephen W. Bricker of the American Civil Liberties Union, which pressed Tucker's negligence and medical malpractice suit in U.S. District Court, said the settlement is the largest of any case he knows involving a prisoner.

Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr. set aside $140,000 of the award for Tucker's future medical care as an invalid. The remaining $58,000 of the settlement will go to the ACLU's national prison project, he said.

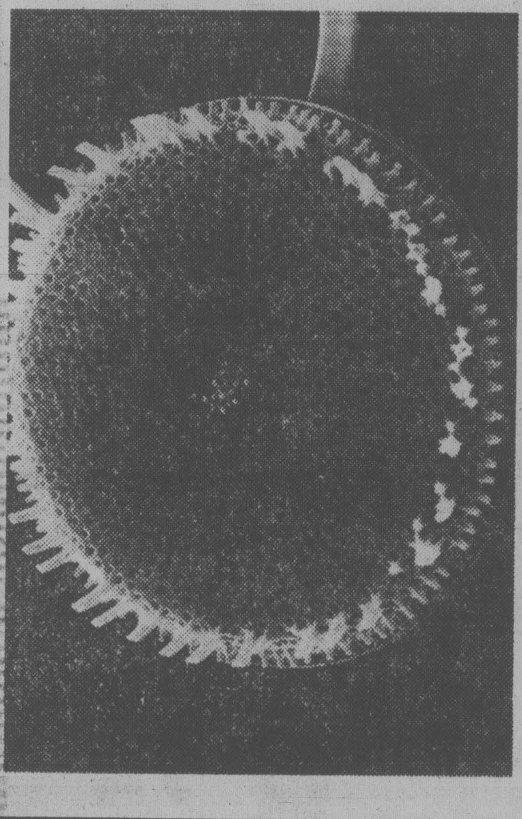
"It is really just the first step," Bricker told a State Capitol news conference Friday.

"There are still hundreds and thousands of inmates back behind the walls who are daily being devastated by deplorable medical care," Bricker said.

The ACLU asked Gov. John N. Dalton to pardon Tucker, 42, who has been serving time for attempted rape since 1964 in Richmond's state penitentiary. The group asked for the pardon saying Tucker's mistreatment has doomed him to life in a wheelchair.

Tucker's rotting flesh has been treated and healed with skin grafts at Medical College of Virginia Hospital, but surgical removal of his atrophied hip joints has left him nearly helpless.

"The settlement is not by any means a windfall," Bricker said. "The man deserves every cent he got. No amount of money could ever compensate him for his suffering."



NEW SPECIES of plankton was discovered recently in the South Atlantic by Texas A&M oceanographers Mike Hoban and Greta Fryxell. The unnamed diatom, measuring 36/1,000 of a millimetre across, is shown in bloom in this electron microscope image magnified more than 5,000 times.

INSTRUMENT FAULT SPOILS VENUS DATA

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — A malfunctioning radar instrument aboard the unmanned Pioneer-Venus Orbiter spacecraft is sending "degraded" data back to Earth, project scientists reported.

Officials at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center said Friday it first was thought to be a problem in equipment on the ground but further investigation showed it was in the instrument.

A NASA statement said the 11 other instruments aboard the craft were still functioning well. It said the computer data being sent to the research centre was "degraded."

The craft reached the plant Venus on Dec. 4 and has been orbiting it since then. The purpose of the voyage is to provide information about the weather on Venus.

Cultists Had FBI Papers

WASHINGON (WP) — Sensitive FBI documents and the makings of a book about allegedly illegal FBI activities have been found among the ruins of the Peoples Temple cult in Guyana.

The bizarre discovery has triggered an investigation of a former FBI agent turned author who has been cooperating with the Church of Scientology in exposing purported FBI wrongdoing. It also has led to an exchange of accusations between Charles Gary and Mark Lane, attorneys for the Peoples Temple cult led by the Rev. Jim Jones, who died Nov. 18 with more than 900 cult members in a mass suicide-murder.

Justice Department and FBI spokesmen declined to comment on the matter Friday. But in telephone interviews, the former agent and Garry, his attorney, said FBI agents searched their offices a few weeks ago in an effort to recover other copies of the FBI materials found in Jonestown.

The documents were said to be unrelated to the People's Temple.

Sources familiar with the investigation said the matter is considered serious because informants can be identified from some of the documents. One informant involved has received a death threat as a result, they said.

Possible charges against the former agent for stealing government documents may be barred, however, because of an understanding given by Justice Department investigators that he would be immune from prosecution for the alleged misdeeds he has described, sources said.

The department's office of professional responsibility has interviewed the former agent about his charges that the FBI routinely created phony informants, and used illegal surveillance techniques, such as break-ins and wiretaps.

Death Penalty Law Dies

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — The Washington Supreme Court on Friday overturned the state's 1975 mandatory death penalty law with the result that the first man convicted under it will receive a life sentence.

The 5-to-4 decision throws out key provisions of the law, passed by the voters as an initiative. The action results in reduction of the death penalty handed Michael Charles Green under the provisions.

The decision, however, has no effect on a 1978 death penalty law passed by the legislature which has not yet been tested in the state's highest court nor directly in the U.S. Supreme Court.

Green was convicted of the Sept. 28, 1976 stabbing death of Kelly Emminger in the yard of a Seattle Capitol Hill apartment building where she lived. The jury found that Green, then 19, killed the eight-year-old girl in the act of rape or kidnaping or both, thus making the death sentence mandatory.

The court rejected prosecution arguments that U.S. Supreme Court decisions throwing out such mandatory death penalty laws might not apply to those passed by initiative.

Fake Sale of Helicopters?

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Eleven U.S.-designed helicopters which turned up in Rhodesia a few months ago were sold originally by Israel for use in Indonesia, U.S. officials said Friday.

They said investigations had disclosed that the sale was approved by the U.S. commerce department on the understanding that the helicopters were to be used in logging operations by a private company.

However, there now is some question whether the Indonesian company exists and whether it, in fact, ordered the helicopters, officials said.

The helicopters are Bell 205's, a commercial version of the UH-1 Huey, the craft used to ferry U.S. troops in the Vietnam war.

The transfer violates United Nations sanctions against trade with Rhodesia as well as U.S. law covering transfers of U.S. arms to third countries. But U.S. officials say they believe Israel did not violate any laws in the sale.

Last August, the helicopters were loaded on a ship in Haifa, Israel, but never reached their stated destination of Singapore, and officials said it was not known whether they were unloaded at an intermediate port or on the high seas.

It was assumed that the helicopters reached Rhodesia via South Africa, but there has been no suggestion of South African complicity in earlier stages of the deal, U.S. officials said.

Soviets Given Assurance Over China-U.S. Links

SAINT FRANCOIS, Guadeloupe (UPI) — The four leaders of the Western alliance today ended a three-day summit — described by U.S. President Jimmy Carter as the best he ever attended — by appealing to the Soviet Union not to fear U.S. normalization of relations with China.

Speaking to newsmen on the lawn of the Hamak Hotel, the four pledged to pursue detente and called for the early conclusion of the second strategic arms limitation agreement.

Describing the meeting as "delightful, enjoyable and profitable," Carter said, "We are all in agreement that the emergence of the People's Republic of China toward the outside world, the Western world, has been one of the constructive developments and we are determined to enhance this development and ensure that it will never become an obstacle to detente and that it may be used as an avenue in the futuure to even strengthen our ties of friendship and harmony with the people of the Soviet Union."

British Prime Minister James Callaghan said: "We do not improve our relations with China at the expense of any other country. Our relations with the Soviet Union are also very important to us."

He added, "I would like to urge the speedy conclusion and ratification of the (SALT II) agreement on both sides. It would be a very sad day if it is not ratified."

The summit host, President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France, said the discussions were into "considerable substance and depth" and were "frank, personal and useful."

Yemen Outbreak

JEDDAH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — South Yemen launched a military attack on the Al Baida province of neighboring North Yemen, the London-based Al Sharq Al Awsat newspaper reported today.

Quoting a North Yemeni official in Sanaa, the newspaper, which also publishes in Jeddah, said a South Yemeni armor brigade, supported by fighter planes, began the attack Friday morning on the bordering province.

The newspaper did not say how long the attack lasted or the extent of damage.

There was no other confirmation available.

Mortgage Rates Set U.S. Records

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mortgage interest rates for new homes reached record highs in December of more than 10 per cent, and the government expects the new year to see even higher rates.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported that for the first time interest rates climbed last month above 10 per cent nationally.

The over-all conventional home mortgage rate for new home sales closed in December was 10.02 per cent, up from the previous high of 9.87 percent in November. In December, 1977, the rate was 9.09 per cent.

In Los Angeles, the bank board reported, a buyer had to pay an average of $104,900 in December for a new home, another national high.

"Although the recent rise in mortgage interest rates reflects a further sharp rise in market interest rates, it is clear that inflation is still the most serious problem facing the economy and the thrift (savings and loan) industry," said Robert McKinney, bank board chairman.

The board said it anticipated a 10.36-per-cent interest rate for loan commitments discussed in December that are expected to be closed in the future. Future commitments averaged 10.16 per cent in November.

Los Angeles was by far the stiffest market for new home buyers in December at an average $104,900 purchase price and an interest rate of 10.45 per cent. Existing homes that were sold in Los Angeles averaged $82,600 at 10.41 per cent.

San Francisco was second nationally in the average cost of a new home at $96,000.

LARSEN

Victoria Fisherman Vanishes

Kenneth Larsen was living aboard his 32-foot fishboat Lanita at Fisherman's Wharf and hasn't been seen since Dec. 28 when he withdrew a small amount of money from his bank in downtown Victoria.

Police said a member of Larsen's family went to the boat two days later and found the door to the cabin open and the heat on. All of Larsen's personal belongings were there, including car keys and wallet containing about $75. His car was parked in the parking lot beside the wharf.

Fearing that Larsen may have fallen overboard, police sent down divers to check under the boat and the immediate area but failed to find any sign of him.

Larsen is described as six feet tall, 190 pounds and has long brown hair and a full beard.

Anyone who might know Larsen's whereabouts is asked to contact the detective division at 384-4111.

Seaman Airlifted

A spokesman for the Pacific Rescue Centre in Victoria said the captain of the 405-foot Matanuska radioed for help about 6:30 a.m. as the ship was in the Strait of Georgia heading north on a cruise from Seattle to Alaska.

Meanwhile, the search for a Tahsis couple missing on a 26-foot cabin cruiser is being called off.

A Pacific Rescue Centre spokesman said unless new information surfaces, the hunt for Jim Steers, 30, and Janet Cooke, 29, would end today.

MOTORCYCLES ARE IN! That's the word from Gordon Werner, left, president of the Ontario Retail Motorcycle Dealers' Association, and Bruce MacMillan of the Motorcycle and Moped Industry Council. They say motorcycles have an improved image, families are becoming involved and this year Canadians will spend about $350 million in "bikes" and accessories.

Toronto Facing What May Be Worst Winter since Depression

TORONTO (CP) — It's Saturday night and the big spenders jostle for seats at the city's best restaurants, at the Royal Alexandra Theatre or at Maple Leaf Gardens.

And, at $425 a seat, airplanes heading for the southern sunshine are booked solid well into the new year.

But while the city's most exclusive shopping district bustles with activity, every day there are other grim realities:

— One-quarter of all Metropolitan Toronto families — about 100,000 — earn less than the $14,500 which the municipality's Social Planning Council says they need to provide the basics for a healthy life;

— The number of people evicted from their homes in 1978 was double that of 1976;

— Mortgage foreclosures have jumped. Many people are so heavily in debt they just walk away from their homes because they can't afford to sell;

— The sheriff's office in the Borough of York reports that more than ever before, cars, televisions, antiques and other goods are being repossessed because of unpaid bills;

— There are about 80,000 unemployed in Metropolitan Toronto, and Ed Broadbent, leader of the federal NDP, has predicted that this will be the worst winter in the city since the Depression.

Toronto Mayor John Sewell says the economy is in desperate shape.

"We have to get down to facing our problems head on and the future is not going to help us much."

Paul Godfrey, chairman of Metropolitan Toronto, says the gap between the haves and the have-nots is getting greater.

Rick Primeau, a budget officer with the Ontario Mortgage Corp. (OMC), says government policy has, in a way, encouraged people to give up and walk away from their homes when they are in trouble.

Federal and provincial grants for the last 1½ years have made it possible for people to buy a house with just about nothing down.

If they don't keep up the payments, OMC or Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. have the right to go through formal foreclosure procedures, but the procedures take six to eight months. Meanwhile, the family is living in the property rent-free.

Primeau says it is cheaper for the governent to allow people to surrender ownership voluntarily by means of a quit claim. This way a defaulting homeowner doesn't lose his credit rating.

CMHC expects to repossess 1,400 condominiums in Halton and Peel regions over the next year through quit claims.

OMC, which stopped lending money about a year ago because things were so bad, has close to 300 properties which have been abandoned, compared with the three or four they usually hold.

And Reg Ryan, president of MICC Investment Ltd., mortgage insurers, says more people are in trouble because financing is so easy.

His company had to put out $13.9 million for claim losses on defaulted mortgages in the first nine months of 1978, compared with $5.4 million in 1977.

"It is not surprising to me that we are having problems with collections," he says, citing unemployment, an under-utilized economy, dipping real estate values, a surplus of middle- and low-income housing and marriage break-ups.

David Preibe of the Social Planning Council says the mental and physical well-being of families with incomes of less than $14,450 is in jeopardy.

"People with lower incomes may think they are getting by, but they usually cut back on things like nutrition, decent housing or recreation . . . and the effects run through everyone's lives.

"In the long run, the result is apathy, increased juvenile deliquency, family breakdown. Then there's the loss in human potential."

He says that without money for things like sports equipment and for the occassional family outing, people are isolated from social participation.

4th Press Target

ROME (AP) — Terrorists firebombed the apartment of a reporter for the conservative Rome newspaper Il Tempo during the night, police said Thursday. It was the third attack on a press target in 10 days.

Nova Scotia Exporter Ships Sauerkraut Coast to Coast

LUNENBURG, N.S. (CP) — Lunenburg County has long been famous for its sauerkraut, and Ralph Dauphinee is leading the way in keeping up its reputation.

For the last eight years Dauphinee has been making sauerkraut by the barrelful in his backyard plant. His reputation has been growing, and now his product sells as far away as British Columbia and is exported to the New England states. He expects production this season to reach 23,000 pounds.

Dauphinee began working with sauerkraut as a child when he helped his parents cut up the cabbage by hand for their winter's supply of kraut. It was an annual ritual in rural Lunenburg County, where kraut is a highly regarded legacy from the region's original German settlers.

He set up his backyard sauerkraut factory after retiring from a 20-year door-to-door selling career.

His core-removing device was a gift from a cooper who had used it to round out the knotholes in barrels.

After the cabbages are gathered from the fields they are cored and the outer leaves removed. Then they are washed and put through the sauerkraut knife — a $3,000 shredder with four cutting knives.

The freshly cut cabbage then is layered with 4¾ pounds of coarse salt in large barrels and kept there overnight. The next day it is transferred into one of Dauphinee's six 1,100-pound puncheons.

After 10 to 12 days, foam at the top of the large barrels indicates that the kraut is beginning to work.

If kraut is to be good it should be kept in the brine for at least three to four weeks, Dauphinee says.

Chain link fence around former Olympic Village falls to cutting torch

The Village Goes Apartment

QUEBEC (CP) — The $84-million Olympic Village, vacant for 2½ years while the Quebec government spent another $6 million to turn it into an apartment building, is ready for tenants.

The municipal affairs department gave the Olympic Installations Board the go-ahead this week to begin renting out the 190 apartments in one of the two pyramid-shaped towers across the street from the Olympic Stadium in Montreal's east end.

The Village's transformation into apartments had been in jeopardy since last August, when the Village's board of directors told the government it would be impossible to carry out a government plan to subsidize some apartments for low-income earners, while renting others at regular rates.

Rents in the Village will range from $215 a month for studios to $800 for three-bedroom apartments, and the first prospective tenants will get a look at the apartments today.

It took two years to make the decision to accept tenants, said construction manager Serge Talbot, but workers were only given two days to get ready for the opening.

"The first tenants can move in anytime and there's one woman who is determined to move in Monday," Talbot said.

Authorities say no decision on the future of the 190-unit east tower will be made until the success of the west tower is determined.

By DAVE ROONEY
Canadian Press

OTTAWA — A recently-published book has excited defence department interest because it says the Canadian armed forces will be bigger and better when the next world war breaks out in 1985.

In an interview Thursday George Lindsey, chief of defence operations analysis, said the Third World War: A Future History by Gen. Sir John Hackett and seven other British generals and diplomats, lists Canadian naval strength in 1985 at 24 surface ships, 60 Aurora patrol planes and three diesel submarines.

Canada's naval force now is three diesel subs, 26 soon-to-be-replaced Argus patrol aircraft, 18 new Lockheed Aurora aircraft, eight destroyer-escorts and four helicopter destroyers.

The main Canadian role will be in anti-submarine warfare and convoy duty, much as it was in the Second World War.

"In the maritime area Canada could be cast in a crucial role," he said in a department analysis of Third World War.

"It's for this that we need the Aurora long-range maritime patrol aircraft and new frigates."

He said the book raises Canadian troop strength in Central Europe to 12,000 from 2,800 in 1978. Tank forces are increased to 150 Leopard medium tanks from 32 in 1978. The defence department is buying an additional 96 Leopards from West Germany.

These forces will be kept in NATO's strategic central reserve and do not see action in the book.

Air strength listed in the book remains the same because of government plans to purchase a new fighter aircraft.

Although Canadian forces will be just a "drop in the bucket" and the references to them are few, "they (the authors) say they are pretty good and we rather hope that's true," Lindsey said.

"The Third World War raises many questions of very direct application to Canada's defence planning," he said. "The need to strengthen our land-based air defence, for airfields and field formations, is very evident today," he said.

"Another thing it has done is convince people that all of NATO has to pull up its socks."

The book, published by Sidgwich and Jackson of London, says the next war will be a non-nuclear and will last about six weeks.

The war's catalyst will be oil and it will begin in August, 1985, with an Arab invasion of Iran to sieze that country's oil fields followed by a Soviet invasion of Yugoslavia and Central Europe.

The Warsaw pact forces of 1.4 million men will overrun northern Germany, Denmark and the Netherlands before they are stopped by a NATO army of 1.3 million.

Lindsey said that although he is surprised the book does not mention such battlefield weapons as the neutron bomb, it is to be expected that the next war will not end the world with a thermonuclear bang.

Political and military leaders are much more afraid of nuclear catastrophe today than they were 20 years ago, he said.

The war winds down with a Russian "shot across the bows" when the English industrial city of Birmingham is blasted with a single thermonuclear device.

NATO retaliates by anihilating the Russian city of Minsk and the book ends "on a wishful note" when the Soviet Union and its allies collapse because of internal dissension, he said.

Lindsey said the book, which he reviewed for defence department staff, is more confident about NATO's military performance than a similar one published in 1976 by Belgian Maj.-Gen. Robert Close.

Close wrote that a Warsaw pact blitz on a Saturday morning in 1977 would drive NATO defenders into the English Channel in two days and would induce a siege mentality in Canada and the United States.

"Close says we are not strong enough to win today and Hackett says we could be strong enough to win in 1985," Lindsey said.

"But not today."

B.C. Doctors Listed Among Most Upset

TORONTO (UPC) — Doctors in Ontario, Alberta and B.C. expressed the most dissatisfaction with medical insurance fees and bureaucracy in a survey published by The Medical Post.

Quebec doctors seem the happiest.

The newspaper, circulated to physicians, sent questionnaires to 2,500 doctors across Canada and received 828 replies.

Almost 16 per cent of Ontario doctors replying said they had already opted out of the Ontario Health Insurance Plan, billing their patients directly. Another 10 per cent said they plan to do so, and 30 per cent said they will leave the plan if they are not allowed to bill patients for the difference between OHIP fees and higher fees set down in the Ontario Medical Association schedule.

Another 8 per cent said they will opt out of OHIP if they are not permitted to charge fees higher than those OMA lists. The OMA fees are already 30 per cent higher than OHIP's.

In Alberta, 65 per cent of the respondents said they'd leave government medicare unless allowed to charge more than medicare pays, and 12 per cent of B.C. physicians felt the same way.

In Quebec, 87 per cent of physicians would not opt out.

Nation-wide, however, almost 47 per cent of the doctors said they were content with medicare.

Displeasure varied by specialty: only 45 per cent of surgeons, compared to 62 per cent of family physicians, said they would choose to stay in.

Doctors practising 20 years or more thought medicare had good results in patient care but most criticism came from physicians with between five and nine years' experience.

5 Vacancies For Every 1,000 Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — There were five job vacancies for every 1,000 jobs in the country for the three months ending Nov. 30, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

This vacancy rate was identical to that reported in the previous three-month period.

The highest vacancy rate was in Alberta where there were 11 vacancies per thousand jobs and the lowest was in Newfoundland and New Brunswick, where there were three vacancies per thousand.

Drunk Lawyer Fined

HAMILTON (UPC) — A defence lawyer who delayed a rape trial four days because he was drunk in court was fined $4,000 Thursday.

Stewart McKeown, 56, was fined $1,000 for each day that his intoxication prevented trial proceedings against three men accused of gang rape of two women.

Ontario Supreme Court Justice John O'Driscoll, in fining McKeown for contempt of court, said the lawyer was "a gifted counsel" but his behavior had been a public scandal and might have caused a mistrial.

McKeown admitted missing court twice due to drunkenness in a 1977 conspiracy trial. He was also found guilty of contempt of court in 1971.

Profs Leery Of New Obscenity Legislation

OTTAWA (CP) — University professors warn that a proposed federal obscenity law may impair freedom of expression in Canada.

In a brief to the Commons justice committee, the Canadian Association of University Teachers says that the law may create vigilante groups who would "try to tell other citizens what they may read or see."

The brief will be presented when the justice committee deals with the proposed law, possibly late this winter.

Dr. Don Savage, executive director of the 25,000-member association, said the consent of an attorney-general should be required before obscenity charges could be prosecuted.

Otherwise, he said, a vague new definition of obscenity "would place in jeopardy a great deal of literature from the ancient Greeks onward." Art, sculpture and journalism also would be threatened.

Covent Garden 'Not Total Remake'

By DAVID BUTWIN

LONDON — Just for fun, I wonder what Eliza Doolittle would be doing for work in Covent Garden these days. Surely she wouldn't be selling flowers because the huge, glass-domed fruit, vegetable, and flower market has moved to the south side of the Thames.

Would she be clerking on one of the trendy boutiques (there is one called Liza Doolittle, naturally) or waitressing in a gimmicky cafe? I hope not, but such is the change in the Covent Garden district that the ordinary worker or dweller must be feeling something of an interloper in his or her own neighborhood.

Not that Covent Garden is a total remake. I saw a lot of it recently while staying at the Savoy, that 90-year-old landmark on the Strand just two crooked blocks from the abandoned market building. The six-pillard Royal Opera House, in front of which Henry Higgins first met the flower-hawking Eliza, still plays the best of opera and ballet. Imagine, though, that this 120-year-old shrine, where Melba and Caruso sang, was turned into a furniture repository in World War I and a dance hall in World War II.

On the edge of the preserved market building is St. Paul's, the so-called Actors Church (not to be confused with the cathedral), still an unpretentious as ever. The thrifty Earl of Bedford wanted the church built free of unnecessary adornment and the architect Inigo Jones obliged him, saying, "You shall have the handsomest barn in England."

Moss Bros. (always pronounced Moss Bross), another Covent Garden fixture, still rents formal wear, riding gear, and for all I know chimney-sweep uniforms. Among the newer establishments, who wouldn't welcome Penhaligons at 41 Wellington St.? This is merely a new location for the century-old purveyor of oils, scents, pomades, and soaps, still made with the traditional recipe of Walter Penhaligon, the court barber in the 1870s.

While the Central Market Building has been saved and will soon house separate theater and transport museums, the neighboring blocks have been chopped up and readied for office and expensive dwelling space. This is good news to London officials who only a few years ago doubted the dingy gray region could ever make a commercial comeback. But it clearly does not please the Covent Garden Community Association.

Somewhat by accident I dropped into the association's storefront office and was immediately questioned about my motives by Jim Monahan, a young architect and activist. Monahan assumed I was doing yet another article about the influx of chic shops, restaurants, and galleries into a neighborhood his group is striving to develop in a less showy manner. As new businesses arrive and rents go up the old shopkeepers are forced out. Only that day Monahan had heard of another 100 flats condemned for new office space. He was not happy.

When I'd finally won his confidence, he motioned to a handsomely carved wood bench on the front pavement and asked me to help carry it to a community garden several blocks away. The garden, planted with flowers and fresh turf and children's swings, had been created by the community on the site of a recently demolished building. On Sunday there was to be a grand opening; yet Jim Monahan knew before long the garden would give way to a new office building.

He said the bench we carried had been made by one of the best craftsmen in the neighborhood, John Sullivan, whose business is imperiled by Covent Garden's shifting commercial tides. I had noticed Mr. Sullivan's shop, the Ellen Keeley Barrow Maker, at 33 Neal St.

John Sullivan, in a white work apron, emerged from the cellar and told me a kin of his started making vegetable barrows in this shop in 1830, the year the market was opened. Keeley's has ceased making barrows but it still repairs them, he said, leading me to a storage lot a block away.

We stood amid the piles of barrows and trolleys Sullivan's father had fashioned from strips of ash, and he remembered the district as it was. "All these streets were packed with people and vehicles, loading and unloading; it went on every day from 5 a.m. to 3 p.m."

No matter what becomes of Covent Garden one can be sure the venerable Savoy will change little.

Indeed, the hotel looks about the same as when it opened in 1889 boasting a revolutionary six lifts and a bathroom with every bedroom. The building is set far back from the street, reachable by a historic, cramped driveway. Cars and cabs approach on the right instead of the left' it took a special act of Parliament to grant the Savoy this dispensation.

Partly because of its nearness to theater and opera (the Savoy Theater is next door), the hotel has long appealed to entertainers: Charles Chaplin, Jimmy Stewart, Rock Hudson, Jack Nicholson, etc. They prefer the River Suites overlooking the Thames, and if you have $150 a day to spend, you should stay there too. To the right I could see Parliament and Big Ben — and to the left, craning my neck, the Tower of London.

Currents Kiss Norway's Bergen

By PHILIP SOUSA

BERGEN, Norway — Norway's second largest and most interesting city is kissed year-round by the warming currents of the Gulf Stream.

The sheltered harbor, one of Europe's most attractive, is ice-free. The temperature's amazingly mild.

This city, founded 907 years ago by King Olav Kyrre, not only is a rewarding place to visit, but it serves as a convenient door to the awesome fjord country to the north. What's not so well-known is that steamers, trains and buses leave from here to the fjords every day of the year. Too, the world-renowned train journey from Bergen to Oslo over the country's spectacular "roof" operates in both directions daily throughout the year.

Bergen's spectacular setting on a bit of tree-crowded land wedged between the mountains and the Atlantic will impress you, while the city's many worthwhile sights will keep you busy, whatever the length of your visit.

To best capture both this town's unique setting and the harmonious blend of old and new, which is one of its trademarks, a ride up to the top of Mount Floeien would be in order as soon as possible after your arrival. On that perch, 1,050 feet over the city, you'll be treated to a series of magnificent views.

For a well-balanced get-acquainted look, you should next sign on for one of the coach tours that start from the Tourist Information Centre in the heart of the city. Though these tours vary in length and scope depending on the time of the year, you'll get a good introduction to sections of the old and new Bergen.

MOBILE CHURCH— Fantoft stave church near Gergen in Norway, was built in the 12th century on the Sogne fjord, but in 1880 it was moved to Bergen.

By sightseeing bus or on your own, these are some of the attractions worth seeing (but check when they are open to the public before venturing out).

Oldest building in Bergen, Mariakirken (St. Mary's Church) is a lovely Romanesque structure built during the first half of the 12th century. The pulpit is considered a masterpiece of Baroque workmanship.

Bergenhaus is a royal residence 800 years old made up of several buildings, most impressive of which is King Haakon's Hall, a ceremonial room still in use today.

Opposite St. Mary's and open four days a week during the off-season, Schoetstuene is a four-room structure with furniture and artifacts depicting social life in Bergen in the late 1800s.

The Museum of Arts and Crafts, open every day except Monday, houses an excellent collection of European pottery, Chinese art and contemporary Norwegian ceramics, textiles and metalwork.

It comes as little surprise that this town, so wedded to the sea through the centuries, has one of the world's finest exhibits of items related to fish, fishing and the fishing industry. The Fishery Museum, open two days a week during the winter, depicts the origins and growth of Norway's fisheries.

A related enterprise, shipping, gets its day in the limelight at the modern Maritime Museum, a fine gathering of exhibits that traces the development of shipping from the days of the Vikings to the present.

Minutes from downtown, in peaceful Nordnes Park, the Bergen Aquarium is rated as one of Europe's finest. A dividend of your visit will be splendid views of the harbor.

See the splendor of the past...the Great Wall of China; the unbelievably picturesque palaces and temples and the romantically beautiful landscape. See how the past mingles and contrasts with today's technology... the new towns and cities; the most modern bridges and highways and factories that look to the future. And take in something that is everlasting in China...the art; the theatre and the music. Behind it all, get to meet the new Chinese. Fascinating as ever, polite and anxious to please; but now, with all the vigour and drive of having taken a giant step forward, almost overnight, in building this new country from an ancient empire. CP Air and Elan Holidays offer you this incredible opportunity to journey through China — the People's Republic.

Owning Vacation Home Part-time

"It's Better than Renting"

In the business world the word time-sharing is associated with sharing or selling computer time. More recently, however, the word has also been used to describe a relatively new concept, a Time Share Plan in which a person can either lease or buy into properties, mostly to be used for vacations.

Instead of buying a year-round condominium for $30,000 to $100,000 you buy the use of one for only the time you need — one to four weeks or more. For 40 years or forever. Your unit may be an apartment, a townhouse or ski lodge, or a suite of hotel rooms. Typical prices for one or two weeks a year run from a one-time-only payment of $2,000 to $10,000, plus a yearly maintenance fee. Prices depend on size of unit, luxury and the season.

Vacation costs are cut drastically under this new plan because up to 15 families share the cost of one unit. Each family owns it for the same week or weeks each year. Units are furnished by the management. Most have fully equipped kitchens, including dishes, and maid service for clean-up and linen.

In Victoria, a company involved in Time Share Plan properties is DFH Real Estate. Jack Clover, who heads the company, says the principle on which the time ownership works is simple: "It's easier to find 12 owners who can buy $6,000 worth of property than one owner who can afford $72,000. Instead of buying an inferior unit outright and only using it one month, then attempting to rent it for the other 11, you buy it for as many weeks as you can use and let others buy it for the remainder of the time.

"If you don't like to go to the same place each year, you advise a specially formed organization of the availability of your suite and at the same time select from some 200 locations in many countries the place you would like to go to.

"To buy a condominium outright in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, could cost about $70,000, but for a two-week "time ownership" you pay between $4,000 and $7,000 depending on whether the time selected is at peak or off season."

As in all other major purchases, there are a number of things to be considered before choosing any particular property, says Clover, pointing out some of the areas.

● The first consideration might be whether to buy time in a lease or ownership development. The lease time will be somewhat less expensive than a comparable ownership situation. Usually the lease period will be based on the anticipated economic life of the development; say 30 years. At the end of that time, the property reverts to the owner of the land.

● The ownership alternative is obviously more desirable because when the existing development reaches the end of its economic life, the owners share whatever property value there is. That value could be considerable. Nor is it necessary to buy only in your favorite holiday location or for your specific holiday period. By utilizing the exchange program you may buy in Florida but rotate your holidays through any of the 200 locations throughout the world at any time of the year, provided the development is involved in an established exchange program. Many are not.

● The most important decision about where to buy a time ownership is related to expected appreciation of the property value. A location such as Maui or the Gold Coast of Florida will appreciate at a rapid rate. Other areas such as remote ski or hunting resort values may not escalate so rapidly.

"It's difficult to imagine how this exchange system could ever have been conceived or operated in a non-computerized age but it has now been working for several years and those who have used the system are happy with it," says Clover.

"The time ownership concept has been effective in Europe for nearly 20 years but it was only when our American neighbors picked up on it that it became the big business it is."

"Here's a specific example. You buy time ownership for two weeks at a cost of $5,000. You pay an annual maintenance fee of $150 and an annual exchange club membership fee of $36. In 10 years you have paid $5,000 plus 10 times $150 and $36, which gives a total investment of $6,860.

Baja, The Great Escape

> "It seems the coastal plain and the mountains are teaming with fish and wildlife. There are more grand campsites than you could use in a couple of lifetimes"

ENSENADA, Mexico — For American outdoorsmen, Baja California always has been The Great Escape.

Its seas, the coastal plain and the mountains are teeming with fish and wildlife. There are more grand campsitesthan you could use in a couple of lifetimes.

Stretching south of San Diego, Calif., its conveniently located and, compared to much of the United States, unblemished.

Baja is a wonderland — and a wanderland — of outdoor riches. A time machine, where you can enter for a look at California as it was 30, 40, maybe 50 years ago.

So immense is its largeness that it brings out the worst in some outdoorsmen.

The principals sometimes are Americans who have become known as sportsmen north of the border by giving large sums of money, which they can easily afford, to conservation organizations and by giving lip service and, sometime, time to the cause.

Doves or quail or waterfowl piled high and left on the ground to rot. Ice chests jammed with bass fillets.

Dolphin fish and yellowtail by the sack full, more than you could eat in six months. Give them to a Mexican. None around? Aw, leave 'em here, the birds will get 'em.

Alone, without game wardens, free from social pressure, guided only by conscience — this is where you sort out real sportsmen from pretenders.

Do people truly respect and admire that which they seek? Or is the adulation confined to shooting and catching ability?

If you have doubts about yourself, Baja is the place to take the test.

Marlin, sailfish, dolphin fish, rooster fish and burly yellowtail are the magnets for salt water anglers.

But there's more, much more, that's usually overlooked in favor of the glamour species.

One example: The California surf fisherman, who struggles to procure a couple of perch and a tiny yellowfin croaker at home, can find El Dorado to the south.

Five of us did just that. Our El Dorado was Bajamar, which is in the process of becoming a resort community 18 miles north of here.

For now, it consists of a golf course at ocean's edge with acres of cacti anxious to devour errant golf balls, tennis courts, a sparkling social centre and a hotel and a few houses in various stages of construction.

Quail and rabbits scamper for cover along the dirt road that winds down to the water. Gulls, terns and pelicans wing up and down the shoreline.

A seal bobs in the kelp 100 yards from the rocks. Five- and six-foot waves crash with thunderous force on the rocks, sending spray 30 feet into the air.

The very thing we don't need for this type of fishing is five- and six-foot waves. But we got them, like it or not.

One likeable aspect of the venture is the absence of litter, a sure sign people, more to the point fishermen, have been avoiding this stretch of rugged, rocky coast.

Later, the size of the fish we caught was another indication we were among the pioneers of this promontory.

Two months before, two members of our party fished the same area. Gifted with gentle surf, they and their cohorts yanked three dozen calico bass from the briny depths.

Less than an hour after our arrival, Larry Laurie came sloshing back to the car, water dripping from his ears, nose, hair, pockets and most everywhere else.

Seems a wave had wrapped itself around him and, as it rushed back from whence it came, took Laurie's tackle box with it.

Not one of the truly great beginnings of a fishing trip. Things could only get better. And they did.

A variety of tackle, from flimsy trout rods to the kind of stuff you would ambush a yellowtail with, is appropriate.

However, when the surf's up, heavy rods and reels and two-ounce sinkers are the ticket to success. Smaller sinkers only insured that the biggest of the waves would deposit the bait on the rocks behind us.

Another important item for our outing was a dry change of clothes.

"We should have brought ball bats so we could hit the fish in the waves when they break over us," suggested Gus Newman, who's famous for suggesting such things.

In place of bats, we resorted to frozen squid and frozen and salted anchovies for bait. Live anchovies would have been good, too, but they weren't available. The reduction industry's going full blast here.

Sound familiar?

Morning and afternoon for two days we kept returning to our rock-bound casting perches. With each arrival we would, from the top of the hill, assure each other the surf had diminished; looked pretty calm from a half-mile away.

But the waves remained relentless, churning up the bottom, tearing bits of kelp loose and draping them over our lines and soaking us to the skin.

Conditions were so bad we could only catch calico and sand bass and cabezon to four pounds.

Only? When was the last time you caught fish like that in the surf in the United States? It's probably been awhile.

Yes, Baja is generous. Sometimes to a fault — for those who can't control the consumption of its natural resources.

Peanuts gospel coming

A Unitarian minister from Atlanta, Ga., will spend the next six weeks on loan to the Unitarian Church of Victoria.

Robert Karnan will give his first sermon at 10:30 a.m. Sunday on The Gospel According to Peanuts: Revised Unitarian Version, in the church at 106 Superior Street.

Karnan, 34, is a native of Roswell, N.M., and was ordained eight years ago in Bethlehem, Pa. He has served Unitarian Universalist Fellowships in Michigan, Illinois and Massachusetts and has been minister of the Northwest Unitarian Congregation in Atlanta for four years.

While in Victoria he will speak at two informal lunch meetings at the University of Victoria. At 12:30 p.m. Jan. 24 he and Joe Percival, chaplain of the Victoria church, will be in the chaplaincy office in the University Centre, room A223. At 12:30 p.m. Feb. 1 he will attend a similar meeting in the Clearihue Building, Room C117.

Karnan is an avid worker for social concerns. He was a member of an inter-faith relations committee in Atlante, founded the Lehigh Valley Bail Fund Inc., and was on the board of directors of the Lehigh Valley American Civil Liberties Union.

He has worked with Dr. Elizabeth Kubler-Ross on crisis couselling with emphasis on death and dying; established a black-controlled non-profit housing-corporation in Chicago; worked for low-income persons accused of crime; had four years' experience counselling families and women with problem pregnancies and served as a consultant and referral person for psychiatrists and mental health organizations dealing with the dynamics of homosexuality as related to mental health.

Karnan

His sermons for the rest of January are: Jan. 14 — What is the Measure of Liberal Religion? Jan. 21 — Our Almost Invisible Religion. Jan. 28 — Atheist, Agnostic and Believer: A Unitarian Trinity. Services are held at 10:30 a.m.

'Utter disgrace' if clergy unused

It will be an utter disgrace if the United Church is unable to employ all the competent ministers it can recruit, the United Church Observer says in its January issue.

Record numbers of candidates for the ministry in theological colleges have brought suggestions that it is time to start cutting back, an editorial says.

"There is an enormous potential for mission in Canada and almost an infinite amount of work to be done. And while there isn't money in the budget to employ a vast number of ministers, there could be."

The editorial states a "strong conviction" that United Church members would support work they consider important, and adds: "There is nothing more important than recruiting, training and sending out those who are called into the mission of the church."

Perspectives

By Rev. J. A. Davidson

In its April 8, 1966, issue Time magazine had a stark cover that simply asked the question "Is God Dead?"

A long story inside dealt with the God-is-dead movement which had been fomented by a few academic theologians in the U.S. and which trendy journalists and intellectuals had got hold of.

At the time I felt that it was mostly theological nonsense and would soon go away—although it did worry me. Now my more carefully considered judgment is that it was mostly theological nonsense—and it does seem to have gone away. But the movement did have appreciable significance. The men who seemed to think they were performing autopsies on God did expose serious ills and failures in conventional religion.

The tricky phrase, "the death of God", pointed not only to the apparent death of their own faith in Him but also to the widespread trivialization of religion in the years following the Second World War. They did declare, with cogency, that people in our time, by and large, are not inclined to experience and interpret life in a religious way. Something of the valid thrust of the movement was indicated in the quip, "God is not dead—but we have carefully put Him into a suburban rest home, where His children may visit Him once a week."

Michael Harrington, the American social critic, commented on the situation in this way: "The Church will not regain its vitality—if that is to happen—by simply being hippier than thou. It must, to be sure, fight for the earthly implications of the heavenly values it affirms. But over and above that witness to the temporal meanings of the eternal, there must be the assertion of the eternal itself. And, amid all the showmanship and swinging theology, that is what I miss." He added that Christian theologians, teachers and preachers "still have an obligation to talk about their old theological hero, God."

My impression is that God is beginning to matter again, that many people today are experiencing life in religious ways, seeking awareness of the divine dimension of human existence and recognizing that the conventional religions in our society cannot be dismissed simply as exercises in pious respectability but have to do with things that are important in life.

Many today seem hungry for an integrating force in life which is beyond the merely here-and-now, something that will help them sense of the meanings and purposes of their existence and can help them to fulfilment as persons. There is danger here, of course, that a new ingrown pietism will develop, and there already is some evidence of that—but, then, that is always a danger in any form of religion.

We who have positions of leadership in institutional religion have opportunities today for explicating the resources for living which are in our faith, opportunities greater than we have had in the recent past. Perhaps we will rouse ourselves to make something of those opportunities.

100 Huntley Street coming to city

Personalities seen regularly on Canada's Christian program, 100 Huntley Street, will highlight live television broadcasts from Vancouver and a rally in Victoria this month.

Vancouver's CKVU-TV studios will be broadcasting three live programs. Two will be shown at 8:30 a.m. on Jan. 11 and 12, and the last, on Jan. 13, will be broadcast from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

An interchurch fellowship rally, to be held in the auditorium of Victoria Senior Secondary school, 1260 Grant, will also feature the program's regulars. The rally will take place at 7:30 p.m., Jan. 12. Admission is free. For further information call 388-5959.

David Mainse, Norma-Jean Mainse, Father Bob McDougall, Reynold Rutledge and Glen Rutledge will be participating in the events.

100 Huntley Street can be seen daily on CKVU-TV (Channel 13 or UHF 21) from 8:30 to 10 a.m., Monday to Friday; from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Saturday; and from midnight Sunday to 1:30 a.m.

Church involved in miners' health

The United Church of Canada has appointed John Moelaert of Kelowna to provide information and stimulate discussion on health and environmental issues related to uranium mining in the Okanagan and Kootenay areas.

The Kootenay and Kamloops-Okanagan presbyteries, along with the Outreach department, have engaged Moelaert to make information on the health and environmental hazards of uranuium mining available to church groups and the public.

Moelaert has written extensively on environmental issues. He is chairman of the Kelowna branch of the Canadian Coalition for Nuclear Responsibility.

Church council seeks new members

The Greater Victoria Council of Churches is trying to reach out to non-members of the council to broaden its membership.

A circular being sent to all churches in the Greater Victoria area explains the aims, objectives and services of the council, which is not affiliated with any other body, including the Canadian and world councils.

It has been active with training of hospital visitors, organizing family life seminars, concern for corrections and prison reform, and care of the elderly.

Subcommittees have been fighting pornography, violence, and the growing trend of stores to open on Sunday.

The council sponsors the Lay School of Theology in Victoria and the work of the Victoria Group Homes Society.

It is also viewed by civic authorities as the representative Christian body in the area.

A voluntary organization, the council operates on a minimal budget which does little more than pay for postage and an honorarium for its secretary. To meet expenses, a $5 annual affiliation fee is requested, with a donation from each congregation to augment this.

Further information is available from Frank Blackwell, treasurer of the council, at Ste. 401, 2230 Cadboro Bay Road, Victoria, V8R 5G9.

Eastern Yule Sunday

Followers of the orthodox rite will celebrate Christmas this Sunday.

A service will be conducted at 7 p.m. at Holy Theophany Russian Orthodox Church, 3801 Cadboro Bay Road Sunday, by the Rev. Gleb Jensen.

The next fellowship luncheon of the Victoria Council of Churches will be on Jan. 11 at noon at Grace Lutheran Church.

Modern China will be the title of a presentation by Bill Hardy at the social suite of First United Church at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 9.

The event, which will include pictures and narration by Hardy, is sponsored by the Uniters and Triads United Church Women units.

Crossroads Academy will offer an adult program of studies of the Book of Revelation beginning Tuesday, Jan. 16, from 7 to 9:30 p.m., at the Church of Christ, 3460 Shelbourne.

The 16-week program will include a critical analysis of the major schools of interpretation, an examination of introductory matters, and the abiding theological message of John's Revelation.

An open evening on ecumenical action will be held in Victoria Thursday, Jan. 25, at Metropolitan United Church's room 202 at 8 p.m.

It will provide interested people an opportunity to meet with congregational and parish representatives to report on developments in Victoria and receive suggestions for future planning.

Bailey speaks to Christ Church congregation at final service

Canon Bailey retires

Canon Thomas Bailey formally retired this week after serving the Anglican church in Britain and Canada for 40 years.

He was ordained in Vancouver in 1938 and served curacies in the East End of the city and at Gibson's Landing upcoast on the Mainland.

During the war he was a chaplain in the Royal Canadian Navy.

After the war, he was a staff priest at Southwark Cathedral, England.

For 15 years, he was professor and registrar of the Anglican College on the campus of University of British Columbia.

For three years he was incumbent of Beamsville in the Niagara Peninsula, and for seven years rector of St. Barnabas, Victoria.

For 20 years he has been Canon of Christ Church Cathedral and examining chaplain to Bishop Roy Gartrell.

In 1972, he was appointed John Albert Hall Lecturer, and was responsible for the founding of Victoria's highly-successful Lay School of Theology.

Bailey is presently rural dean of Victoria.

Cathedral parishioners will especially remember the 12 months he spent on the parish staff, replacing Rev. John Lancaster, who was away on leave.

Canon and Mrs. Bailey intend to remain members of the parish, and parishoners will be able to continue to enjoy their fellowship.

After the 11 a.m. service last Sunday, presentations were made by the dean and wardens on behalf of the cathedral parish, by representatives of St. Barnabas' Church, and by Bishop Gartrell on behalf on the John Albert Hall Board.

Quitting fatal —editor

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — Rev. Hilda Hellaby urges people to persevere. She sets quite an example.

At 78, she still is active in the local diocese of the Anglican Church, substituting for clergy, editing the quarterly diocesan publication, Northern Lights, and attending church meetings.

The Vancouver native, who says giving up is fatal, recently celebrated the 50th anniversary of her ordination.

She served 30 years in Vancouver before moving to the Yukon, long a place of interest to her.

She has lived in several communities and worked mainly with prisoners, many of whom call her "mother."

Although officially retired and now living in a senior citizens' home, she still visits friends at Whitehorse correctional institute. She marked her recent anniversary with the publication of The Living Current Flows, a collection of her poetry.

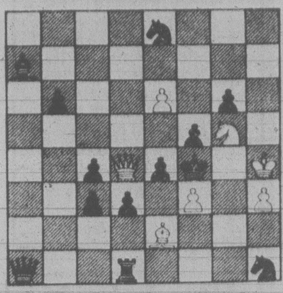
CHESSMASTER

By George Koltanowski
International Chess Master

PROBLEM
By L. Riczu, Hungary
BLACK: 13



WHITE: 7

White to play and mate in two moves. Solution below.

THE NEWEST UNITED STATES GRANDMASTER

Kenneth Rogoff of Rochester, N.Y., received the Grandmaster title at the meeting of the International Chess Federation in Buenos Aires in November. In the 1968 Canadian Open, Rogoff finished second behind Bent Larsen, drawing with the Danish Grandmaster. He won the U.S. Junior Championship in 1969, 1970 and 1971. In 1973, he tied for first at the Norristown, Pa. International and earned his International Masters title.

He won his Grandmaster's norms in the 1976 United States Championship, in the Orense (Spain) International and in the 1978 Lone Pine tournament. Rogoff is working toward a Ph.D. in Economics at M.I.T.

ROGOFF vs. RESHEVSKY

Played at Lone Pine, April, 1978.
WHITE: S. Reshevsky
BLACK: Ken Rogoff

1.	P-Q4	N-KB3
2.	P-QB4	P-K3
3.	P-KN3	P-Q4(a)
4.	B-N2	B-K2
5.	N-KB3	0-0
6.	0-0	PxP
7.	Q-R4	P-QR3
8.	QxBP	P-QN4
9.	Q-B2	B-N2
10.	N1-Q2	N1-Q2
11.	P-K4	P-B4
12.	P-K5	N-Q4
13.	Q-K4	Q-N3
14.	PxP	NxBP
15.	Q-KN4	QR-B1(b)
16.	P-KR4(c)	N-Q6(d)
17.	N-N3	R-B5(e)
18.	Q-R5	P-B4(f)
19.	PxP e.p.	NxP3
20.	Q-N5	BxN
21.	BxB	N-Q4(g)
22.	Q-R5	P-N3
23.	QxN	PxQ
24.	BxPch	K-N2
25.	B-K3	Q-Q3
26.	B-N2	NxNP
27.	QR-N1	B-B3
28.	N-Q2	Q-R6
29.	NxR	PxN
30.	P-N4	K-R1
31.	P-N5	B-N2
32.	KR-K1	P-B6
33.	B-K4	Q-N5
34.	Resigns

ROGOFF'S ANNOTATIONS

(a) Reshevsky is still dangerous so Black doesn't play the sharpest line.

(b) Ambitious.

(c) This probably loses.

(d) A killer. The point is that after 17.N-K4, NxB; 18.QRxN, N-K6 is devastating.

(e) Now Black's pieces are crawling all over White's position.

(f) A shot! Black now has tons of threats.

(g) And now Black wins a full piece. White chooses to lose his Queen instead. The rest of the game is easy.

VICTORY BY INNOVATION

WHITE: R. Ogaard, Norway
BLACK: Anthony Miles, England

1.	P-Q4	P-K3
2.	P-QB4	P-QN3
3.	P-Q5	Q-R5(a)
4.	P-K3	N-KB3
5.	P-QR3	B-N2
6.	N-KB3	Q-R4
7.	PxP	BPxP(b)
8.	B-K2	Q-N3
9.	N-R4	Q-R3
10.	B-B3?(c)	N-B3
11.	P-KN3	P-KN4
12.	P-K4	N-K4
13.	B-N2	Q-N2
14.	P-B4	PxN
15.	PxN	N-N5
16.	B-B4	0-0-0
17.	N-B3	B-B4(d)
18.	Q-Q2	NxKP
19.	P-QN4	P-R6(e)
20.	Resigns

(a) Miles' third move is an innovation. The more usual 3 . . . B-N2 is also good, but innovations worry your opponent.

(b) Black now has a definite advantage. White's development lags because of too many pawn moves. It isn't easy playing for a draw — if your opponent is a Grandmaster!

(c) Getting the Knight back to KB3 would have been safer.

(d) Threatens 18 . . . N-B7.

(e) After 20.PxB, PxB; 21.QxNP (R-KN1?, N-B6ch) 21 . . . N-Q6ch; 22.K-B1; QxN, etc. Better development did the trick!

The solution to the problem above is: 1.NxP, N-B3; 2.NxN mate; or 1 . . . P-N4ch; 2.NxP mate; or 1 . . . P-B7; 2.N-B3 mate; or 1 . . . PxB; 2.N-Q2 mate, etc.

Cutback Warning In Sooke Schools

Sooke school board chairman Horst Doniecki said Friday an arbitration award of 7.5 per cent for district teachers could mean staff cutbacks or program reductions this year.

The award makes it difficult for the board to fulfill its commitment to holding the line on spending, Doniecki said.

He said the board in its provisional budget limited spending increases to four per cent, but that was before the arbitration award and the education ministry's decision to increase the basic education levy 1.9 mills.

Doniecki said contract negotiations with the Canadian Union of Public Employees have yet to be resolved.

He said the district could face an increase of at least three mills this year if reductions aren't made in staff or other areas.

The board will discuss the situation Tuesday.

Greenpeace Ends Protest

PARIS (AFP) — The Vancouver-based Greenpeace Foundation has called off its scheduled protest demonstration against the British freighter Pacific Fisher, which is due to unload Japanese atomic waste for the French nuclear recycling plant at La Hague in Normandy.

Greenpeace said it considers it has achieved its goal by drawing attention to the vessel's dangerous cargo, but added that it will follow closely the inquest into the death aboard the Pacific Fisher of technician Robin Hartley.

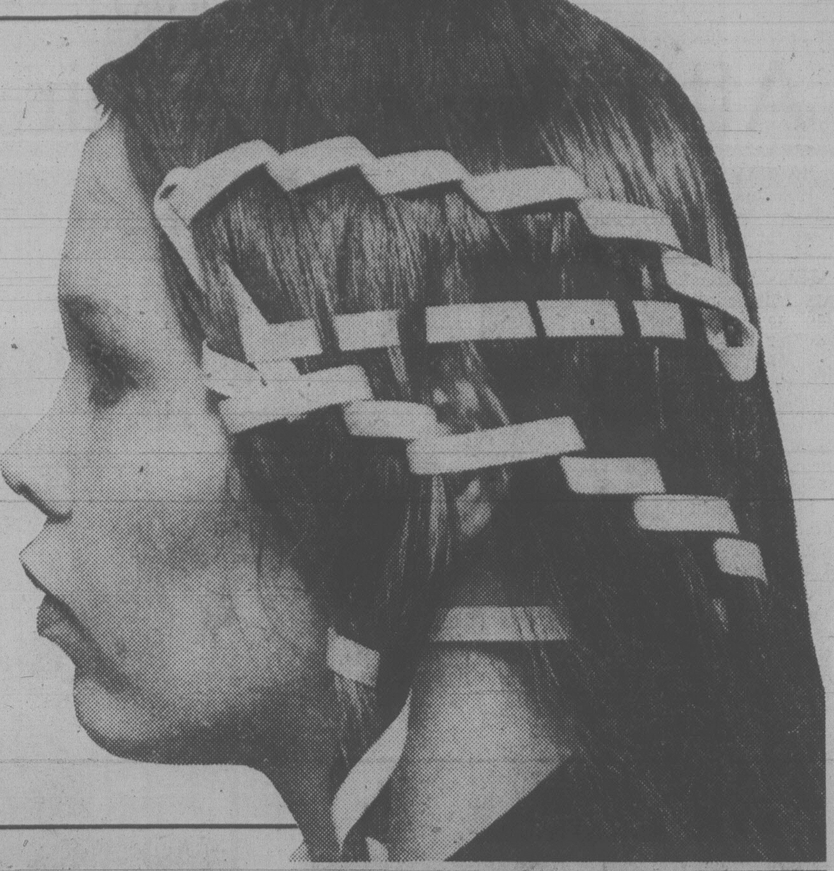
Hair Macrame



This new look — the latest in macrame — is a hair technique based on the theory that texture is as important to hair as width, length and depth. The aim is to use hair as a backdrop for different fibres.

Instead of styling with irons or rollers, the hair is woven or macramed into elaborate, elegant styles, which are expected to blend well with the trend back to sophisticated evening wear.

School Copes With Problems

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Some children's education sometimes must take a back seat to their emotional stability, inability to function normally with other children, their loneliness and frustration, say staff members at a school for children with such problems.

Clinical director Dr. Jim Johnson finds his most common diagnoses are hyperactivity with an organic basis, adjustment reaction to such matters as family breakup and personality disorders.

The purpose is to improve the children's behavioral problems while improving their academic competence, something that usual falls behind as the emotional problems have increased.

At the rear of the building are housed farm animals the children feed and care for.

At the school, goals are set and the children know they have a responsibility to do their best to progress.

The average length of stay at the centre is eight months although some requiring further help are transferred to the long-term facilities.

By L. L. Coleman, MD

After a complete, and I mean complete, examination, I was given a clean bill of health. After telling the good news to my wife, I rewarded myself with a hearty lunch. All I had was two drinks, then I collapsed. The next thing I know I was in Intensive Care in the hospital for four weeks. Why did the doctor say I was in "perfect health" when I was on the brink of such a disaster? — H. D.

Dear Mr. D.:

Such an unusual experience can very well be incomprehensible to the patient. It is frustrating to the doctor, who must explain such an occurrence.

You wonder why your electrocardiogram was "normal" at the time you were on the verge of an impending heart attack. The electrocardiogram, or EKG, reflects important changes that occur in the heart, but did you know that it sometimes takes 36 to 48 hours after a person has had a heart attack before the electrocardiogram picks up evidence of heart damage?

It is also true that even though this and other electronic devices are reliable in the diagnosis of heart disease, they cannot prophesy what can happen even within an hour or two.

It is, of course, fortunate that intensive care facilities were available in your community, that you have benefited by excellent care and are once again on the road to good health.

In New York State, there is growing concern that our school children are being poisoned by asbestos. I'm sure that other parents besides me are getting panicky about this. If the asbestos insulation is removed, is there still a danger that the children may develop lung trouble? — Mrs. J. R.

Dear Mrs. R.:

Soon after the state and city health administrations became aware of the danger of asbestos insulation, steps were taken immediately to eradicate this potential danger to the lungs. The asbestos is being removed and other safer material substituted. If any fibres are left, there is almost no possibility that children, teachers and school personnel will be affected.

The real problem about asbestos and the lung complications that can result from long-term inhalation occurs to people involved in the mining of asbestos and the manufacture of asbestos products.

For those who are thus involved, the most careful protective devices are available. Unfortunately, far too many people were exposed before the dangers were recognized and proper preventive techniques instituted.

KNIT & CHAT

Afternoon Repair Work

By MAY E. MacLEAN

It seems that in this busy life we don't get too much time for just social visiting in the afternoon with friends. I often look back to my childhood and remember the times when my mother had friends in for afternoon tea and a chat. So it was rather nice when my friend Anne phoned to ask if she could drop by one afternoon for a chat and also bring her knitting as she needed my advice.

She had spent many hours knitting a lovely ski sweater which had a pattern Fair-Isle yoke knitted in the round on a circular needle. The main part of the sweater was in a deep purple, with the Fair-Isle design in lilac and white.

Anne is very blonde so for her it would be a very attractive sweater. She also has a very petite figure, and, sad to say, her finished sweater was almost two sizes too large.

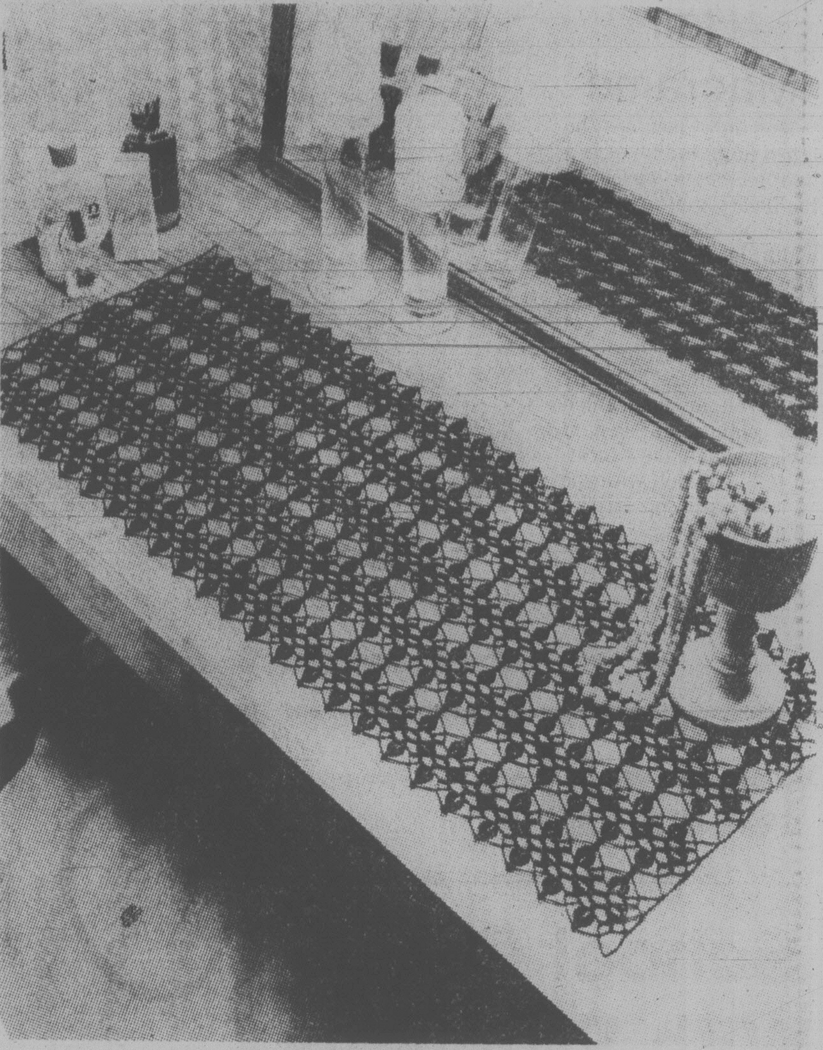
She had used an English pattern which had caught her eye in a magazine, and while her knitting was beautiful and even, she had simply not worked to the tension as given in the instructions.

I realize it was impossible for her to buy the wool the pattern called for, as it was just not available in the stores here in Canada; it had also taken more wool than the pattern had stated.

It's too bad that she hadn't asked for advice on what wool to substitute. As I pointed out to her, most yarn shop owners have a good idea of what will work up to the same tension, and certainly don't charge for this service.

Well what to do? I had her try it on. It dropped off the shoulders so much that the underarms and sleeves were much too low, making it almost impossible for her to move her arms with ease. While what should have been a neat-fitting neckband, almost looked like a scooped summer neckline!

It was easy to spot the problem once she had put it on. By taking one complete Fair-Isle pattern out of the centre back, it brought the whole sweater back into shape.



Crochet runners just the thing to dress up tables

I folded over this section and with pins made a seam down the centre back; this lifted the underarms back into the correct position, plus made the neckline smaller. At my suggestion, she allowed half-an-inch turnings either side of this back seam, making double rows of machine stitching before cutting the knitting in order to hold the stitches when they were cut. I suggested a back neck zipper for extra ease when putting the sweater on. It was fortunate that we could solve this problem without wasting so many precious hours of knitting.

This week's pattern is a crochet runner, seen here for the top of a chest or dressing table. However, the foundation row determines the width so that you can make it any size you wish.

I feel it would look particularly attractive as place mats for special occasions. The light, delicate crochet would look equally attractive in white, ecru or some of the decorator colors that are now being featured in crochet cotton. Four would make a most exquisite gift for a new bride.

To order Leaflet No. 7872, send 75 cents in coin, PLUS a stamped, self-addressed return envelope, long one if possible. If you do not have a stamp or envelope, please enclose an extra 25 cents to cover the cost of handling and print your name and address.

Send to: May E. MacLean, Knit and Chat, c/o 486 Montford Drive, Dollard des Ormeaux, Roxboro, Que. H9G 1M6.

Please be sure to state pattern numbers correctly when ordering and to enclose your stamped, return envelope for faster service. Allow about two weeks for normal delivery.

All back numbers are available at 75 cents and my catalogue of gift ideas is 25 cents along with a stamped, return envelope.

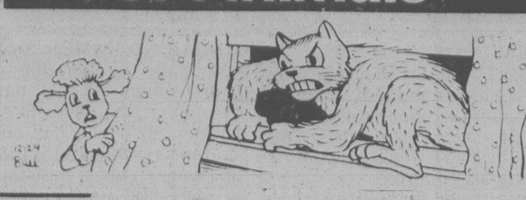
Wonderful World of Animals



Screen Test For Prowler Advised

DEAR DR. MILLER: My toy poodle isn't the problem. She's a little angel. The problem is our next door neighbor's male cat. He insists on coming into our bedroom at night through the open window. It has become a really impossible situation. He has terrified Pinkie, our poodle; he has sprayed around our bedroom and he mutilated my husband's arm when he tried to pick him up to evict him.

The neighbors show no inclination to keep the cat in. My husband has threatened to kill it. I don't think he would, but then again I'm not sure. This cat is really terrorizing us.

Is there a way we can protect ourselves without my husband having to do it bodily harm? Pinkie would like to help; it's just that she is not brave enough, nor big enough — not nearly. — B. V.

P.S.: The neighbors are good enough to the cat. It's just that they care nothing for our predicament and make no attempt to keep it in.

DEAR B. V.: Your first line of feline defence should be a screen for that bedroom window. That may be all that's required.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My 10-year-old schnauzer must think she is part rabbit. She goes bonkers over raw carrots. I give her a carrot twice a month. Would it be harmful to feed her once a week? — J. R.

DEAR J.R.: If bi-monthly carrot-crunching doesn't cause indigestion, your schnauzer should be able to handle the "long orange" on a much more frequent schedule. If she should on occasion have digestive problems, they could probably be eliminated by simply halving the carrot ration.

Sudden large amounts of roughage may be too much for an older canine not accustomed to any, but some dietary roughage is advisable for dogs, cats (and people) since it improves digestion and may provide other benefits.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our cat is showing some weakness in the hindquarters lately and he is not old. He was tested quite a while back for leukemia and found to be positive. Could there be any relationship between cat leukemia and this weakness in the hing legs? — R. L.

DEAR R.L.: Yes, there could be brain and/or spinal cord damage which could cause hindquarter (or front quarter) weakness which could be related to leukemia. Other possible causes for hindquarter weakness include injury, toxemia, blood clots, parasites, tumors, infections and malnutrition.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I traded birds with a classmate because mine was mean, but at least he wasn't an old bird. I don't think I did so well on the trade after all because this bird's legs and feet are all rough and scruffy and old-looking. It's disappointing because she is a real sweet bird but wow! what crummy legs! — I. A.

DEAR I. A.: Whether your bird should be good for three years or 30 depends upon the species and, of course, it also depends upon the health of the bird. Nor can you guess a bird's age by her legs. An old bird might have beautiful legs and a young one have legs and feet loaded with scales, cracked, bleeding and generally a mess. Leg troubles are frequently caused by mite infestation though there are other possibilities.

Your pet should be checked out by a bird-oriented veterinarian. He can probably improve the looks of her legs.

National Campaign Urged Against Polio and Lockjaw

HALIFAX (CP) — Canada badly needs a simple, nationwide program to protect people against preventable diseases such as polio and lockjaw, says Dr. Kenneth O. Wylie, president of the Canadian Medical Association.

Present methods of inoculating Canadians, splintered among the 10 separate immunization programs of the provinces, are an "inadequate mess," Wylie said in a speech to the annual meeting of the Nova Scotia Medical Society.

Wylie, a Winnipeg child-health specialist, denounced a new national campaign labelled National Immunization Month on the ground that it has been launched on a national budget of only $50,000.

Too Many Chills?

Patterned stockings, displayed here by Linda Bochon, Miss Edmonton, are a current fashion rage. And perhaps better still, they're a good friend in chilly weather. For both day and evening wear, stripes and patterns are proving the most popular models.

Latest in Shades A Real Insulator

By A. J. HAND

By now just about every homeowner knows what energy-wasters windows can be. Even the best double-glazed windows will use heat about eight times faster than an equal area of insulated wall. In this age of expensive energy, most of us can't afford that kind of heat loss.

Solution? There are several. One of the cheapest and simplest is the ordinary window shade. According to recent tests at Illinois Tech, window shades can cut heat loss through windows by 24 to 31 per cent. That's close to the thermal performance you'd gain by using triple glazing, but shades are much cheaper.

What about draperies and venetian blinds? Surprisingly, that same Illinois Tech study shows that they can't match the performance of shades. The blinds and drapes only cut heat losses by about five or six percent. This is probably because a properly fitted shade does a better job of keeping warm room air away from the cold window glass.

If you want the ultimate in heat-loss reduction, check out Insulating Shade Company's new High "R" Shade. This revolutionary design is made up of five separate layers of aluminized polyester film, wound onto a shade roller. When you pull the shade down, the layers separate and the shade expands to a thickness of about 2½ inches.

The result? According to independent lab tests, this shade, fitted in a special frame on a double glazed window, will deliver an R value of 17. That's better that the R value of 14.4 you get from the typical stud wall insulated with mineral wool!

Drawbacks? First, the shade is comparatively expensive at $2.75 a square foot. Fitting all the windows in the average home might cost around $500. Still, you could expect the window shades to pay for themselves in reduced energy costs in about four or five years. That's a better return on your money than you could get by putting it in the bank.

A second problem: To perform properly, the shade must be mounted in a special frame that surrounds your window and provides a seal around the shade. This means you must remove your existing window trim and replace it with this frame.

A third problem: The shade is built on the old-fashioned spring-loaded roller that has been used for window shades for years. It's an inherently balky mechanism that makes the High "R" shade a bit troublesome to raise and lower. This is not a serious problem, but it is annoying.

You can learn more about this shade in the January issue of Popular Science magazine. Or you can get a brochure from the maker by sending a dollar to Insulating Shade Co., Inc., P.O. Box 406, Guilford, Conn. 06437.

Free for the Asking

By HARRIET HART

In its Hinterland Who's Who series, the Canadian Wildlife Service has published a number of large folders which describe the appearance, characteristics, distribution, nesting and breeding habits of various water birds. Each folder shows a photo of the bird it describes. The following folders are available:

Black Duck; Wood Duck; Redhead; Bufflehead; Canvasback; Mallard; Canada Goose; Trumpeter Swan; Greater Snow Goose.

It is obvious that much research has gone into these folders. For instance, from the publication about the Greater Snow Goose you will learn, that when Jacques Cartier sailed up the St. Lawrence in 1535, he noticed many wild animals, birds and fish. Near what is now Quebec City, he saw thousands of white and grey wild geese. A century later a French missionary, Father Lejeune, suggested naming one of the islands on which he saw so many geese Snow Goose Island. That island is now called Goose Island.

Send your request for the folders to: Canadian Wildlife Service, Environment Canada, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0H3.

Please indicate your postal code and allow at least two to three weeks for delivery.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: When my husband's mother came to live with me and my husband 23 years ago, she made our lives so miserable that I vowed I would never bring such misery to my children if I ever had to live with them. One day I sat down and wrote myself a letter containing some "rules." I put them in an envelope marked, "To be opened on the day I go to live with one of my children." Then I put it away.

I've been widowed and self-sufficient for eight years, but I was recently forced to give up my job and go to live with my daughter. I'm submitting that letter. Perhaps your older readers might benefit from it, as I intend to. Here are the rules:

— Give what you can toward your keep. Any budget will stretch just so far.

— Try to make your own friends and develop interests outside the home.

— If you suspect they would like to go away on a vacation, but are hesitant because of you, offer to visit another relative or friend so they will be free to go.

— Don't offer any advice or express any opinion on family matters unless asked.

— Volunteer information that they might be too embarrassed to ask for, such as arrangements for your burial, hospitalization, etc.

These rules were written over 25 years ago. I read them often and am determined to keep them — SEVENTY-SIX AND HOLDING

DEAR ABBY: Our eldest daughter had to get married at 18, after having gone steady with a "very nice" boy for three years, so we made a rule for the younger children: NO GOING STEADY.

Now we are having trouble with our 15-year-old daughter. She wants to go steady. We said no, she has to have a date with another boy between dates with her special boyfriend. She says no one else asks her.

Tell me, Abby, how can parents keep their children from going steady? We know from past experience that it is dangerous, and we don't want any more "hurry-up" marriages in our family. But if the kids don't want to go with anyone else, or if no one else asks them, what can parents do? — TRYING HARD

DEAR TRYING: Instead of making rules, if parents would work toward building the kind of relationship with their children that lends itself to straight talk on a sensible, unemotional basis, they would fare better.

Let your children know why too much togetherness puts a strain on two normal young people who have a strong physical attraction for each other. Explain that this attraction is usually equated with love — but don't put it down and say it's only puppy love.

Tell them that the only way to reduce temptation is to reduce the time spent together alone.

Tell them that you are aware that when young people think they are in love, the more they make out, the more difficult it is to control their desires — and they seldom do less when they're together than they did the previous time. Let them know that you understand and trust them, but you are opposed to going steady because you want to help them, not punish them. And then, Mother, you will have less to worry about.

DEAR ABBY: This is the second marriage for both of us. We both have grown children, so we had papers drawn up to be sure that everything from our first marriages will go to our own chilren.

I sold my house (at his request) and moved into his with the understanding that if anything happened to him the house would promptly go to his children.

I do all the cooking, cleaning and laundry — in addition to holding down an outside job. I buy all the groceries, had cable TV installed, and even take turns paying for meals when we eat out. We bought all new furniture for which I paid half. I also pay for any long distance calls I make.

He agreed to pay the water and electric bills, but now he wants me to pay half because he says the bills are too high. When we have words (always about money) he either goes to his daughter's house for two or three days, or leaves town.

Do you think I'm getting a fair deal, Abby? I'm tired of being a patsy. What should I do? — NO NAMES PLEASE

DEAR NO NAMES: Since you make no mention of your feelings for this man, your marriage sounds like a business deal — a bad one. All you have to invest is time and money. And at this stage of your life, time is more important than money. Walk.

Don't Go Pruning Damaged Plants

GARDENING
jack beastall

Although milder temperatures and rain are forecast for this weekend, the soil is frozen hard at the time of writing.

So far, no reports of damaged plants have been received, possibly because New Year celebrations have been uppermost in the minds of home gardeners.

It is after the temperatures moderate that plant damage, if any, becomes apparent.

The present cold spell is by no means unusual here. There are many who recall the winters of 1950, 1955 and 1968.

The greatest damage to plants was probably in 1955. Snowflakes started to fall as the time gun was fired for the Remembrance Day services; by midnight temperatures had plunged and gardeners were not forewarned in time to provide suitable protection for their outdoor plants.

The severe damage was due to the sudden cold wave replacing a prolonged mild and wet period during which garden plants made considerable new growth. This new growth was killed the first night.

Conditions were different this time. Frosts in November and December had slowed down growth and ripened much of the tip growth produced in October.

It is possible that present damage may not be as severe as the temperatures would lead us to expect. But the story will unfold as the temperatures moderate.

Whatever the results there is one warning I would impress on all home gardeners.

DO NOT start pruning back plants that appear to be damaged, nor lift and discard plants which seem to have been killed.

This is the voice of experience. Many home gardeners discarded plants in 1955, much to their regret when the same plants in a neighbor's garden made new growth from the roots the following May.

The only damage which requires immediate attention is branches broken by high winds or the weight of wet snow.

The breaks should be carefully trimmed with a sharp saw and a pruning knife, and the cut surfaces painted with Braco tree emulsion or a similar product. Modern synthetic paints are not recommended for use on plants.

While newcomers to the district enjoy a period of snow each winter, long-time residents politely ask you not to mention such a possibility. Because of this approach home gardeners rarely make any preparations for a heavy snowfall, and the benefit of snow on plants is known to only a few.

Preparations include placing stakes beside plants along paths and driveways to indicate their position when under snow. This is followed by a careful assessment of the garden layout and the marking of areas where snow can be piled when removed from path or driveway.

When it is necessary to clear a driveway at six o'clock on a cold winter morning, there is no time to consider where the snow is thrown and much plant damage results. A plan should be evolved beforehand.

When rain first turns to snow, and temperatures start dropping, the snow is the best insulation material for covering garden plants.

As each flake settles on the ground, or on a leaf surface, it traps a minute pocket of air. Millions of these tiny air pockets prevent cold from penetrating to the plants or the soil.

A thermometer at soil level when the change in precipitaton takes place will register zero C although the air temperatures drop much lower before the snow melts.

This applies to snow that is not disturbed. As soon as the gardener steps on the snow the air is released and the snow turns to ice.

When snow is removed from low-growing plants, shaken from shrubs or trees, shovelled from path or driveway onto a planted area including a lawn, ice forms and the plants are no longer protected with a warm blanket.

Some gardeners feel it is a kindness to remove the snow from plants and to tramp around the planted areas to see that everything is doing well, but the results are detrimental rather than helpful.

Snow is the most efficient way of replacing moisture deep into the soil and replenishing the underground water table. It is also high in nitrogen, one of the reasons for the good wheat-growing areas on the Prairies.

When temperatures drop sufficiently to turn rain into snow the ground surface does not freeze if the snowfall is deep enough. As the snow melts it sinks into the soft soil without the run-off associated with heavy rains.

Present conditions are the reverse. The soil is now frozen so hard it is impossible to dig a leek or a parsnip.

If an accumulation of snow gathers here we could experience flooding in many gardens. Snow on top of frozen soil will again be an insulating blanket which prevents the frost from melting as the temperatures moderate. The snow could eventually melt before the frost and there could be soil loss by run-off.

The home gardener's main job over the weekend and through next week will be to keep a close watch for soil loss from the roots of plants, leaving the roots exposed to the elements.

Those gardeners who put some semi-dry compost under cover in September, or even in December, as recommended in this column, will have dry material on hand to replace the soil losses. Those who failed to take this precaution will find it difficult to break down a frozen compost heap.

A sudden cold spell, as we have just had, will be a new experience in coastal weather for those who have recently moved to this area, and it would pay to keep a record of conditions and plan damage as a guide in the future, just as the record of previous cold spells are guiding us in our plans today.

Poison Planned For Birds

McMINNVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — After trying to shoot them and then wash them away, officials in this Middle Tennessee community now plan to poison pesky — and dangerous — blackbirds, roosting by the millions in the area.

"The little old ladies in the humane society in New York and Washington don't think these birds ought to be molested," said county extension agent C.L. Ayers.

But county officials plan to "bait" selected areas in Warren County where an estimated six million birds are roosting in pine thickets and causing severe damage to grain crops and a possible health hazard to humans.

The birds, mostly starlings and blackbirds, migrate south during the winter months to avoid the cold.

In 1976, some 50 civil defence and national guardsmen tried to blast the birds at one roost. They killed a large number, but there were so many, it didn't work.

Last year the chemical, Tergitol, was used. The detergent washes the protective oils from the birds, leaving them helpless against the cold. About 5 million of the birds were killed, but they are back this year.

County Judge H.T. "Zeke" Pelham was also critical of that method because of the red tape necessary to drop the chemical from the air.

Now they will try the poison them.

"We hope this method will get rid of every one of them," said Pelham.

Pelham said crushed corn and wheat will be dropped by air on selected areas near roosts. Later this week, a grain-like poison called Starlicide, will be dropped in the same areas.

Federal approval is not necessary to poison the birds, according to Jimmy White of the Tennessee Department of Agriculture.

But he has little hope of keeping birds out of the area.

"They're fighting a losing battle with that (poison), in my opinion," said White.

Barbados Visit

BRIDGETOWN, (AP) — Canadian External Affairs minister Don Jamieson will visit Barbados Jan. 16-19, the government announced Friday. He will hold talks with officials here and visit projects in which Canadians hold investments.

WEEK'S WORK

Indoor work may be indicated by weather; make wood labels from strips of wood from edge of 2 by 4's, 8 to 12 inches long. Paint with two coats outside white paint, letter with black. These will last many years; unwanted names are just painted over.

Stakes for special plants will be needed. Old stakes should be dried, cleaned and repointed where rotted.

Check seed catalogues for making final lists. Note length of time to maturity of different varieties and also type of soil and climate needed for success.

Notice early varieties of sweet corn; a pea that is grown for edible pods when young, or shelled peas when older. And the new striped tomato, though what advantage this is remains to be seen.

Keep watering of indoor plants to a minimum, for growth is slow and not inclined to be strong during days of low light intensity.

Italians Worry About Image

By SAMUEL KOO

ROME (AP) — Italians are upset at the image many of them say is being projected abroad—a country of violence, scandals and inefficiency.

"From London, New York and Paris, Italy begins to look like a banana republic," says Luigi Campanella, a widely travelled real estate developer. "It's blown way out of proportion."

"Even in my shop, some foreign ladies refuse to let go of their purses even when they try new dresses on," says Anna Salvatore, owner of a boutique on chic Via Condotti. "Being cautious? I'd say this is downright insulting. I can only guess that they've had some real good indoctrination before coming here."

Ludovico Ortona, a spokesman for the foreign ministry, agrees that Italy's image abroad is "focused too much on terrorism—largely due to the reporting of the sensational side of our situation." He says "something should be done about it" but admits that the freedom of the press makes any kind of government effort difficult.

The spectacular circumstances of the terrorist kidnappings and other crimes—such as the kidnap-murder of former premier Aldo Moro earlier this year by the Red Brigades—undoubtedly have contributed to an impression that Italy is violence-prone, but statistics show that the country is relatively "safe."

Italy, a country of 56 million, reported 1,193 murders in 1977 (22 per million). By comparison, West Germany with a population of 60 million recorded 2,598 murders (43 per million), the Netherlands with 14 million 1,058 (75 per million) and Sweden with eight million had 131 murders (16 per million). New York City alone reported 1,557 homicides during the same period—194 per million.

Twenty-five persons were been killed last year in politically motivated killings in Italy. In November alone, figures compiled by the Communist party show that political violence left four dead and 24 wounded. The attacks were claimed by 41 terrorist groups—37 of them leftist.

The targets of the terrorist attacks have been limited to a select groups of government and business officials, district attorneys and journalists.

No comparative figures are available for other crimes such as purse-snatchings, muggings, burglaries and drug-related offences, but Italian law enforcement authorities say Italy belongs to the "upper group of safe countries" in Europe.

Recent police successes in rounding up terrorists, including the capture in Milan last October of top-echelon Red Brigades elements—also have helped restore confidence in the country's law enforcement officials.

Italy's economy—battered by repeated strikes and rising labor costs—is showing unexpected strength and resiliency.

The lira remains stable and the inflation rate is manageable at slightly over 10 per cent a year. The Bank of Italy's foreign reserves have shot up beyond all expectations to over $20 billion and the balance of payments so far this year shows a surplus of $6 billion. The economy in the perennially depressed south is developing at a much faster rate than the developed north.

The Centre for Social Studies and Investment, which once described Italy as "a society in the process of losing its paddle on the sea of crisis," says in the latest report: "The Italian society has reacted to the last 12-month tempest, by accentuating enriching and developing its flexibility and articulation capacity.

Signs of prosperity abound.

Restaurants are full. Expensive shops are crowded with persons with bulging shopping bags. Both Fiat and Alfa Romeo, Italy's two largest automakers, are hard up meeting delivery schedule. Illegal foreign laborers stream into Italy by the thousands in search of jobs.

Ortona says people get "distorted ideas" of a couple of issues and a few cities.

"Very little is said of what happens in provinces, how they are changing, how the normal people go about their business—it's like reporting about America without ever leaving Manhattan," he adds.

Margo Hammond, a writer from Kenosha, Wis. who lives in Rome, says that despite the enormous publicity, Moro's assassination did not affect individuals as much as it was portrayed abroad.

"This idea of living in fear may be true for the super rich or top officials, but as far as the ordinary citizens are concerned, it's the same good Italian life as ever," she says.

MORE PEOPLE FLY

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — The world's airlines carried a record 673 million passengers last year, in part because of fare-cutting, the International Civil Aviation Organization said this week. Traffic on scheduled routes was up 12 per cent over 1977, a growth rate surpassed only once this decade, the UN agency said.

9-Year Boom In Postcards

LONDON (UPI) — "Postcards are really beginning to sweep the world," said David Pearlman. "I mean, just look at it."

He waved his arm around a huge room crammed with 1.5 million picture postcards and people who are making postcard collecting one of the fastest-growing hobbies of the day.

The room held the third annual British International Postcard Exhibition, a four-day binge which Pearlman, editor of a monthly magazine for postcard collectors, called "the single most important display of cards in the world."

It showed off collections of "Having wonderful time" postcards whose pictures were grouped in specific themes — on cricket, royalty, trains or ships or airplanes, a collection of maps on postcards ("Greetings from Ohio, the Buckeye State"), naughty French postcards of plump nude ladies, nice French ones of Art Nouveau girls in woven silk.

Most visitors gave these merely a glance. Instead they came to do serious business with the 50-odd professional postcard dealers crowded elbow to elbow around the hall.

By now the buying and selling of old postcards is a business worth millions a year, even though individual cards can still sell for pennies.

"I suppose it's a search for nostalgia, for something of the past," Pearlman said. "But suddenly there are collectors everywhere.

"The main collecting areas are the United States, France and Britain. But those two dealers over there came from British Columbia for this show, and there are collectors in Australia, New Zealand, Germany — just everywhere."

The boom began nine years ago when the postcard turned 100 years old. The first one to meet the formal definition of "a piece of cardboard to be delivered by the post office at the postcard rate" was issued in Austria on Oct.1, 1869.

It was probably the world's most successful gimmick. By "the golden age of the picture postcard," roughly from 1903 to 1910, about 900 million a year were mailed in Britain alone. Postcards became such a mania that a Glasgow newspaper lamented in 1903:

"In ten years Europe will be buried beneath picture postcards."

So many survive, Pearlman said, that any collector going after sheer quantity would soon be swamped. Specialization is a must, and even then quantity is a problem. Collector Reginald Silvester concentrated on postcards issued by British railway companies and soon had 12,000 different cards.

Postcards now are divided into some 3,000 separate categories. It is amazing the subjects which can form a collection.

One specialist in the London show exhibited postcards on the history of the teddy bear. Another concentrated on "life in Russia in 1902." There were collections on the Boer War, on the cartoon character Felix the Cat, on postcards showing women at work in rural Ireland at the turn of the century.

Some collectors specialize in postcard curiosities — jigsaw cards, or ones made of ivory or leather or inlaid woods, or cards which show nothing until rubbed with metal. There was even a set of three-dimensional cards published in 1910 with viewing glasses attached.

In spite of the vast numbers which flooded the world, "the supply of cards is limited now — especially old cards in good condition," Pearlman said. "And demand is growing by leaps and bounds. You can guess the result."

One result is that the world's leading fine art auctioneers, Sotheby's and Christie's, now occasionally auction postcards. A price of $200 for a card is not unusual. Many at the London show were priced at $35.

The new boom in postcard collecting, curiously enough, is a repeat performance. It was a frantic craze in Edwardian times.

"Every home had its postcard album around the turn of the century," Pearlman said. More and more have them again.

$5M Heroin Grab

CHICAGO (AP) — Police seized pure heroin with a street value of $5 million, after arresting a man they believe is connected with a Mexican heroin ring. Nicholas Chavez, 34, was charged with possession of a controlled substance. Police found two plastic bags containing 11½ pounds of heroin in Chavez' apartment.

Ex-Dief Minister Lands Role In Robert Mitchum Thriller

SEVIGNY
. . . 'terribly sinister'

MONTREAL — Pierre Sevigny, whose career as a federal politician was shattered by the Munsinger scandal of 1966, says everyone should be in the movies at least once, and his turn is now.

A Diefenbaker-era deputy defence minister and house speaker, Sevigny, 61, makes his film debut Monday as a sophisticatedly-crooked politican in the Robert Mitchum psychological thriller Agency.

Sevigny's name was linked with the politics-and-sex scandal over Gerda Munsinger, the German socialite who was called a security risk by the RCMP because of her connections with the Soviet Union.

In the film, he makes a brief speaking appearance as Mitchum's boss.

"The idea surprised me, and even better, intrigued me. It sounded like fun, so why not. Everyone should be in the movies at least one in their lifetime," said Sevigny.

The suavely-handsome grey-haired colonel was "discovered" in the lobby of Montreal's elegant Ritz Carlton Hotel by film producer Robert Lantos and director George Kaczender who were looking for "someone with a presence . . . someone who would establish immediate credibility as Mitchum's superior.

"Sevigny, with his political and military experience, walking with a cane . . . sent shocks through us when we spotted him. We knew then and there he was what we wanted," Lantos said.

Sevigny, who has no illusions about his acting abilities, says his film premiere will likely also be his finale.

"They just want me to look dignified, maybe say a few words. I'm out to have a good time, to enjoy myself. I surely won't have Sir Laurence Olivier or Richard Burton shaking in their boots — not even John Diefenbaker."

Agency is about a group that buys a large advertising agency to manipulate the masses through subliminal messages. In his brief role as a political heavy, Sevigny establishes that the conspiracy goes beyond the group into the world of American politics.

Sevigny laughed off reports that he was chosen for the part because he "has an uncanny ability to look terribly sinister."

"I may look serious, and some say I have an unscrupulous face, but sinister? Never."

In 1966, Sevigny admitted knowing Munsinger, but a judicial inquiry found no actual breach of security and no charges were laid.

PARDON FOR RIEL?

PRINCE ALBERT — Federal Transport Minister Otto Lang says he is considering a request for a posthumous pardon for Metis leader Louis Riel.

Lang told about 60 people at a public meeting here he has read the petition submitted by the Association of Metis and non-status Indians of Saskatchewan and has requested a legal analysis. He would make a statement after receiving the analysis.

Devil Made Him Do It

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The director of a church day care centre showed up in night court here carrying her false teeth in her hand and told the judge they were knocked out by the church pastor.

"I just let the devil get to me a minute," said the Rev. E. Scott Howard after he was charged with assault and battery. "There was a misunderstanding and in frustration I swung at her. It was just a little tap."

But Bertha Pratt, 42, said the alleged slap from the 60-year-old minister during an argument over paperwork was more than a little tap.

"He smacked me hard enough to break the bottom teeth of my dental plate. I carried them up there and showed them to the judge," Mrs. Pratt said.

Tough Shave

TORRANCE, Calif. — Pernetta Glenn, 28, a former nurse's aide, was sentenced Friday for attacking with a hammer a wheelchair-bound patient who slapped her because he did not want to be shaved.

Glenn threw an electric razor at him, kicked him and attacked him with the hammer, court was told.

Schreyers Meet Queen

LONDON — Ed Schreyer, Canada's governor-general designate, arrived here with his wife and three of his four children today for a week-long private visit during which the family will meet the Queen.

The former premier of Manitoba and family will be staying at the home of High Commissioner Paul Martin.

The Schreyers, with daughters Lisa, 16, and Karmel, 14, and son Jason, 11, were scheduled to attend the theatre tonight and spend Saturday sightseeing.

Mr. and Mrs. Schreyer will spend Sunday and Monday with the Queen at Sandringham House, about 160 kilometres north of London, and will be joined by the children to meet the Queen late Monday.

The family is scheduled to return direct to Winnipeg Jan. 12 aboard an Air Canada flight.

WASHINGTON — H. R. Haldeman is planning a second book about his White House years and, like former boss Richard Nixon, he's gone to court to get his tapes.

Haldeman asked U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson Jr. on Friday to order release of nine journals and 50 cassette tapes that Haldeman wrote and dictated in the White House as a personal diary.

Haldeman's book, The Ends of Power, dealing mostly with Watergate, was published while he was in prison, and he is said to have earned at least $500,000 from it.

SALT LAKE CITY — Rachel David, 15, lone survivor of her family's suicide plunge from a downtown Salt Lake City hotel balcony, was awake and communicating Friday, although unable to speak, doctors said.

DETROIT — Fred Michael Dixon Jr., a 28-year-old guard described as "an exemplary employee" was freed pending a hearing Jan. 25 on a charge that he stole $1.5 million from the armored car he was assigned to protect.

ACTON, Ont. — Denny Andrews' childhood dreams of being a hero came true this week when he learned he will receive the Star of Courage for rescuing two skaters who had fallen through the treacherous ice of Notre Dame Bay off the coast of Newfoundland.

The 18-year-old factory worker jumped into the icy waters of the Atlantic in December, 1977, to rescue Ronald Sheppard, 25, and his cousin, Lorne Sheppard, 15, who had gone out on the bay to skate.

EDMONTON — Millionaire Edmonton businessman Pat Gionnini watched helplesly Friday as his pride and joy — an $80,000 Silver Cloud Rolls Royce — exploded and went up in smoke in his garage.

VIBO VALENTIA — Kidnappers Friday freed Marquis Bernardo Toraldo, 32, a southern Italian nobleman held hostage for 104 days, police said.

SHELBOURNE, N.S. — Leslie Hines, 51, a U.S. fishing boat captain has been fined $1,600 and his cargo of 26,000 pounds of swordfish confiscated for unlawfully entering Canadian waters and obstructing fisheries officials.

OTTAWA — Outspoken Newfoundland Conservative MP John Crosbie (St. John's West) was admitted to hospital in St. John's Friday for observation and tests.

Sedimental Journey

JOHANNESBURG — Steven Van Rensburg, 52, an employee of the city engineering department, took an unscheduled tour of the Johannesburg sewer system.

Van Rensburg's unusual tour of the city, 40 metres below the streets, began Friday in a sewer pipe being repaired beneath the municipal bus station.

He slipped on some sewage, fell into the stream and disappeared with the current.

His colleagues raised the alarm and thirty minutes later Van Rensburg was found clinging to a safety bar, clad in his underwear because the current had torn his clothes off.

China Buys U.S. Film

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — China has purchased the science fiction movie Futureworld, American International Pictures announced Friday.

The film company said Futureworld will be the first U.S. film to be shown on a mass audience basis in China since the Communist revolution in 1949.

Futureworld, made in 1976 and starring Peter Fonda, is a sequel to Westworld, which was about a luxury resort that allowed visitors to indulge in their fantasies.

Vernon Returns With Symphony

The musical talents of a noted Canadian artist who is almost a native son of Victoria will be displayed on the Victoria Symphony podium this weekend. First concert of the 1979 half of the current season will take place Sunday at 2:30 p.m. and Monday at 8 p.m. at the University Centre Auditorium. Guest conductor is Timothy Vernon.

Vernon is familiar to Victoria music lovers both for his notable work with the Amity Singers and his musically astute and vital conducting of the VanIsle Opera's The Bartered Bride last fall. He has also twice conducted the Canadian Opera Company in visits to Victoria, most recently The Marriage of Figaro.

By AUDREY JOHNSON

A fine program has been selected by Vernon for the forthcoming symphony concerts. As guest soloist he will have with him an extraordinary young artist in 21-year-old Shlomo Mintz, the Russian-born Israeli violinist protege of Isaac Stern.

Since the young artist was selected by Zubin Mehta to replace an ailing Itzhak Perlman to perform the Paganini Concerto in D Major with the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra, Mintz has performed with major musical organizations in many countries. In his first American appearance four seasons ago at Carnegie Hall, playing the demanding Bruch Concerto No. 1 in D minor — the same concerto he is to play here — with the Pittsburgh Symphony under Steinberg, critics were unanimous in comparisons between Mintz and virtuosi of far more mature years.

Timothy Vernon, at 32, is one of Canada's most sought-after conductors, both for opera performances and as a symphony guest. Born in Vancouver, he grew up in Victoria, his early career here marked by frequent top-place awards in music festivals and first class honors in every music examination. He became a conducting protege of Otto-Werner Mueller and at the age of 19 entered the Vienna State Academy of Music and was subsequently accepted into the conducting school as a pupil of the renowned Hans Swarowsky.

He also studied in France, Holland and in Italy with the great maestro, Franco Ferarra. Before returning to Canada in 1974, Vernon guest conducted orchestras in Austria, France, Italy, Holland, West Germany, Bulgaria and the United States.

After forming and directing (at the invitation of Vancouver Symphony members) the Columbia Orchestra on the mainland, he was appointed director of the Amity Singers and led that ensemble to an unprecedented position, with Canada Council support increasing by 150 per cent. As conductor and music director of the Regina Symphony Orchestra and Philharmonic Chorus, Vernon secured the orchestra's first CBC national broadcast, and helped increase subscription sales in Regina by 60 per cent.

He became music director of the Canadian Opera Company's touring company in 1976 and is now co-director of the spring season in Toronto. He will be conducting all the performances of Rossini's La Cenerentola at the Royal Alexandra Theatre and also performances of Donizetti's L'Elisir d'Amore next December. This spring he will be conducting La Traviata for the Vancouver Opera Society and has just had an offer to conduct the Vancouver production of Smetana's The Bartered Bride next season.

In addition to the Bruch violin concerto, the Victoria Symphony program includes the overture to La Cenerentola, Wagner's Siegfried Idyll, and Stravinsky's Pulcinella.

Tickets will be available at the University Centre Auditorium prior to performances, or reservations may be made by calling 385-6515.

FAST AND FUNNY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Amateur Night at the Dixie Bar and Grill is the name of the show, but there are no amateurs in sight for this NBC movie.

It's a fast-moving film that is at once funny and poignant. It all takes place in one night at a San Fernando Valley bar that stages an amateur night to drum up business.

One by one, the amateur performers come into the bar bringing their hopes, dreams and delusions with them. They range from pathetic to talented.

It's a very large cast, but every actor gets his moment in the spotlight and comes through brilliantly.

Victor French of Carter Country stars as Mac, the bar owner, and Louise Latham is his wife, Fanny. Candy Clark is a waitress who spurns beer salesman Rick Hurst because she's hopelessly in love with a man serving a life prison term.

Riots and Love in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Shooting is to begin here Jan. 8 on the feature-length movie Yesterday, which features roving gangs of University of Montreal students rioting on the McGill University campus and students from the two universities slugging it out in hockey games.

To be produced by Dal Productions Ltd., Yesterday is also a love story about a French-Canadian girl and an American student studying in Montreal in 1967.

The young American student, Matt, will be played by Vince Van Patten, best known for his roles in Disney movies and his television part as the Bionic Boy.

In her first major film role, Quebec actress Claire Pimpare stars as Gaby, the French-Canadian girl. Veteran actor Eddie Albert also has a featured role.

Directed by Canadian Larry Kent, Yesterday is scheduled for release in August, 1979.

'California Suite'

The Glitter's on Outside

Review by Lorraine Locherty

Stars clutter Neil Simon's latest comedy, California Suite, like raisins sticking out of a plum pudding. A pudding that looks good on the outside but is slightly stale toward the centre.

The movie appears to have everything going for it, including the talented cast and an Academy Award winning director, but it doesn't live up to expectations.

Simon's snappy screenplay is glib and often funny, but the repartee is sometimes too fast for the audience to keep up with. Even director Herbert Ross (The Turning Point) has trouble maintaining control. The pace is uneven and the direction ragged.

Most of the action takes place at a swank California resort and consists of four separate episodes that have nothing in common except all the participants staying at the same hotel. In his stage play, Simon kept all the segments separate, but in the movie version they are woven together. Ross fails to achieve continuity and the constant switching back and forth between segments is erratic and confusing.

The audience is treated to witty dialogue and high calibre acting in one episode starring Maggie Smith as an aging English actress up for her first academy award and Michael Caine as her bisexual antique dealer husband.

Another episode matches Jane Fonda and Alan Alda as a divorced couple with opposite lifestyles fighting over custody of their 17-year-old daughter. This one doesn't fare as well. Alda and Fonda have trouble delivering their rapid-fire lines with conviction. But there are some amusing scenes and Ross wisely decides to occasionally take the action out of the claustrophobic hotel room.

The third episode, with Walter Matthau as an indiscreet husband and Elaine May as the wife who catches him in the act, is worse. The fourth, starring Richard Pryor and Bill Cosby as doctors taking a vacation together should have been left out.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Sunday, January 7
By Sydney Omarr

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on production, survey of costs, recovering lost items, protecting valuables. Capricorn, Cancer and the number 8 figure prominently. Dig beneath surface indications. Accept offer of aid, cooperation from older individual.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Finish what you start — do so with verve, confidence. Accent individual flair. Moon in your sign means you are at right place, at right time. Take initiative. Stress originality, independence. Wear bright colors!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You get chance to light dark hallways, to provide guidance and inspiration. Those who are handicapped, confined, discouraged will look to you for hope, an example of one who can achieve. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Teach, learn, test, gain confidence in your extrasensory perception. Aquarius figures in scenario. Popularity increases, romance is featured. Spotlight on friends, hopes and wishes. Remember diet, health resolutions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis on reputation, honor, authority, promotion. Diversify, look at lighter side. Writing, special mail and travel are featured. Gemini, Sagittarius persons could play key roles. Diversify and expand.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Test, challenge is featured. Material you need is at a distance. Open lines of communications. Ask questions. Express views. Break through maze of red tape. You have right to be heard and read. Taurus, Leo persons are in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Analyze, find reasons, reject the flimsy and superficial. Accent on money that "has strings." Be ready for change, variety, travel — and an intensified relationship. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius are a major part of scenario.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on responsibility, commitment, partnership, marriage. Adjustment within domestic area is featured. Go slow, lie low, let others do most of the talking. Taurus individual presents views that may be opposite your own.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Emphasis on work, finding answers to questions posed by relatives, close neighbors. Steer away from wishful thinking, self-deception. Maintain low profile. Obtain hint from Scorpio message.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lunar and other aspects indicate hard-driving bargains, decisions, reluctant compromises. You're involved, whether or not you are fully aware of it. Business, love, responsibility, intensified activity all blend into your scenario.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You gain wider recognition — one you thought had "abandoned" you is back in the picture. Accent on property, conclusions, finising touches. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Take care of — you. Build solid blocks of security.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on selectivity. Ideas are plentiful — key is to choose quality. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. You gain fresh perception. Movement replaces what was moribund. Leo, Aquarius figure promjentnly.

IF JANUARY 7 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are spiritual, introspective, often lonely, a perfectionist, psychic. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in your lfe. January and October will be two of your most significant months of 1979, a year which sees you defining terms, struggling to regain sense of direction — a time when you get second emotional wind and have chance to express yourself in a meaningful manner. You have sense of time and history. You are able to perceive when something of importance is to occur. It is not easy for others to fool you, but often you do a "good" job of deceiving yourself. This month, January, can be a money and love month for you. You gain plaudits for having views vindicated. You will have added pressure to handle more responsibility, but emotional and financial rewards could also be considerable.

Monday, January 8

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis on collections, payments, reaching more persons, enlarging operation, improving distribution and display. Libra, Taurus figure prominently. You will receive plaudits as view are verified. Special profit — or honor — is due.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Push ahead, start something, exercise independence of thought, action. Stress originality, pioneering procedures. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Popularity increases, personal magnetism draws many to you. Special person is in picture. Could be start of "something big"!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Follow through, be sensitive to subtle nuances. Cancer, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Accent on secrets, hospitals, charitable organizations. You gain access to material which had been restricted.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent on desire, diversification, accelerated activity, a surprise social invitation. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure in scenario. Expand horizons, raise level of expectations. Yes, you will have something to celebrate!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis on achievement, recognizing obstacles, finding ways to get personal policies across. Steady effort, routine results in vindication and victory. Aquarius, Taurus, Scorpio persons figure in scenario.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Express yourself, imprint style, read and write, communicate and travel. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. Change proves beneficial. Active, alert person is your ally, although you may find this difficult to acknowledge.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Involvement indicated — nothing halfway in money or love. Redecorate, remodel, beautify surroundings, say "Yes" to purchase of luxury item. You may learn truth about diamonds being a girl's best friend!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be wary of "papers to sign." Check fine points, subtle indications, rights, permissions. Pisces, Taurus figure in scenario. Play waiting game, don't volunteer for "danger zones." Be discreet, modest and patient.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Obtain valuable hint from Scorpio message. Line up material, straighten files, bring priorities into sharp focus. Older individual lends benefit of experience — if you are receptive. Money picture is brighter than might be apparent on surface.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Emphasis on change, ingenuity, creativity and affairs of heart. Contacts increase. You're able to get things done. Aries, Libra, Scorpio figure prominently. Event occurs which vindicates your actions, views.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): New approach enables you to move the "immovable." Leo is in picture. Accent on building on solid base. You can conclude transaction. Your own insight, original and special touch will win the day.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on decisions, ideas which can become viable concepts. Follow through on hunch. Short trip is on agenda. Relative with digestive problem attempts to impose will. Humor can achieve wonders. Know it and act accordingly.

IF JANUARY 8 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are determined, strong where will is concerned, stubborn, very attractive to opposite sex. You love challenge, can handle pressure and responsibility. Your sense of timing is uncanny. You have an affinity with older people. Cancer, Capricorn persons play important roles in your life. September will be your most significant month of 1979, a year featuring business productivity, marital status, family circle. You are rewarded for past efforts. You will make money and love, you'll feel more alive. You complete an important project before January ends. You make a valuable new contact in February.

Sadat Cracks Down

CAIRO (AP) — In a crackdown ordered by President Anwar Sadat, police have driven beggars and street-corner vendors underground and handed out tickets for offences ranging from smoking in theatres to pinching girls.

Police said Thursday that 28,580 violators have been nabbed since the crackdown started Jan. 1.

In a special televised address, Sadat told the nation a "new kind of behavior" was needed and a prominent politician wrote in Cairo's leading newspaper that a "jihad," or holy war, was needed to clean up the streets.

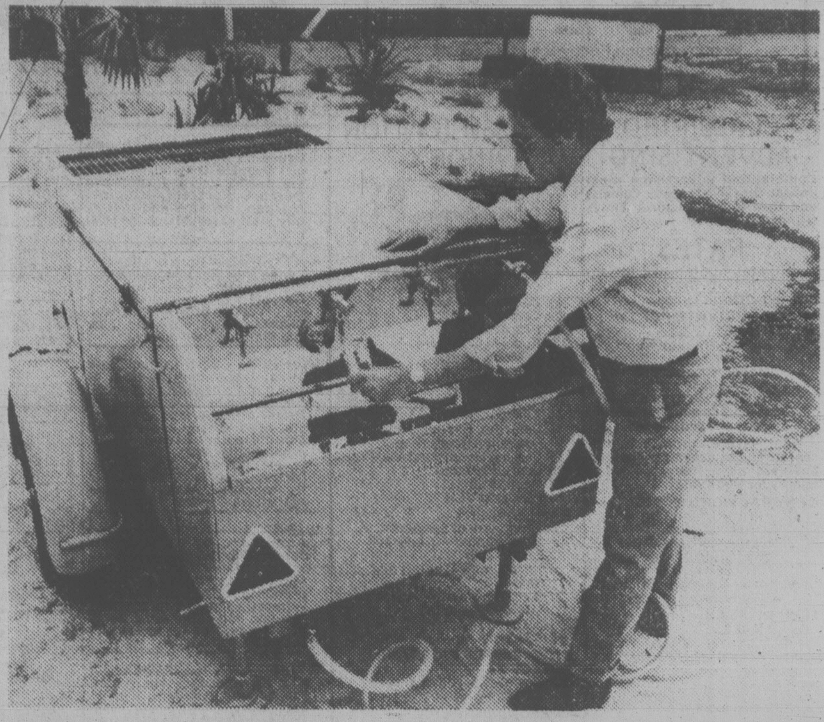
Thus far police have arrested 945 litterbugs and 1,335 street vendors along with scores of beggars, pickpockets and drug peddlers.



MOBILE OASIS is a self-contained filter-cooler unit for providing fresh, cool water at construction sites, field events or any place drinking water is needed. The 455-litre tank can be filled from any local water supply.

American Still Best, Say Cubans

By JOHN VIRTUE

HAVANA (UPI) — Two decades after the Cuban revolution, things American are popular again among Cuba's youth.

The interests range from music to movies to clothing fashions.

Relaxation of travel restrictions in the last several years has brought Cubans increasingly in touch with American and other foreign visitors and has given them access to foreign goods, albeit illegally.

There's an underground music industry which produces cassettes of U.S. and other foreign songs. The cassettes sell for $12 to $18.

Young people approach tourists outside the five luxury hotels and try to talk them into buying cassettes, radios or tape recorders at the diplo-stores in the hotels where only foreigners are allowed to make purchases. The catch is the tourist could end up holding a bunch of pesos he can't exchange for hard currency when he leaves.

"If there's an American movie showing, there'll be a big line outside," said 17-year-old Rodrigo. "But if there's a Russian movie, nobody will go."

American movies currently being shown in Havana include "Jaws," "Hello Dolly," "Day of the Dolphin" and "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

"If someone in an American movie wears a wrist band, the next day you'll see scores of kids in Havana who have made them and are wearing them," one adult said.

Blue jeans and T-shirts — especially ones with lettering in English — are the height of fashion. Ramon's girl friend paid $120 for a pair of American jeans for him, while a T-shirt can run upwards of $60.

Such items are bought on the black market or from tourists since clothing is rationed in Cuba — a man is entitled to one new pair of pants and one shirt a year - and foreign fashions would be unavailable anyway. Black market goods are mainly channeled through foreign sailors.

Capitalism isn't dead and buried yet in Cuba.

The Cuban government is now experimenting with a profit sharing plan aimed at increasing sales and improving service. Trials are being conducted at several restaurants, cafeterias and ice cream parlors, as well as at some shops and plants.

The government sets a sales or production quota and lets the staff share any benefits if the quota is surpassed. So far, the plan, called "vinculation," has been popular among workers.

"If I work hard, I can increase my income by 50 percent," said Mercedes, a waitress at one of the city's more popular restaurants. "I'm all in favor of the plan."

Mercedes, like most waitresses and waiters, earns about $137 a month. She can't count on tips to augment her income since tipping is forbidden, although many foreigners and Cubans do anyway.

Private ownership is allowed in several areas, including transportation. The owners of pre-1959 taxis were allowed to keep and operate them privately, although the number is shrinking through attrition and the drivers realize very little profit because of the scarcity and high cost of parts for their aging cars.

Open attendance at church is dropping in Cuba, but many Catholics participate in clandestine weddings and baptisms and practice their religion at home.

Less than 1 percent of Cuba's 9 million inhabitants goes to church regularly, according to church sources.

Although freedom of worship is guaranteed in the constitution, no one with a religious affiliation can become a member of the Communist party. But even some high members of president Fidel Castro's government are said to be secret worshippers.

"Many people worship at home or go to a church outside their parish where they're not known," said one priest.

He said many Catholics fear they will lose their jobs if they're seen in church and, although this may not be so, it "keeps the people out of the church."

There are 234 priests in Cuba, slightly more than half of them Cuban. Before the 1959 revolution, there were 900 priests.

Weddings

Letelier—Webster

The marriage of Sarah Marie Webster, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Webster, 130 Linden Ave., Victoria, to Jorge Alfredo Letelier, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Jorge Letelier, Santiago, Chile, was solemnized at Sacred Heart Church with Father Johnston officiating, on Friday, December 22, 1978, the twenty-sixth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents.

The bride chose to wear her mother's bridal gown of ivory satin with nylon net overskirt and lace bodice, complemented by a lace jacket featuring lily-point sleeves and pearl encrusted collar. Her fingertip lace trimmed veil was caught up in a band of blue and white silk flowers. She carried a blue ribboned colonial bouquet of white and pink roses. The bride's sister, Rebecca Webster, attended her, gowned in blue, pink and white flowered print with white lace trim. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses and babys breath. Richardo Tudela, the groom's cousin acted as groomsman. Eduardo and Enrique Tudela, the groom's cousins were ushers. The organist was Charles Palmer.

Following the ceremony, a buffet dinner was served at Holyrood House. A three-tiered cake, made and decorated by the bride's aunt, Marjorie Bennett, was white Cornelli trim, embossed with blue forget-me-nots, topped by blue satin wedding bells. The toast to the bride was given by her eldest brother, Bob Webster, who with brothers, Timothy and Matthew, were among several out-of-town guests from Toronto. Timothy acted as master of ceremonies, Matthew read a telegram from the bride's uncle and aunt, Capt. M. V. and Frances Bezeau, Ottawa. Following a brief honeymoon up Island, the couple will reside in Victoria.

Denike—Elliott

Janice Louise Elliott and James Alan Denike were married in Knox Metropolitan United Church, Regina, on December 22, 1978. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Elliott of Flaxcombe, Saskatchewan, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Denike of Victoria.

Myrna Elliott of Edmonton was her sister's maid of honor, and Art Thomas, Victoria, was best man. Ushers were Ian Franklin and Garth Reimer. The bride came down the aisle to the music "Bishop's Promenade" by Coke-Jephcott, wearing her mother's ivory satin wedding dress, framed in a flowing lace veil. After the service the couple left the church to the sound of the bell ringers tolling joyful tunes from the church tower. A reception followed at the Hotel Saskatchewan, and in the evening an 'Open House' was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Fitzpatrick.

Alan and Janice flew to Victoria for Christmas and New Year's and after a few days up-Island and in Vancouver, are returning to Regina where they are both pursuing careers in music.

MAKE
YOUR SERVANT
This is what happens when you have a long term lease. Not only is your own rent fixed at a surprisingly low level, but as the rental market inflates, the value of your lease increases. Prestige location on Fairfield side of Beacon Hill Park. One BR, sauna baths, whirlpool, workshop, rooftop lounge, covered parking. You pay $29,500 for 95-year lease, which works out at $26.00 per mo. (plus actual cost of upkeep). When you no longer need the apartment, then sell the remaining term of the lease for the then market value. If you are tired of being hit in the pocket book by continually higher rents, then investigate this. You'll be glad you did. Don Bacon, Byron Price & Assoc. Ltd. 595-6588 or 385-2458.

NO MORE RUSH-HOUR TRAFFIC

With the opening of the new highway the Western Community has become more accessible so why not consider these possibilities:

—A comfortable family home close to schools on a quiet street. Attractively designed with 3 or 4 bedrooms, slate fireplace, and a sundeck overlooking ⅓ acre of woods. $64,500.

—An immaculate double wide mobile on a cement slab, 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, fireplace and minimum maintenance. Situated on owners lot with garden, greenhouse and metal shed. Asking $52,900.

—More than an In-Law Suite — a completely separate 1-bedroom house offers privacy from the 3-bedroom home. Both on .47 acre for $68,500.

—Teak and Pecan panelling, beamed ceiling and French doors, make this renovated home something special. One acre in Mill Bay with productive garden, fruit trees and grape arbor offered at $68,900.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION

AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

309 IN MEMORIAM

MORRIS — In loving memory of a dear husband and father John Henry, who passed away January 6, 1977. RIP.
Gone, but not forgotten
Never shall your memory fade
Sweet thoughts will every linger,
Round the grave where you are laid.
—Sadly missed by his sorrowing family.

ROY- In loving memory of my dear wife and mother Agnes, who died Jan. 4, 1978.
We hold our tear
We speak her name
No one can know
The sorrow we share,
When the family meets
You're not there.
You left a place
No one can fill.
-Her loving husband, daughter, son and daughter-in-law.

SPEED — In loving memory of Dorothy Lillian, who passed away January 6, 1973.
When evening shades are falling
And we sit in quiet alone,
To our hearts there comes a longing
If she only could come home.
Friends may think we have forgotten
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the heartache,
Our smiles hide all the while.
—Lovingly remembered and missed by Mon, Sisters and Brothers.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUTE, SANDS

Heavy are our
Memory brings you
To the time when you were with us,
To the happy days of yore.

Hygiene Ad Foes Impress

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission says it has become increasingly aware of growing public opposition to the broadcasting of commercial messages promoting feminine hygiene products on television.

It said Friday it received at recent hearings in Vancouver and Winnipeg 83,000 petitions, letters and coupons protesting such commercial messages.

It also has received an additional 1,200 letters and petitions from individuals, groups and organizations on the same topic over the last two months.

Ferries Stretch In Spring

Ferry schedules in the Gulf Islands will be upset this spring with three of the vessels heading to the shipyards for stretching.

The Mayne, Bowen and Powell River Queens head to Burrard Drydock in Vancouver to get new mid-sections that will add space for 20 more cars to their existing 50-car capacities.

Revised schedules are designed to cause as little inconvenience as possible, and in some cases will improve service during the refits, traffic manager Bill Bouchard said.

Beginning Jan. 8, the following ships will be on the Swartz Bay-Fulford Harbor run:

Queen of the islands — May 3 to June 15.

Bouchard said the combined capacity of the Saltspring and Pender Queens more than matches that of a new stretched version at 76 cars.

BOYS FACE BOXCAR CHARGES

Charges are expected to be laid against two juvenile boys after a couple of CP Rail boxcars rolled down the track and blocked traffic on Fairview and Devonshire Roads for nearly an hour Friday afternoon.

Esquimalt police said the boxcars had been parked nearby on a slight incline and someone apparently removed the wheel blocks and released the brakes.

It marks the third time in a month CP Rail boxcars have been tampered with.

A police spokesman said two suspects, age 14 and 15, were picked up later Friday.

Charges of public mischief or offences under the Railway Act are pending, he said.

Political Outcry on Grant To Carry Out Brain Study

Education Minister Pat McGeer's wife Edith should refuse $20,000 in research funds from the B.C. Lottery Foundation, an NDP spokesmen said Friday.

Mrs. McGeer is a brain researcher at the University of B.C. and was awarded the cash as part of $2.7 million in medical grants distributed from lottery returns.

But NDP MLA Eileen Dailly (Burnaby-North) said anyone remotely in the political sphere should be excluded from grants and cabinet ministers and their wives should refuse them.

Provincial secretary Hugh Curtis said many medical grants are larger than the one to Mrs. McGeer.

All the medical grants were approved by the Health Care Research Foundation, Curtis said.

The grants have been approved by cabinet but not yet distributed.

Mrs. McGeer's grant is for research in receptor binding studies, cancer and mental illness.

A number of unusual projects have been funded from lottery proceeds under the Special Events fund, including $250 to Castlegar resident Jim Chapman to take his frog to compete in a frog jumping contest in California.

Other grants went to baton twirlers, marching bands glee clubs and the Western Canada Billiards and Snooker Association.

Many soccer, lacrosse and rugby teams including the University of Victoria team which has received several $2,500 grants over the past few years, have received grants.

The local (City of Gardens chapter) Sweet Adelines singing group received $4,500.

The Vancouver Poultry and Fancy Pigeon Association received $450.

Back in the medical field, Trevor Trust of the University of Victoria will receive a $20,000 grant to study campylobacter enteritis: incidence and analysis.

But Gail Bellward at the University of B.C. goes him one better with her $11,000 grant to study effects in utero and neonatal exposure of wistar rats to infinity-1-acetylmethadol (LAM) on androgen imprinting of the hepatic mixed function oxidases and other toxicological parameters.

LOGGING SEEN PARK THREAT

The Sierra Club claimed Friday the provincial cabinet is preparing to open the provincial parks system to logging.

Club spokesman Bob Nixon said the cabinet's environment and land use committee will decide within two weeks whether to allow logging in Bowron Lake Provincial Park, east of Barkerville.

Nixon warned the parks system will cease to exist within five years if logging is permitted in the park.

He said this would destroy B.C. as a supernatural province, kill the tourist industry and ensure the eventual collapse of the logging industry as the mainstay of the provincial economy.

But Jim Chabot, the minister in charge of parks, said the Siera Club charge is garbage and there is no truth to it

The minister said Bowron Lake park is a special problem because it contains a large area of timber blown down by high winds a few years ago.

CLUES ACROSS

1. SKIM not swim. The vacationers would swim through the waves if bathing and SKIM across the waves if boating or waterskiing.
6. VANISHED not banished. They are not being seen, so VANISHED fits well. "Banished" is rather old-fashioned and has the air of being exiled.
7. WOOL not wood. Types of wood vary from soft to hard. WOOL on a sheep's back can go from thin to dense.
8. SLEEP not sheep. SLEEP is the more natural answer, since one can reasonably imagine a farm hand taking a nap in a field at some time. One would associate a farmer (or a shepherd, maybe) rather than a "farm hand" with the idea of having sheep.
11. LIEnot pie. A "very bad" LIE may indeed be distressing. A pie needs merely to be slightly tainted, or simply "bad," to upset the stomach; you just wouldn't eat a "very bad" pie.
12. HAVE not save. Whether or not they actively save mementos in the sense of collecting or preserving them, they HAVE them.
13. PANE not pans. The tone of the clue seems unsuitably optimistic for pans (the number of which tends to be imponderable anyway). A PANE of glass is more reasonable.
14. CAT not rat. The clue hints that this animal may be fussy normally, though "not all that" much so when hungry. However, a rat is never fussy at all.
21. HANDLE not candle. HANDLEs may be horizontal, oblique, etc., vertical ones being "common enough." Vertical is the normal position for candles.
23. CELLO not hello. A musical instrument is very aptly regarded as something one "hears." "Hello" is hardly more apt than innumerable other common words; also, it can just as well be viewed as something one says.
24. SLIGHT not blight or flight. A SLIGHT or insult links up best with the nature of the clue; a man may be made to pay dearly for a SLIGHT. A flight can simply be expensive in an ordinary literal sense. A blight is an affliction.

CLUES DOWN

1. SNOW not show. To practical intents, SNOW is more or less brilliantly white — perhaps sufficiently so to be found dazzling. It is enough to suppose that a theatrical show may be brilliant, but hardly "found" dazzling; it is merely so described as a term of enthusiasm.
2. INSOLENT not indolent. The clue suits something certain youths do purposely, such as be INSOLENT, or to dodge work (as distinct from merely being indolent or disinclined to work).
3. VAST not past. The clue's reference to "all" the efforts over "many" years seems to have VAST quantity in mind. In the context given, "past" is a duplication.
9. LAPS not yaps. The idea that a dog may LAP more eagerly than usual, as when thirsty, is fully apt; but why suppose that a dog yaps with "eagerness," rather than out of excitement, say?
10. SONG not gong. It is SONG (protracted singing), rather than a transient gong, that is apt to "irritate."
18. DELL not well. A DELL is just the sort of place in which a brook or stream, etc., "should" come as "no great surprise." A well is a typical source of water, which cannot come as any surprise.

Air Canada Relents On Surgery

Air Canada relaxed its stringent charter-class airfare regulations Friday to extend a Victoria family's visit because an eight-week-old boy required emergency neurosurgery.

Jim and Lynda McNabb arranged last June to fly to London, Ont., for a Christmas visit with Mrs. McNabb's parents.

Terms of their charter tickets, which cost $246 apiece for the McNabbs and their three-year-old son, Jamie, specified that they were to return Friday. The couple's other son, Matthew, two months, travelled free.

During the visit, however, Matthew's skull began fusing prematurely, forcing his brain to protrude at the forehead and base of the skull.

Dr. A. L. Amacher at War Memorial Children's Hospital performed an operation, severing Matthew's skull and inserting strips of plastic to stop the fusion until Matthew is about 18 months old, the age babies' brains stop growing.

Earlier this week, Mrs. McNabb took her tickets, a doctor's letter and Matthew to an Air Canada ticket agent, who refused to reschedule the departure.

"I was told that in order to change the dates, I would have to pay an extra $176 each for Jim and myself and $38 for Jamie," she said.

However, the airline later relented.

MAJOR BUILDUP ON VIET BORDER

Peking Massing Forces

Times News Services Post

WASHINGTON — China has moved major military forces toward its border with Vietnam during the past several days, according to intelligence reports reaching Washington. The troop movements are believed to be a reaction to Vietnam's drive inside Cambodia, raising concern among officials here that the Indochinese conflict could spread to major powers.

The Chinese buildup is reported to involve large numbers of troops, supplies of ammunition and redeployment of fighter planes and bombers to positions close to the Vietnam border. The movements were described as rapid as well as highly unusual.

U.S. officials said they do not know what China intends to do with the forces. There was some speculation that the movements may be intended as a warning to Vietnam rather than positioning for an actual strike against the Hanoi regime.

Meanwhile, Cambodia said today that heavy fighting was still raging in the northeastern and eastern third of the country which Vietnamese-backed rebels already claim they control.

In related developments:

— The United States called on of Vietnam today to withdraw its troops from occupied areas of war-torn Cambodia.

"Although we don't like the Pol Pot regime, we are not sure any new regime would be better for the Cambodian people," Robert Oakley, deputy assistant secretary of state for east Asian affairs told a news conference in Bangkok.

LANCTOT FLIES TO MONTREAL

PARIS (UPC) - Jacques Lanctot, one of five persons wanted in the 1970 kidnapping of British Diplomat James Cross, ended his eight-year exile today and flew to Montreal to face charges.

Lanctot, accompanied by his wife Suzanne and their three children, left on Air Canada flight 871 from Charles de Gaulle airport at Roissy.

Canadian embassy officials said Lanctot appeared at the embassy Friday and said he was weary of life in exile and wanted to go home. He was issued a temporary passport valid until Sunday, "just for the trip," an official said.

Since 1970, Lanctot and his family have lived in Cuba, Algeria and France.

Lanctot followed across the Atlantic two other suspects in the Cross abduction Oct. 6, 1970. His sister, Louise, and brother-in-law, Jacques Cossette-Trudel, flew home to Montreal Dec. 13 also to face charges in the kidnapping.

Lanctot's surrender leaves only Marc Carbonneau and Yves Langlois as the only suspects in the kidnapping still free. The two are living in Paris.

VICTIMS ALIVE, SAYS PSYCHIC

EDMONTON (CP) — An Edmonton psychic says he knows the location of a light plane that went missing Christmas Eve.

Edmond Benz, the second psychic to help in the search, said Friday that the four persons aboard are alive but that two are seriously injured.

"No one could find the plane so I decided to help out," said Benz, a retired hydrotherapist.

Benz said the plane is on a small peninsula jutting into the southern portion of the Lyell Glacier in Banff National Park, west of Calgary.

Both Benz and an unidentified Toronto woman, who also purports to have psychic abilities, singled out the park as the location of the downed plane.

But Maj. Vic Keating of Canadian Forces search and rescue and co-ordination centre said Friday that the area singled out by the Toronto woman was thoroughly checked and nothing was found.

He said passenger Chet Talbott, 60, was also seriously injured and that Betty Talbott, Chet's wife, had an injured left arm. Their son, Sheldon, was in good condition, Benz said.

Searchmaster Capt. Gordon Speirs said the park area would be searched again.

"The area will be covered again because it is in the prime search area, not because the psychics say they're there," Speirs said Friday.

Union Leaders Sizzling Over Section 11

Trade union leaders angrily denounced Friday the Socred government's proclamation of sections of a bill that would limit the right to strike.

Section 11 of Bill 46 was proclaimed by an order in council and published without comment Friday.

It brings more than 100,000 workers in 20 different unions under the Essential Services Disputes Act and limits the right of unions to strike by allowing the government to enforce a 104-day cooling off period.

"It is a concerted attack and a vindictive one. I think we're into the whole confrontation scene right now," B.C. Federation of Labor president Jim Kinnaird said.

John Shields, president of the Victoria Labor Council, said he is not surprised by the move.

He said the proclamation of section 11 is no doubt tied in with Finance Minister Evan Wolfe's announcement earlier this week that municipalities will be limited to a five-per-cent increase in their budgets.

Shields said municipal officials obviously put it to the government that they couldn't slap such a restriction on their employees' wage increases without some clout.

If municipal employees wages are to be restricted the government and the municipalities "have to have access to all the guns in the arsenal," he said.

But Shields warned the government is only buying trouble with the move and he added he doesn't expect this to be the last anti-labor shot from the Socred administration.

NDP spokesmen described the government move as deceitful and proof that the Socreds lack both scruples and morals.

Former NDP labor minister Bill King said it is clear the government's motives all along were ulterior.

"It goes hand in glove with the imposition of the five per cent restrictions on municipal and regional budgets," King said.

NDP labor critic Karen Sanford said Labor Minister Allan Williams should be fired.

"The minister has obviously knuckled under to the hard-liners in cabinet and has shown again he is a weak minister," Sanford said.

When the bill was passed last month, Williams said section 11 might never be proclaimed.

"It was a surprise because Williams had stated quite clearly there would be an exhaustive study. And then out of the blue they proclaim it," Kinnaird said.

Organized labor had reacted angrily when the bill was introduced last month.

The labor federation has promised a series of demonstrations throughout the province to fight the legislation.

The bill was introduced last month during an emergency session of the legislature to put an end to a West Kootenay school strike-lockout.

John Fryer, general secretary of the B.C. Government Employees Union, said he is disturbed that the Socred government appears "hell bent on confrontation" with the labor movement.

He said he is particularly distressed by Williams because, Fryer said, the minister went contrary to his word.

Fryer said Williams took great pains to reassure the opposition that section 11 would only be proclaimed if it was needed.

Fryer said he doesn't know why the government went back on its word and decided to proclaim the section now.

Angela Sheremeta says she'll defy next census, too

Census Challenger Off on Technicality

MAPLE RIDGE (CP) — A 38-year-old Maple Ridge woman was found not guilty Friday in provincial court of failing to complete her 1976 federal census form but the judge said he was not ruling on the government's invasion into her privacy.

Judge Lorne Clare ruled that Statistics Canada did not prove Angela Sheremeta had failed to complete the long census form "to the best of her knowledge and belief."

Court was told that Mrs. Sheremeta had provided only her name, address and the number of occupants in her home to a census taker and refused to answer other questions.

She argued that the census was a serious attempt by the federal government to threaten her personal freedom and privacy.

Judge Clare said he was ruling only on the evidence in the case and not on the constitutionality of the Statistics Act, the invasion of Mrs. Sheremeta's privacy or the supremacy of individual rights over government actions.

Mrs. Sheremeta said in an interview after the ruling that although she was found not guilty on a technicality, her case has been made. She added that she was prepared to go to court again over the issue during the next census.

M-B Shares Take Off After Takeover Rumor

MacMillan-Bloedel shares were among the hottest issues on the Vancouver Stock Exchange Friday after Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber said the provincial government plans to buy 20 per cent of the company's common shares for $30 each.

Premier Bill Bennett has protested Barber's remarks but has not denied them.

Barber said he got the 20 per cent figure from two diferent sources.

"One said the government was planning on it and the other said it was going ahead," Barber said.

About 68,000 shares of MacMillan Bloedel were traded Friday at between $25.25 and $25.50.

Previous take-over offers have valued it at about $30 per share.

"Until he (Bennett) issues a flat no, I'm sticking," Barber said.

A spokesmen for the premier's office said Bennett will not comment further.

Barber said the government will buy MacBlo stock through middlemen and then turn the shares over to a provincial Crown corporation, which would publicly issue its own shares.

The plan would be aimed at stopping a bid by Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd. (CPI) to take over the B.C. forest giant and maintaining ownership of the company in the province.

Forestry expert Dr. Peter Pearse, who authored a weighty report on the Royal Commission on Forest Resources in B.C. two years ago, said he is reluctant to

USC DRIVE AT $28,000

Last-minute contributions to this year's Unitarian Services Committee fund drive have pushed the total just over the $28,000 mark and with some donations still coming in, and others hopefully in the works, fund reach the $30,000 mark.

Contributions still are needed but the Times, which again this year helped support the drive, asks donors now to mail their cheques or money orders to the Unitarian Services Committee, 51 Sparks Street, Ottawa.

On page 51 of today's Times, there is a list of donors. A final list will be published next week.

Air Inspectors Strike Illegal

OTTAWA (CP) — A strike by federal aircraft inspectors has been declared illegal by the Public Service Staff Relations Board.

Union leader Ed Jensen said he was unhappy with the decision, announced today. But he had earlier indicated the 400 members of the aircraft operations group would abide by the board's ruling.

The strike started Friday morning and the government moved quickly to have it declared illegal.

"It seems to be the attitude of the employer to . . . take advantage of all legislation to put down the public service as much as possible," said Jensen.

At the outset of the board hearing Friday, Jensen said the employees, members of the new Canadian Union of Professional and Technical Employees, "are law-abiding citizens."

Government lawyer Robert Cousineau had argued that the employees were not in a legal strike position because they had switched unions.

He told the board the group was in a legal position to strike under its old union, the Professional Institute of the Public Service of Canada. But there was nothing in the Public Service Staff Relations Act which allowed the new union to pick up the strike right gained in negotiations by the previous union.

Jensen said his union, certified as the bargaining agent for the employees last summer, will continue with negotiations "to achieve a favorable resolution."

Chinese Pill for Men Studied in U.S.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — American fertility experts are evaluating a Chinese claim that they have put into use the first safe and effective birth control pill for men.

The U.S. researchers warned, however, that it might be premature to consider the development a birth control breakthrough.

The Chinese method described Friday reportedly is 99.8 per cent effective, does not interfere with sex and has no serious side effects.

The pill, called gossypol, is derived from seeds and other parts of the cotton plant, the report said, and works by preventing the formation of sperm.

Men take it daily for three months, and then take a maintenance doseage if they wish to remain infertile. Fertility can be restored within a year after a man stops taking the pills, the report said.

The pill has been available in clinics and health centres in China for more than six months, but Chinese doctors have said it is too soon to estimate the rate of acceptance.

One doctor, Pan Jun Din of the Hsin Hua commune, told U.S. family planning experts who toured China for three weeks in November: "The men are not very enthusiastic yet."

The family planning experts reported on the Chinese work in Friday's Ann Arbor News.

"There are many unknowns about gossypol," said Dr. Sheldon Segal, director of population sciences for the Rockefeller Foundation in New York.

"Animal studies have shown a cumulative toxicity. However, the Chinese may have been successful in purifying the substance to eliminate that."

Dr. Stanley Kaplan, a pharmacologist with the drug firm Hoffmann-La Roche Inc. of Nutley, N.J., said he discussed the drug with Chinese researchers who extracted it and with urologists who tested it.

"It sounded scientifically solid and the Chinese appear optimistic," he said.

Dr. Judith Tyson, medical director of Vermont Planned Parenthood, said she was told the Chinese developed the pill from ancient herbal folk medicine.

"From what we heard, it sounds safe, simple and highly effective," she said, "but so did the pill (for women) at first, so I have a healthy skepticism."

New Problems Arise As Heroin Use Dips

The battle against heroin addiction in B.C. is far from over but there are indications of a sharp decline in the use of the drug even as the government's health entry plan for addicts gets under way.

And while that may seem good news, it is giving rise to a host of new problems as many former heroin addicts are apparently switching to other drugs.

The shift in drug-taking patterns is causing concern both to pharmacists — who fear an increase in breakins and robberies — and to doctors who are being cautioned to be wary of double doctoring — instances where persons get multiple perscriptions by fraudulent means.

The number of heroin users in Greater Victoria has dwindled to the lowest in nearly a decade.

The reason: the supply of the drug has dried up, the result of several major police drug busts in Vancouver and Victoria in recent years.

Dr. Mark Fisher, medical officer for the Victoria Methadone Clinic, estimates there are only about 50 current users in Victoria.

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Sgt. Bob Hawkes, head of the RCMP drug squad puts the number higher. About 100 is his guess.

Either way the decline is spectacular. Five years ago, Hawkes says, there were between 500 to 600 regular users on the streets here. In 1967 there were about a dozen.

The credit for the decline belongs mainly to the Greater Vancouver and Victoria police drug squads.

Recent police seizures and arrests have dealt a devastating blow to the illicit trade.

Trafficking on the Island, for instance, has been reduced to a trickle ever since a major heroin ring was broken in Nanaimo three years ago.

What gets through is of poor quality — three per cent heroin is not uncommon — and extremely expensive — as much as $45 to $50 a cap. Three years ago a cap sold for $20 on the street here and contained at least 20 per cent heroin.

"There are days now when there is no heroin in town, none," Hawkes says.

To get a measure of how tight the supply has become, drug officers failed to find a single cap on the streets anywhere in Vancouver over a three-week period last fall.

"It's become much tougher to be an addict in B.C.," says Fisher.

He notes addicts are reacting to the shortages and high costs by turning to other drugs, notably alcohol and perscription medications.

Says Fisher: "In Victoria now I'd say the primary problem in drugs is barbituates."

He says addicts have been able to make the switch largely because the quality of heroin has been so low. They haven't developed as strong a habit. As a consequence they are able to accept other psychoactive drug substitutes.

And that is causing concern to pharmacists.

"I think we can anticipate more breakins in the future," says Jim Swanson, pharmacist at the United Pharmacy in Colwood.

"It's well known 100 per cent of the heroin addicts can maintain themselves on other drugs. The question is where do they get the drugs? They got to get them from somewhere, either through illicit sources such as forgery, robbery or breakins, or through a doctor's perscription."

He says the B.C. Pharmacists Association is examining ways of increasing security in dispensaries.

"Unless we start taking extra precautions now we are going to have a real problem getting insurance," he says.

However, Swanson says pharmacists are faced with a strange dilemna. If they concentrate on bars and alarms to stave off breakins after hours, they run the risk of having addicts walk through the door during the daytime with a gun in their hands.

One alternative is to arm stores with hidden cameras and silent alarms, making security less obvious.

Another is to remove all drug-abuse medications from pharmacies and dispense them instead from a central repository. Such an approach is being tried in some parts of the U.S.

Ironically the changeover to other drugs is partly the drug trafficker's own making. Heroin has been diluted to the limit solely so bigger profits can be realized.

Fisher does not believe heroin addiction will ever return to its old level unless the quality is reinstated.

Hawkes, however, says it is not the case of a trader having to improve his product to attract back customers.

He says traffickers are interested in only one thing — profits.

Right now heroin isn't as big a profit-maker as, say, cocaine, and so traffickers aren't as keenly involved in building up the heroin trade as they are cocaine.

If heroin comes back, look out, he says. We'll see a whole new generation of addicts.

The government's treatment plan hopes to forestall that from happening.

While the move is generally welcomed by police and medical professionals, there are some who feel the treatment plan is doomed to failure because its scope is too restricted.

"To be really effective a plan like this should be based on a continental decision," a Victoria physician said.

There are some who feel also that the plan will fail because addicts will simply move to another province.

But so far there's no indication of this happening.

Leonard Blumenthal, assistant chairman of the Alberta Alcohol and Drug Commission in Edmonton says that out of the 70 to 75 addicts known to the Alberta ADC, only about 11 came from B.C., and of those, six arrived during the Commonwealth Games. None appear to have made the move to escape treatment in B.C.

Blumenthal also notes there has been no increase in the number of addicts on the voluntary methadone program. Indeed just the reserse is occurring. Five years ago there were about 170 addicts taking methadone treatment in Edmonton; now there are less than 30, about the same number as currently receiving treatment in Victoria.

"There is a clear indication heroin is on the decline everywhere in North America. It's a natural decrease, like a spontaneous remission," he says.

He says B.C.'s treatment plan is being watched with considerable interest in Alberta.

Rather than causing addicts to leave, he believes the opposite might occur.

Cold To Linger

There'll be ice on the roads and a chill in the air for the next five days — but snow is unlikely, the weather office said today.

"Present weather conditions should last until Wednesday," forecaster Dennis Gallagher said.

Driving will be hazardous early in the day and at night but otherwise conditions should be reasonably pleasant.

There will be sunny periods though strollers may find things a bit nippy.

A cold air mass in the central interior continues to dominate the weather pattern but it is being moderated by a moist air trough which came up from Washington State and has moved over Vancouver Island.

The result should be heavy frost for the next three or four days.

By Wednesday, a moist Pacific storm will arrive, creating wet, mild conditions but it is too early to predict whether it will create snow or rain.

On Sunday it will be a little milder, rising to 2 or 3 degrees Celsius with overnight lows in the range of -5 to -6.

The forecast for Monday is almost identical with skies mainly clear and some cloudy periods.

While no general snowfall is expected, there could be a few flakes near lakes or rivers due to a combination of the moisture and cold weather.

POLICE NAB BOY

Esquimalt police said a patrol officer tried to pull over the truck in the 800-block Craigflower about 11 p.m. for a routine check.

The vehicle sped off and at Styles the driver lost control, struck a fire hydrant, crashed through a fence, crossed a lawn and smashed into a cement wall.

The driver and two passengers, a girl age 14 and another 15-year-old boy, escaped injury.

Police said the boy had been driving around picking up friends and taking them for rides.

Lawyer Quits Board, Police May Drop Suit

The Saanich Police Association — which had launched a court challenge to his appointment — will decide Monday whether to drop their Supreme Court action now that Hutchison has quit.

Police union president Cpl. Phil Jamieson said today the decision rests with union members who agreed last week to seek a court writ declaring Hutchison's appointment illegal.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom appointed Hutchison even though his name was not among those recommended by council.

The affair created a storm of controversy with the police association charging Gardom had failed to consult with council or be guided by the advice of the B.C. Police Commission on appointments as required under the Police Act.

Labor Leaders Split On Industrial Parks

A sharp difference of opinion over industrial parks has surfaced at the top level of the Victoria Labor Council.

Council president John Shields says such parks — considered vital if more jobs are to be created — should only go where residents want them.

But council secretary-treasurer Larry Ryan said today jobs come first and too many people, while they support indistrial development in principle, oppose it in their own community.

The differences surfaced when Ryan and Shields commented in separate interviews on a statement by industry commissioner Barry Mayhew that labor should become more active in the campaign for more local industries in 1979.

Shields said the council favors industrial parks only if they match the aspirations of the people in the area affected for orderly development.

He said if residents of a municipality reject such development through the normal democratic process, that is the way it has to be.

Shields said labor obviously favors such development in order to create jobs but added trade unions must also be sensitive about the needs of the community.

"When the community expresses strong concern about the location of industrial parks we don't want to override that," he said.

He said the industrial area of Central Saanich could possibly be looked at as an area for expansion.

The area doesn't get as much political play as Saanich where all the attention has been focussed in terms of industrial park development but maybe it has the potential for exploitation, he added.

But Ryan today urged Saanich to reopen the proposal for an industrial park at Royal Oak.

"I know there is opposition to this proposal from ratepayer groups but the unemployed have rights, too," he said.

"I resent the attitude of people who are gainfully employed who are smug about questions like this. I wish they could understand what it is like to be without a job."

Ryan, who is also chairman of the industrial development commission, said: "Labor must become more active on this question. Possibly we can play a role of reconcilation between those who propose development and those who opposite it.

"We (in labor) have no motive other than the creation of jobs. We hope we can convince people that more industries are needed in this community."

Ryan said some group will have to change its views for the benefit of the whole community.

That group, he said, should be Royal Oak ratepayers opposing industrial development since the siteis by far the best for an industrial park.

Ryan said industrial development should get a high priority from all sections of the community this year and a logical first step would be to re-open the question of the Royal Oak industrial park.

He said the community should protect its education investment by expanding its manufacturing base.

"I think the original Royal Oak proposal was defeated because of old-fashioned ideas about what industry is. There already is industry in the Royal Oak area. For example, the mail sorting plant. It fits in well with the surroundings and there is no question of despoiling the environment.

He's a Very Moving Man

max low

Moving, as we all know, can be a traumatic experience.

But it can also be fascinating, funny and a fine chance to meet famous folk. Particularly if moving is your life.

Take that mover supreme, Augustine Steen, who in his day has taken people to locations all over the British Isles and beyond.

Gus, now 77 and retired in Victoria, was tickled recently when he read a little story in the Times about the celebrity ghosts said to haunt Sir Harry Verney's stately Claydon House in rural Buckinghamshire.

Sir Harry's ancestor, Sir Edmund Verney (standard bearer for King Charles 1 during the civil war) was killed in the Battle of Edgehill. All that was found of him was his severed hand, still clutching the royal standard. His ghost and the ghost of Florence Nightingale (Sir Harry married Florence's sister) have both been seen at Claydon House, the Verney's ancestral home.

"I've been there, to the great hall, and seen the severed hand in the gauntlet," Gus Steen recalls. "I've taken furniture there many times. The main staircase is wrought iron corn and as you walk up it sort of rustles and moves, giving the impression of being in a field of waving corn."

That was a weird place, he agrees, but he wasn't bothered by all the talk of ghosts.

"I've been in so many haunted houses in my time that I was used to it," Gus explains.

And, as a key figure in the household moving business for more than 40 years (he started with Pickfords, Britain's biggest movers, and later worked for John Lewis Partnership) Augustine Steen has not only had his share of ghostly experiences but has been in some of the finest homes in England and Scotland.

He has personally moved people like Herbert Asquith (before he became England's Prime Minister), Field Marshall Sir William Slim of Burma, Baron de Rothchild, Sir Julian Huxley (curator of the London Zoo), Sir Percy Silleto (retired head of the British intelligence agency MI5), and many other lords and ladies.

He moved or took furniture and supplies into the Russian Embassy in London, the Canadian and U.S. Embassies and countless other diplomatic and business headquarters. And he moved such household names as Mr. Crosse of Crosse and Blackwell, Mr. Marks of Marks and Spencers, the famed Guinness family and Heinz and all its 57 Varieties.

Stars of stage and screen, too, are among the famous folk Gus Steen has moved at one time or another. People like actor Peter Ustinov, comedian Bud Flanagan, singer Frankie Vaughan and actress Arlene Dahl.

"We went to move comedian Tommy Handley just before he was to be married. He produced a couple of bottles of Scotch, which we shared, and Tommy ended up clog dancing on the dining room table!"

"I've moved Tom, Dick and Harry," he says. "I'd rather move Mrs. Jones and Mr. Smith than the society people, really. Mind you, society people were a lot different in my day. Now they are just upstarts."

Extreme politeness sometimes wasn't enough with the society folk, Gus explains, recalling when he moved the household belongings of Lord Stanley (son of the Stanley Cup Stanley) from Manchester to London. Gus addressed him as M'Lord the first time and as Sir from then on. He was severely reprimanded and rceived no tip.

"You're a good man, Steen," his Lordship told him. "But my rank is Lord and don't you forget it."

"We had a really tough move getting the Maharaja of Baroda from Haslemere in Surrey to India in 1939," Gus says with a grin.

"Everything in the kitchen was Crown Derby, the carpets were priceless and the chandeliers weighed over 200 pounds each. My packers had to wear white gloves and slippers.

"He got out in the Indian Ocean and the Germans sank the lot! But I wasn't sorry as he was miserable and I didn't even get any beer money out of that job."

In a long career, Gus Steen's worst moment came not long after the beginning.

"I was just a lad at the time and we had a job moving Lord and Lady Winney in Oxfordshire," he explains.

"His Lordship was away and Lady Winney gave us our orders and said she'd be gone for a couple of days.

"While packing the clothes, I put all the Lord's things on — top hat, tails, the lot — and there was me parading around in his togs and there was my mate killing himself laughing when in walked Lady Winney.

"What's this?" she asked indignantly. "What's going on?"

"I said 'Begging your pardon, M'Lady.' And she said:

"Well I must say you look so smart . . . I just can't reprimand you!"
